FOOT BALL NOTES.

The Secretary of the Intercollegiate Athletic Association make this official statement: The games played, with the scores, were: St. John's vs. Washington, won by St. John's, score 15 0; St. John's vs. Western Maryland, won by Western Maryland, score 12-2; Maryland Agricultural vs. St. John's, won by Maryland Agricultural, score 20 4; Washington vs. Western Maryland, won by Washington score 5-0; Maryland Agricultural vs. Washington, won by Maryland Agricultural, score 35-0.

The game scheduled between Western Maryland and Maryland Agricultural was not played on account of the absence of duly appointed officials, and the Athletic Association decided that the failure to play this game was unavoidable, and that neither of the teams involved should suffer any penalty whatever.

The association empowered the athletic committee to arrange a new date for the playing of the game, if possible, and resolved that the decision of such committee should be final.

The athletic committee, after a vain effort to select a date that would work no hardship to either of the two colleges, decided that no game between Western Maryland and the Maryland Agricultural Colleges should be played, and the committee gave as a reason for such conclusion that an arbitrary selection of a time and place for the game would be in the nature of a penalty upon either of the colleges whose athletic interests might be adversely affected by such arbitrary selection of a time and place.

Therefore, it is true that the series of games in competition for the intercollegiate banner has been finished, with the records of the teams as follows:

Maryland Agricultural College—Won 2, lost 0.
St. John's College—Won 1, lost 2.
Washington College—Won 1, lost 2.
Western Maryland College—Won 1, lost 1.

The Washington College football team, accompanied by a score of "rooters," journeyed to College Park last week and were defeated Saturday by the Maryland Agricultural College, the score being 35 to 0

The result was a big surprise to the admirers of W. C., as a victory was hoped for and almost expected, and when the news of Washington's overwhelming defeat reached the News and was told to others it was, at first, hardly believed. The team was said to be in better condition than at any time previous during the season. This game ended the season for W. C.

Washington's players, it is stated, lacked confidence. It is also said they played "too high" and were repeatedly swept off their feet.

The Maryland Agricultural eleven is, probably, the most perfectly assembled football machine that this college has ever mustered, and their playing is a brilliant example of the possibilities of the new game.

Washington's line was crossed six times. This makes M. A. C.'s chances very good if they meet Western Maryland.

Maryland Agricultural was without the services of Captain Cooper, (of Worton, this county,) who is said to be the greatest player who ever donned a football suit at M. A. C., and who is the star and backbone of the team of 1906.

In the first half, Washington kicked off, and in about five minutes M. A. C. scored the first touchdown. The second soon followed, but Washington braced and no more scoring was done in this half.

In the second half, M. A. C. scored almost at will, and made four touchdowns

Fullback White, who is a tower of strength for W. C., and upon whom is depended the task of carrying the ball to a great extent, was injured, having his shoulder dislocated, early in the first half. He still kept his position and used one shoulder when smashing into the line. The halves were 25 minutes each.
