CHIROPRACTIC

The method that succeeds after all other methods fail.

It is estimated that each year, at least one million people are turning to and finding permanent relief from their ills from the great Health System of Chiropractic.

Chiropractic does not claim to be a cure all, but successfully corrects the large majority of sufferers who turn to practitioners of the new system for relief.

Discovered in 1895 by a layman, D. D. Palmer, Chiropractic, has grown by leaps and bounds until today over 30 States legally recognize Chiropractic as a separate and distinct healing art.

Chiropractic appeals to people who think. Its patients include some of the world's greatest men and women. It is not a new or untried method or seeking to hold out hopes for the "Miracle Seekers," or incurables, but it does offer to prove that thousands of so called incurables can actually be restored to health by this new method.

If you are sick of being sick do not let prejudice or anything else keep you from getting well. Consult Dr. Dill today.

WOMAN SO ILL WASHED DISHES SITTING DOWN

Mrs. Ashcroft's Remarkable Recovery After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Covington, Ky.—"I was so weak and nervous I could hardly do my housework as I could not stand because of the bearing-down pains in my back and abdomen. I sat down most of the time and did what I could do in that way—as washing dishes, etc. One day a book describing Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines was put in my mail-box. I saw how the Vegetable Compound had helped others so I gave it a trial. I had to take about a dozen bottles before I gained my strength but I certainly praise this medicine. Then I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood medicine for poor blood. I was cold all the time. I would be so cold I could hardly sit still and in the palms of my hands there would be drops of sweat. I also used the Sanative Wash and I recommend it also. You may publish this letter and I will gladly answer letters from women and advise my neighbors about these medicines."—Mrs. HARRY ASHCROFT, 632 Beech Avenue, Covington, Kentucky.

TELEPHONE

New Bell System Device May Be Used By Banks To Check Up On Handwriting.

It is expected that the new system of sending pictures over telephone wires, perfected by the engineers of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and the Western Electric Company, will be of great utility in the financial world and a source of protection alike to bankers and their depositors.

SIGNATURES SENT BY WIRE FROM NEW YORK TO CHICAGO

Not only is it possible to send photographs over the wires and have them reproduced with the utmost fidelity, but cartoons, sketches, fingerprints, music and specimens of handwriting have been transmitted successfully in this way between New York and Chicago. Bankers are especially interested in the results with handwriting, as they foresee a quick and sure method of verifying signatures on checks which have been sent from far away and offered for collection. Under the new system, when there is any reason to doubt the authenticity of the name on a check, a picture can be taken of the signature and flashed immediately to the bank on which the check is drawn, where it can be determined at once whether or not it is a forgery.

Court proceedings also may benefit from the new process in the securing, without delay, of exact reproductions of deeds, mortgages, depositions, requisitions and other legal documents.

PERSHING PHONES OFFICIAL FAREWELL

Calls Up Generals In New York, Chicago, Omaha And San Francisco, Assuring Them Latch String Is Always Out.

When General Pershing retired from the United States Army last month he made use of the Long Distance telephone to bid farewell to his fellow-generals and to assure them that a warm welcome would await them in the Pershing home. Many thousand miles of Bell System wires were used to establish the connections and enable the retiring Commander to say the words of farewell which closed forty-two years of active service in the American Army.

The circuits for the Long Distance calls were built up through the Central Offices of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company in Washington, where the calls originated. Many "repeater" or amplifying units were joined in the circuits at intervals across the continent, so that the General's voice reached its destination nearly as clearly and distinctly as though the conversation were taking place over the span of only a few miles.

Reaching Maj. Gen. Robert L. Bullard, commander of the Second corps area, at New York, the general inquired as to his health.

"Bully, bully!" replied General Bullard.

General Bullard sought to recall a song he declared Pershing had sung in their cadet days at West Point, "Faint Heart Ne'er Won Fair Lady," he said the title was, but Pershing laughingly disclaimed knowledge of the tune, and Bullard sang it lustily over the wire to remind him.

