SOLD.

In the city of Baltimore, on the 30th of July, 1857, the fossil remains of the old Democratic party of Maryland. Purchaser—John C. Groome, (Old Line Whig) of Cecil county.

The terms of this sale, though signed and sealed, are kept in as much secrecy as possible. There are, however, understood to be to the effect that the said John C. Groome, for and in consideration of the services of the Democracy, agrees to give to said Democracy, in case of his election, a liberal share of the Governor's patronage. I case there are not enough Old Line Whigs voting for said Groome to fill a moiety of the offices, which is considered extremely doubtful) then the Democracy will fare better than the terms of sale prescribed.

This sale was in contemplation some time before it actually took place; and, as the bidders were, the bargain was finally consummated upon terms not altogether satisfactory to some of the "faithful." The fact is, the Democratic party once so powerful in Maryland has become so suddenly and so overwhelming defunct, that a large number of its members can scarcely realize their position. Accustomed to victory and to a monopoly of the spoils it goes hard with them to be compelled to share only a portion of the crumbs falling from the public crib. But the managers of party reason in this wise; "We are in a hopeless minority in the State—certain legal gentleman who have recently joined our party have ruined it To be candid the 'concern' don't pay: and, as our object is office—a plank to that effect being understood in all our platforms—we had better sell out to the best advantage. It is a forlorn hope and way, and therefore should be led by an Old Line Whig. It would be a pity to sacrifice a good Democrat in such a contest.

But there are many Democrats who do not relish this logic. They don't like the idea of being sold; neither do they like the purchaser It is bad enough to a Democrat, to be compelled to give a portion of the spoils of office—but to be sold out to an unretracting unrecanting Federal Whig, is a humiliation that some of them cannot and will not bear. As a consequence, there are already signs of kicking in the traces.

This is the position of the once dominant party of Maryland. 'What a falling off is there."

Two years ago the same party reared its proud front in our state, and defied all opposition. Elated with its former successes, it cared not for Whig support and it looked upon the "dark lantern part'y' as an association not worthy its prowess. Its members had fattened on the public offices of Maryland for so long a period that they thought themselves invincible. Then it was that we heard the cry that the American movement was a "Whig trick." Democrats were warned not to join the American party on this ground. Nay they were begged and persuaded and when these means would net answer, they were threatened with anathemas if they dared to enter a Know Nothing Lodge. But now the time is changed. "Othello's vocation is gone." Democracy now lauds the name of Henry Clay, and actually sells itself to a few men, whom, years ago, it denounced as "Federal Whigs."

Will the people of Maryland ratify the terms of this sale? We answer emphatically—NO! The spirit of 1856 is abroad, and it will sweep our State as an avalanche. It will bear Thomas Holliday Hicks—aye "Constable Hicks"—into the White House on the Bay Shore, by a majority unparalled in in the annals of good old Maryland.

THE NECESSITY OF EXECISE.—The benefits of exercise to those whose occupation does not lead them to make any physical exertion cannot be too highly estimated. The body must undergo a certain amount of fatigue to preserve its natural strength, and maintain all the muscles and organs in proper vigor. This activity equalizes the circulation, and distributes the blood more effectually through every part. Cold feet, or a chill anywhere shows that the circulation is languid there. The muscles, during exercise, press on the veins, and help forward the currents by quickening every vessel into activity. The valves of the heart are in this way aided in the work of sending on this stream, and relieved of a certain amount of labor. When exercise is neglected, the blood gathers too much about this central region, and the oppression about the heart, difficulty of breathing, lowness of spirits, anxiety and heaviness, numerous aches and stitches, are evidences of this stagnation. People are afraid to take exercise, because they fancy they want breath and feel weak. But the very effort would free the heart from this burden, by urging the blood forward to the extremities; it would ease their breathing by liberating the lungs from the same superabundance; it would make the frame feel active and light, as the effect of equalized circulation and free action.—Laws of Health.

DEATHS.

At her residence, in Still Pond, on the 15th inst., after a protracted illness, Mrs. Martha H. Gale, consort of Col. James H. Gale, in the 52d year of her age.

In the death of this truly good woman not only have her family and immediate relatives met with a sad bereavement, but the community in which she lived, sustain an irreparable loss.

Mrs. Gale was pre-eminently a useful woman; a kind neighbor to all; she was especially so to the poor; her heart was ever open to the cry of distress, and her hand ever ready to relieve the wants of the needy.

That charity which "thinketh no evil" was a prominent trait in her character, and frequently, when others have been dealing out censures against persons who has perhaps justly deserved them, has she been known to interpose and seek to paliate, even when she could but condemn.

In all the relations of life it was her great aim to mould her conduct according to the standard of the gospel and her last moments were brightened by its sacred influence.

For many years she in concert with her estimable husband, had made their house the centre of a refined and liberal hospitality, shared alike by the affluent and the poor, with the same hearty and cordial welcome. While a large circle of relatives, and a multitude of friends attracted and attached to her by the amenity of her manners and the sincerity of her regard fer them, mourn with her bereaved husband, their melancholy loss, they yet mourn as not without hope, for they know that their loss is her eternal gain.
