CHESTERTOWN - JULY 19, 1890

HE WAS AWFULLY BAD.

But Couldn't Fight Because of His Contract.

New York Sun.

A man who was taking in some of the sights at Brighton the other day was led to notice a short-haired young man in a loud check suit, who was accompanied on his rounds by a couple of younger chaps, who seemed to dote on him and to imitate his actions as far as possible. After awhile he with the short hair seemed to get up an aching for a row and he drove the first peg by approaching the man in a swaggering way and impudently demanding:

"Is you the cove that's got a cigar for me?"

He received an emphatic negative, when up went his eyebrows, and he continued:

"De cove is inclined to be sassy, but perhaps it's cause he don't know me. Chollie you and Dan give him an eye-opener," and while he assumed a supposed graceful pose, with his hat planted over his ear, "Chollie" approached and whispered:

"He's bad—awfully bad! He's de wickedness fightoh in New York, he is. He's going to challenge any kid of his age to a finish—any kid in de world."

"He'd better go and dig for clams!" growled the man."

"What's dat?" demanded the awfully bad. "De cove wants his eye punched and if it wasn't fur dat copper over dere I'd do it. Perhaps he'll do me the honoh to step around behind the pavilion?"

The man said he would and did, and as he reached a scluded spot and peeled his coat the wickedest observed:

"I begs de cove's pardon, but I just remembered dat I am under contract not to fight until I meets de Oswego Whirlwind. I should like to put him sleep, but it would be again de contract."

It was suggested that the other two might sail in for him, but he replied:

"Chollie is me trainer and Dan is me backer and it would be again de contract."

The man then suggested that he had a licking in store for the three and that he should begin business in thirty seconds, but before fifteen had elapsed he was alone.

Keep Cool.

Don't swear. Don't get mad. Don't get full. Above all things, don't ask everybody you meet: "Is this hot enough for you?" Be calm. Be philosophical. There are two months of hot weather ahead of us and it is bad policy to lose your temper and ruin your moral character just because the mercury is trying to' make up for lost time. Keep cool. If you can't keep cool, keep as cool as you can. Wear light flannel clothing. Avoid iced drinks of any kind. Drink freely of cool water, keep out of the sun, wear a straw hat and don't run for a car if you have to wait an hour in consequence. If you get over heated, put on your slippers and hold your wrists under a stream of water from a hydrant. The first few days of hot weather is a critical time for everyone. Persons will do exceedingly rash things under the irritation of slight discomfort. This benefits no one but the doctor. "The only way to live long," says the historian, Bancroft, "is never to lose your temper." The heat of summer is not as great a trial as we are apt to think. Even life under the equator is endurable if one is only self-possessed. Ice is not nearly so indispensible as is generally supposd. It does quite as much harm as good, and should be used chiefly to keep eatables from spoiling. A noted physician said recently that more persons are injured by drinking ice water than by drinking anything else, which is not so much an argument for drinking beer as for not taking anything too cold into the stomach. Lastly, don't abuse General Greely. He is doing the best he can.—Inquirer.

Gathered Treasures.

Afflictions are but the shadow of God's wing.

When Death, the great Reconciler, has come, it is never our tenderness that we repent of, but our severity.

Life is not so short but there is always time enough for courtesy.

Whatever else may be wrong, it must be right to be pure—to be just and tender, and merciful and honest.

No matter how humble the home may be, there will be joy and peace in it if the cheif corner-stone of life is the Saviour.

Let us be of good cheer, remembering that the misfortuness hardest to bear are those which never come.

He that cannot forgive others breaks the bridge over which he must pass himself; for every man has need to be forgiven.

Fidelity, good humor, and complacency of temper, out live all the charms of a fine face, and make the decay of it invisible.

Kind words are the brightest flowers of earth's existence; they make a very paradise of the humblest home that the world can show.

When we trade with virtue we do but buy pleasure with the expense of time.

Fortunes are made by taking opportunities; charecter is made by making them.

Small kindnesses, small courtesies, small considerations, habitually practiced in our social intercourse, give a greater charm to the character than the display of great talents and accomplishments.

"LITTLE BO PEEP

had lost her sheep and couldn't tell where to find them." So the old nursery rhyme says, and it goes on to bid her "Leave them alone and they'll come home and bring their tails behind them." All this may be true of lost sheep, but if you have lost your health you cannot afford to leave that alone. It will not come back of its own accord. Some people brag that they never bother about colds. They "let them go the way they came." Alas! too often the victims go—to a consumptive's grave. Until very recently a cure for Consumption, which is universally acknowledged to be scrofula affecting the lungs, would have been looked upon as miraculous, but now people are beginning to realize that the disease is not incurable. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure it if taken in time and given a fair trial. This world-renowned remedy will not make new lungs, but it will restore diseased ones to a healthy state when other means have failed. Thousands gratefully testify to this. It is the most potent tonic, or strength restorer, alterative, or blood-cleanser, and nutritive, or flesh builder known to medical science. For Lingering Coughs, Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, "Liver Complaint" and Dyspepsia or Indigestion, it is an unequaled remedy.

The Future of Wheat.

Mr. Pillsbury, the miller of Minneapolis, whose celebrity is recognized through out the world for the quality and quantity of his products, said in an interview:

The world has been eating up its surplus wheat for some years, and it has now approached close to its exhaustion of that great surplus. In this country our consumption is increasing 8,000,000 bushels annually, and the demand from abroad is increasing, as the advance in civilization demands better food. This demand is obviously against a diminishing supply, as the acreage of wheat reached its maximum development five years ago. These facts make it possible and probable that prices will be forced up, and stay up to remunerative standards. This will relieve to some extent the present industrial depression in this country.

Don't marry the young man who leaves his mother to find her way home as best she can on a dark night, while without a thought or apology to the old lady, he looks after you. One of these days when the novelty is worn off, he will leave you to go alone as best you can, while he seeks his selfish enjoyment at the club.

In Madisonville, Ky., the authorities have passed an ordinance forbidding brass bands from meeting for the purpose of learning new pieces of music within 300 feet of a dwelling house.

Cannon cast for the British Government are now fitted with a devise by which the guns can be aimed at night.

France has half as many people as the United States, but her national debt is twice as great as ours.

Our little girl when but three weeks old broke out with eczema. We tried the prescription from several good doctors, but without any special benefit. We tried S. S. S., and by the time one bottle was gone, her head began to heal, and by the time she had taken six bottles she was completely cured. Now she has a full and heavy head of hair—a robust healthy child.
