WILL OBSERVE BUNDLE DAY

NEAR EAST RELIEF COMMITTEE ASKS FOR OLD CLOTHES FOR ARMENIAN SUFFERERS.

AT BALTIMORE TUESDAY, OCT. 19.

Send Your Cast Off Garments To The Public Schools, 453 Title Building, Baltimore, Or Enoch Pratt Library.

Say Boy, are you sporting a good suit today?

And, little Lady, are you wearing a pretty dress?

You're both happy, we're sure.

But do you know that thousands of little folks and their fathers and mothers too, will freeze to death in Armenia this winter if we don't help them?

They need the old clothes you laid aside when you got your nice school duds. The old clothes you can spare will help to save those freezing destitute sufferers.

Make up a bundle and take it to the nearest Public School, from which it will be forwarded free. And don't forget the old clothes of Father and Mother, Sister and Brother; take them along too. When? Why, on Bundle Day. At Baltimore, Tuesday, October 19th.

Former Ambassador Henry Morgenthau, as a member of the executive committee of the Near East Relief, has issued an appeal for second hand clothing to be sent to Armenia, to prevent the appalling death list of last year being repeated again this winter.

"I have before me a cable from Charles V. Vickrey, secretary of the Near East Relief," Mr. Morgenthau said. "Mr. Vickrey was in Constantinople when he sent the message, just returned from a trip of inspection of Transcaucasia.

"The need for old clothes in the Caucasus is simply indescribable," he cables. 'The quantity necessary is unlimited."

The plea that touched the heart

BUNDLE DAY
TUES. OCT. 19
NEAR EAST RELIEF

The greater part of the Armenian Republic is at a very high altitude, and consequently bitterly cold in winter. Erivan, the capital, is 3,000 feet high, on the plain of Mt. Ararat. Kars is 5,260 feet, and there are 6,000 little children at Kars under American care. Alexandropol, where 10,000 orphans are housed in barracks by the Near East Relief, is 4,620 feet. At Erivan the Near East Relief is clothing and housing 7,768 children and feeding 25,872 others, who are clothed and housed as best they can, by their own families. At 6,000 feet altitude, these 25,000 little ones face death from the rigors of a mountainous winter, unless they have sufficient clothing. There are no window panes left in Armenia, anywhere. In the Near East Relief orphanages we use oiled paper to keep out the cold.

"These orphaned boys and girls constitute the hope of the future in the Near East. They are the coming generation who will have to create a peaceful, civilized, prosperous Armenia if that land is ever to be regenerated at all. The future depends, therefore, upon the aid we give them now.

"In a recent interview with Walter Duranty, of the New York Times, Col. Haskell, who had been in charge of the Near East Relief Work in Transcaucasia, declared that 'without America there would be no Armenian problem any more. Armenian territory would remain, but the Armenian people would have ceased to exist. The lives literally of the whole nation have been saved by America!'

"A great work has been almost carried through in seeing Armenia through the valley of the shadow of death to peace and prosperity beyond. A little more patience and another effort and this winter will have passed, and the New Year may bring a permanent solution of the Armenian problem. Notwithstanding America's attitude on the mandate over Armenia is depending upon the American people and has not lost her confidence in us."

For the state of Maryland "Bundle Day" will be observed Tuesday, October 19, and will afford a splendid occasion for the exercise of charity toward those unfortunates whose needs cry aloud. Things that are needed are coats, dresses, sweaters, skirts, blankets, petticoats, overcoats, heavy hose and underwear, woolen gloves and mittens, boots and shoes and CHILDREN'S CLOTHES OF EVERY SORT. Send these articles of discarded clothing to any Public School or State Headquarters, 453 Title Building, Baltimore, or to the Enoch Pratt Library. They will be collected and forwarded to their destination by the proper parties.