"I thought of you today when I saw the Twenty-ninth division march past and remembered what splendid work they did under you in the Meuse-Argonne," General Pershing told Maj.-Gen. Charles G. Morton, San Francisco.

Reminding his fellow-generals, that they, too, would soon retire, he added:

"And remember, my latchstring will be always out for you."

TELEPHONING IN JAPAN

If you call central on the telephone in Japan the operator says "moshi, moshi" when she answers you, and then asks you "nanban," which means "number please." Suppose you were calling Aoyama 1243, you would say "Aoyama issen ni hyaku go ju san ban." At the close of a telephone conversation the Japanese say "sayonara," which means "goodby."

Rhode Island, the smallest State in the Union, has more telephones than the entire Republic of China, although China has over 3,400 times as much territory as Rhode Island and over 600 times as many inhabitants.

There were more telephones in the United States ten years ago than there are today in all foreign countries combined.

CALVES NEED SPECIAL CARE

Rush of Other Work Likely to Cause Neglect When Good Attention Always Pays.

Calves born in the spring are likely not to have as good an opportunity for proper development as those born earlier in the winter, many farmers have found. The rush of outside work detracts from their care and interest in them at a time when such attention always pays best.

All young animals worth raising should be well fed from the start. If possible, they should be fed whole milk three times a day until at least one week old. As a general rule, 12 pounds of milk a day for each 100 pounds of live weight should be fed. This rule may be followed approximately for all ages and for all kinds of liquid food.

When quite young the calf should have access or be encouraged to eat the following dry grain mixture after its feeding of milk or gruel food—30 pounds cornmeal or hominy, 30 pounds wheat bran, 30 pounds ground oats and 10 pounds of oil meal. This is a mixture recommended by the state college at Ithaca, N. Y.

Feed Calf Regularly and Abundantly.

Choice second-cutting clover or alfalfa hay should be provided after the calf is two or three weeks of age.

Where skim milk is not available and whole milk too expensive, a substitute can be used after the calves are three weeks of age. A gruel made from equal parts of soluble blood flour, hominy feed, red dog flour, and linseed oil meal should give fair results. The correct proportions are one pound of mixture to eight pounds of water. The ingredients should be mixed first with a small amount of cold water and then hot water should be added in the proper amount at not over 145 degrees F. When cool, the mixture is in the same proportion as skim milk. Hay and the dry grain mixture should be provided.

The calf born in spring ordinarily should not go to pasture before early fall, but should be kept in a clean, dry stall away from the flies and heat, and fed regularly and abundantly.

HARD WORK OF COW TESTERS

Must Keep Records of Animals in Association and Figure Out the Proper Rations.

The work of a cow tester is to make and keep records of the herds of cows in the association and to figure out the proper rations and advise with the farmers as to the feeding and care of the dairy herd. A tester must be thoroughly competent to operate a Babcock tester and to figure out the records of the different cows in the herd, according to their production. A knowledge of proper feeding and balancing of a ration is very essential to the work.

MINERAL MATTER ESSENTIAL

Dry Cow Should Be Fed Legume Hays Including Cowpeas, Alfalfa and the Clovers.

It is good practice to feed the dry cow well in order that she may store up a reserve of mineral matter. The feeds best used at such a time are the legume hays including cowpeas, alfalfa, soybeans and the clovers, named in the order of their lime content. High phosphorus-bearing feeds are wheat, bran, cottonseed meal, standard wheat middlings and linseed meal. Grass hays, corn silage and the majority of corn products are low in both lime and phosphorus.

Feeds of High Value.

Alfalfa, clover, peas, oats and bran are especially valuable to the dairyman because they contain a large amount of protein.

Balanced Ration for Cow.

A balanced ration for a dairy cow is entirely different from that of a fat steer because their requirements are different.

Step Toward Good Health.

Dry, clean stalls mark one step toward healthy barns.
