Elementary School

Armistice Day was appropriately celebrated in the elementary school.

The pupils were highly honored by addresses made by Dr. F. B. Hines and Mr. J. Thos. Kibler. Miss France gave some readings and a number of spirited songs were given by the pupils.

Mr. Kibler delighted the pupils by announcing that physical education will be given by him to the elementary school every week.

The play ground equipment which Mr. Walter Wright has so generously donated came this week. Mr. W. P. Newnam has had the grounds put in order and the apparatus will be placed in the spring.

An electric bell has been installed by Mr. John Spiecher.

Sanitation is a very important part in school life and one of the "first aid" is a case of paper towels donated by Mrs. A. P. Rasin. Mrs. P. A. M. Brooks supplied a towel rack for the lunch room. With all these helps the scholars are trying to make good reports. The teachers have decided to adopt the letter system of rating the pupils using the following code.

A—95 to 100; B—85 to 95; C—75 to 85; D—75; E—70 to 75 unsatisfactory; F—below 70, failure.

A NOTABLE BUSINESS LECTURE COMING

Arrangements have been made by a Merchants' Committee of Chestertown to bring to this town on Friday, November 21, 1919, at 9.15 p. m., in Lyceum Theatre the most famous American business lecture on the platform: "The Troubles of a Merchant and How to Stop Them." Under this head, Mr. Shorland Fannon, well-known business expert and organizer will discuss the various questions that are now more than ever before sources of trouble and loss to merchants and business everwhere. He will show how co-operation and organization will make for a better community or city. How co-operation and understanding will remove trouble between employer and employee. He will show practical improvements in service and store organization that will please the general public and draw trade. How friendly co-operation and organization among business men instead of petty jealousies and narrowness will aid in bringing prosperity to all. He will show how proper advertising will change losses to profits. How systematic continuous newspaper advertising pays the largest dividends of all. How system that enables a merchant to know at all times about the conditions of his business instead of guessing is now more than ever before absolutely essential to success.

With the aid of three thousand feet of moving picture film and about two hundred stereopticon views. Mr. Fannon will give a most interesting and timely discussion.

Every merchant or wife of a merchant, every salesman or clerk, every business man and all those interested in seeing Chestertown become a better business center should not fail to hear Mr. Fannon.

We strongly urge that our business men, merchants and all sales people work to give Mr. Fannon a capacity audience Friday night, Nov. 21, at the Lyceum. No charge for admission.

TOURIST VISIT KENT

Chestertown Visited By Route Agents Of Philadelphia And New York Automobile Clubs This Week—Delighted With This Section And Will Recommend It To Tourists Of Those Cities.

he tourists of New York and Philadelphia are fast becoming acquainted with the splendid opportunities for seeing a new country by the reports which are weekly given out by the touring bureaus of these cities for the purpose of posting automobile tourists as to new routes and new countries in which they may find pleasure and profit by the use of their cars.

One of the officers of the Philadelphia Automobile Club in company with a well-known New York automobilist passed through Chestertown a few days ago over this route, and was taking complete notes of every detail of the road, the hotel accommodation, the various towns, and also making inquiries as to any historical old buildings which might be noted in the tourist book as places of amusement and interest to the Northern and Eastern automobilist. These gentlemen were enthusiastic over the prospects of opening up this territory to New York and Philadelphia motorists and said in speaking of the new route that in their opinion no section of the United States east of the Rockies afforded a better opportunity for pleasant automobiling than the Peninsula route. Commenting on the highways and the many interesting points along the route one of these gentlemen said: "You have everything on this Peninsula to induce the man from the big cities to visit your country and make frequent trips thru this territory. The climate is the most agreeable I have ever seen and you have so many lakes and rivers running in every direction which furnishes opportunity for gunning, fishing and trapping, and also for house boating that I am surprised more of our people have not found out this territory before. Why, traveling thru this country I noticed strawberries growing in the fields at this season of the year, and your hotels, while not strictly up to first class, have many things on the table to tickle the palate of the city man, and when you think of the vast number of resorts such as Ocean City and other points along the Atlantic and the hundreds of other beautiful spots dotting the bays and rivers to which our improved highways connect, it is really a vacation spot where the average man living in New York, Philadelphia and Boston could pass a week or two in automobiling with probably more pleasure and at less cost than anywhere else in the United States. Your roads are simply marvelous and when within a short time it is possible for a gentleman to leave his own door in New York or Philadelphia and drive over macadam and concrete roads clear thru to Cape Charles, where he can take a steamer across the beautiful Chesapeake and wend his way home by another route, it is unfortunate that thousands of men and women who are able to automobile are entirely ignorant of what you have here to offer them.

"Another thing which the average city man and women enjoys would be a ramble thru the old antique and colonial houses which you find in so many of your smaller towns and the vast number of aged churches in which cluster so much of the romance and the history of the anti-bellum days. The Philadelphia Automobile Club proposes to let every one of its members know of the splendid opportunities you have here for entertainment and the beautiful country and the healthful climate which is within their reach, and I venture the assertion that next year you will see more automobilists than you have ever seen before. In the meantime, you should get a few more up-to-date hotels in some of the smaller places so as to be able to give accommodation whereever it happens the automobilist wants to stop to spend the night."

That Ouija Board.—Chas. W. Kennard, formerly of Chestertown, says that he and not Mr. Reiche, is the author of the Ouija board. The name was given by a Mr. Bond, of Baltimore, who owned a half interest in it. Kent county is entitled, however, to whatever credit is due whether Mr. Reiche or Mr. Kennard discovered the great board.
