REV. MR. BAKER INSTALLED.

Rev. C. Clarence Baker, formerly of Georgetown, Kent county, Md., has met with a flattering reception at his new charge in Wolcott, N. Y. The following is what the Lake Shore News of Wolcott, N. Y., says:

The installation of Rev. C. Clarence Baker as pastor of the Wolcott Presbyterian church took place at the church last Friday night.

The church was full. The choir gave several numbers that were highly appreciated.

The moderator was Rev. Alpheus P. Meeker, of Fairville, who is totally blind. He had the program prepared with raised letters and one who did not know in advance would not suspect that his eyes are sightless, for he sang every verse of every hymn and held his book open before him as did the others.

The sermon was by Rev. Paul Moore Strayer, of the Third church, Rochester, an old Maryland friend of Mr. Baker. He came on the last train. His sermon was on "Temptation," one he had preached the Sunday morning before from his own pulpit and it was highly thought of by all who heard him

The charge to the pastor was a pleasing talk by Rev. Carl Scovel, of Newark. Dr. Stewart, president of Auburn Seminary, gave the charge to the people, which was a most entertaining talk.

After the service an informal reception was given for Rev. and Mrs. Baker. This was. Baker's first visit to Wolcott, she having come here in the afternoon from attending the graduation of her husband from the Auburn Seminary.

Mr. Baker is pleased to be called to the Wolcott church, which has come to be known as an incubator for bright young men. The church Started Dr. L. M. Clarke on his way to Cuthbert Hall's pulpit in Brooklyn. Rev. Dr. W. A. Rice went from here to take the pulpit of a noted divine in Newark, N. J., and then graduated through the Tract Society into the ministerial relief of the Congregational church. Rev. Halsey B. Stevenson left this pastorate to become librarian of the Auburn Theological Seminary and Rev. Charles T. Shaw, the last incumbent, was called to Jamestown at double his salary here.

Waldo T. Brubaker's Two Years of Success With The Windsor Hotel.

No clearer demonstration of the virtue of fair dealing and enterprise could be presented than that afforded by the success which has come to the Windsor Hotel, Thirteenth and Filbert streets, under the management of Waldo T. Brubaker.

WINDSOR ONE OF THE OLDEST.

Mr. Brubaker assumed the management of the Windsor in 1907, and every year since that date has seen the hostelry add to its facilities and advance in public esteem.

The history and development of the Windsor are typical of changes that have occurred in the development of Philadelphia and surrounding country. In 1860 the hotel was known as the Smedley House. In those days, and for many years afterward, the hostelry was conducted after the manner of a country tavern, and was known far and wide among farmers and rural townsmen of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Maryland.

CONSTANTLY ENLARGED.

So much for the Windsor as it was. To-day it stands one of the largest and best equipped houses in Philadelphia. The building has been constantly added to in recent years, the latest addition being a large building adjoining at the left, the first floor of which has been converted into a private dining room large enough to accommodate an immense company. The floor is of polished hardwood, making the room easily convertible into a dance hall. This room is in two sections, and communicates with the upper floors and kitchen by private stairways and halls.

In the basement is a private ice making plant and the largest hotel power plant but one in Philadelphia. Here also is located the bakery which furnished the table with fresh bread and pastry at all hours, and in defiance of external conditions.

Under the management of Mr. Brubaker the quality of the cuisine has been advanced to meet the most exacting modern demands. Banqueters have come to recognize the excellence of the service and constitute a regular patronage.

THE WINDSORS LOCATION.

The Windsor is advertised as being "midway between the two great railroad terminals," and this in itself is one reason why this comfortable and inviting house claims such a generous patronage among the commercial men of the country. Being near to the business whirl, the centre of the city vortex, the Windsor is yet in a quiet, clean neighborhood, while traffic roars and rumbles on all sides not a square away.

MR. BRUBAKER'S PERSONALITY.

Success in a large measure has come to the Winsdor through the personalty of Mr. Brubaker. The prime component of success is, we believe, courtesy. Mr. Brubaker has the tact and way, in his treatment, of all those doing business with the hotel, from guest down to the veriest office boy, and consequently none ever have a fear of getting the "icy shivers" or the "I-don't-know-you" sort of stare when they enter the Windsor exchange.

