COURT—The October Term of Kent county Court will commence its session on Monday.

CATTLE SHOW.—The State Annual Exhibition will come off in Baltimore, during the coming week.

THE MEETING.—Tuesday last was the day fixed for the American candidates to address the citizens of Kent—the meeting was called to order by the appointment of Geo. S. Hollyday, Esq. Chairman and G. J. Vickers, Secretary. T. H Hicks Esq the candidate for Governor was introduced who entertained the audience for more than an hour, defining his position and contrasting it with that of his competitor—the whole speech was well arranged, and led us to believe that although an "ex-constable" he was well fitted to fill the chair of State, to which post he will doubtless be elected.

Mr. Hicks was followed by Major McPhail, in one of his best efforts—his defence of the much abused city of Baltimore, was well received.

The last speaker—though not least—was the Hon. J. Morrison Harris, the talented Representative in Congress from the 3d district—we have not room to publish a review of this speech, it was alike creditable to the speaker and gratifying to the audience.

BALTIMORE ELECTION.—The municipal election in Baltimore, Wednesday, resulted in the election of 19 out of 20, of the American candidates for the First Branch City Council. The American majority was 9,666.

The city was again the scene of violence and bloodshed. Sergeant William Jourdan, was shot dead while discharging his duty, and a number of other police officers were wounded.

PENNSYLVANIA.—The election in this State which took place Tuesday has resulted in favor of the democrats by a large majority.

JOINT DISCUSSION.—The last discussion between Messrs. Ricaud McHenry, candidates for Congress, came off in this place. The affair was altogether a one-sided one—Mr. Henry is no speaker, and convinced his hearers that his services can be dispensed with in the 35th Congress.

MURDER WILL OUT.—The subjoined is taken from the New Haven Register of Oct. 9th.

"About a year since, a young lad named Sage, disappeared suddenly from his fathers house, near Middletown, and was last seen going to the barn, near which lived a laboring man, whom the lad had frequently accused of stealing his fathers grain. On the disappearance of the lad, the man alluded to was arrested on suspicion of having foully disposed of him, but was acquitted for the want of for proof. At the time it was shown that the lad had not been seen alive since his visit to the barn, and a hole in the ice in the Connecticut river, at a point nearest the barn, gave color to the suspicion that the boy had been killed and put through this hole. About a month since, the body of a lad floated ashore near the mouth of the river, and, although the head was gone, the parents of young Sage were so confident that it was their son, that they assumed and buried it as such

"We now learn, that within a day or a day or two, a sailor has returned to Middletown and voluntarily, before a magistrate, testified that he accidentally saw the murder, and that the man first arrested is the guilty one. He says he was going by the barn, and heard some one charging another with 'stealing grain and hay,' which was denied and reiterated; and apprehending violence; stepped into the barn just as the man felled the lad to the floor with a threshing flail, killing him instantly. He says the man's wife was also present and that as soon as they saw him they came at him, and that it was only by a promise not to reveal what he had seen that his life was spared. He soon sailed on a voyage, from which he had just returned, and hastened back to the scene of the murder, to unburden his conscience of the suppression, which he says has made him miserable during his whole absence. Steps were immediately taken for the arrest of the murderer, and he has been under examination in Middletown to-day."

☞ A murder most foul and unnatural has occurred in our midst by a negro man, upon the person of a white lady named Mrs. Staurt. The lady it appears had been on a visit to a neighbors where the negro was at work, and returning home between sunset and dark, she was attacked by the negro, her skull was broken, her bowels protruding through a wound in the abdomen and one of her hands cut off. The hand was found afterward by the direction of the negro (who has confessed the crime) in a bunch of fodder. There was great excitement produced against him; but no effort to take him out of the hands of the officer for immediate punishment, though we understand it has been threatened. This negro has been prowling about for some months in this place, entering houses at night and purloining whatever he could lay his hands on. Had he been arrested and confined as he ought to have been, this final tragedy had not been enacted. Allowing him to run at large on the ground that he was foolish or crazy, has led this horrible transaction.—Somerset (Md.) Patriot.

THE ODD CENT.—Some days ago a produce dealer in one of our markets sold a customer a half peck of potatoes for a levy, and in taking his pay from a quarter dollar, returned twelve cents change. This the customer declined to receive, claiming thirteen cents as his due. A dispute ensued, which ended by the customer getting out a warrant for the odd cent. The case being tried, he recovered it.—Washington Star.

SLAVES.—Slaves sell in Alabama for their weight in money. The Eulan Whig says: "A few day since a gentleman here paid $1200 apiece for five negro girls, from 12 to 15 years of age. Reckoning silver at 12 ounces to the pound, which is Troy weight, the negroes, allowing them 100 pounds weight each, cost just their weight in silver.

☞ George Washington Parke Custis, the grandson of the wife of Gen. George Washington, and the last survivor of the family circle of Mount Vernon died at his residence at Alexandria county, Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

CONGRESSIONAL NOMINEES.—The following are the candidates of the American and Foreign parties in the several Congressional districts of Maryland.

Dist.	American.	Foreign.
1.	Hon. T. Townsend,	Hon. J. A. Stewart,
2	Hon. J. B. Ricaud,	Ramsey McHenry

4.	Hon. H. W. Davis,	(No opposition,)
5.	Hon. H. W. Hoffman,	J. M. Kunkel,
6.	[no opposition.]	Hon. T. F. Bowie,

☞ A young man named Wesley Boyd, from Mt. Rocky, Pa., killed himself at Rock Springs, Cecil couty, Md., on the 2d inst., by drinking three tumblers of whiskey in succession.

☞ The Elkton papers speak very favorably of Mr. Hugh N. Brown and James Rudolph, both formor citizens of that town, but recently killed by a gunpowder explosion at Columbia, Cal.

☞ A son of Mr. Jacob Winchester, Esq., residing at Annapolis, in jumping from an Ox cart on Monday last, fell in such a manner as to break his neck. He was about 14 years of age.