WANTED—A BOY.

Wanted—a boy who is manly and true,
One who will never swear, drink, smoke or chew
One who scorns never to lie or deceive,
One with a countenance all will believe,
One who won't hear or repeat a bad tale,
One in his lessons, you know will not fail,
One who don't speak of "the guy," or "old man,"
One who won't help in some meanness to plan,
One who thinks parents are wiser than he Knows that the streets are a bad place to be,
One who protects the dum brutes from all harm,
Causing no person a needless alarm,
One who won't cheat, but plays all games fair,
One in all deals is called perfectly square,
Tell me today if you know such a boy,
Tell him his life will reap mostly of joy.

SAY IT NOW.

Speak the kind word, do the kind act,
Ere the years have onward sped,
Give me all the love and sunshine,
While I'm living, not when dead.

Tell me I have made life brighter,
By the loving words I've said,
Tell me I have cheered and helped you
While I'm living, not when dead.

Oft the way is rough and lonely,
And my wounded heart has bled;
Cheer me when the way is dreary,
Love me now, not when I'm dead.

In the grave there is no heartache,
We'll forget where sorrows led,
Speak some words of hope and comfort
While I'm living, not when dead.

Tell me I've been true and faithful,
Tell me now ere life is fled;
In the grave I cannot hear you,
Say it now, not when I'm dead.

WASHINGTON COLLEGE.

BY REV. H. K. MILLER.

In Chestertown in Maryland State,
On the hill above the town,
Is the school above I mention,
With modest mien and no pretention.

On the campus in the town,
With the country all around,
Like a queen wearing crown,
Is the school of much renown.

'Twix the shores of Queen and Kent,
On its mission wholly bent,
Gracefully flows the Chester river,
Past the town with scarce a quiver.

From the College dormitory,
From the halls of oratory,
Just beyond the school in story,
Rolls the river in all its glory.

On its bosom like a ferry,
Sail and steaming boats that carry
All the traffic day by day,
To metropolis beyond the bay.

Crowning now the river shore,
Just the same as years of yore,
Teaching funds of ancient lore
To the rich and to the poor.

Like the father of this nation,
To whom we love to make oblation,
He who was our first great statesman,
To him you claim to be relation.

Nimbus aurola around you cluster,
Shining with the noonday lustre:
Fame for self thou hast won,
Like our own great Washington.

Many are the traditions
Gained by you in your missions,
Teaching young with much ambition
To be the world's great patricians.

Many climb that thing of knowledge,
Which alone we call a college,
Gathering fruit, good and evil,
Ancient, modern and mediæval.

Cupid like, you are a lover,
Platonic like the love of mother,
Fraternal each with one another,
Calling one another brother.

I was to you but a lot
When you took me as a tot,
But from you a start I got,
In the life that is my lot.

Indeed to me you was a friend,
Gave my life an upward trend,
All my thoughts that way to bend,
Till I begun that way to tend.

Many children you have taken,
None of them have you forsaken,
First their minds you did awaken,
In this I think I'm not mistaken.

Till with Virgil they could wrestle,
And with Horace they could battle,
Homer, too, they could rattle,
Wise men grew from infant prattle.

Used the silver spoon called knowledge,
Feeding freshmen in the college,
Till we could lisp and we could stammer
On the knee of foster mamma.

Language dead and language living,
Foster mother still kept giving,
Taught the odes and taught the grammer,
Drove it in as with a hammer.

Mental fibre growing tall,
Till we thought we knew it all,
Knew the language, dead and quick,
Which she drove with every lick.

Taught us Alpha, Beta, Gamma,
Forced it in as with a rammer,
Till we cried, Mamma, oh mamma,
And thought it said not "lam" her.

She was trying to inspire
Our lives a little higher,
Setting genius as on fire,
Of this she never tire.

The work in there was preparation,
Laying there a firm foundation,
While the college was in session,
Outside we get our education.

In there we get an inspiration
To be a part of this great nation,
To show the world the co-relation
Between the school and our high station.

Don't you think I want to flatter,
When I call you Alma Mater,
If I did what would it matter?
Scores of others call you Mater.

My Alma Mater!
My pretty mother!
You dandled me upon your knee
To mental heights where I could see.

But the world is moving on,
Some have come and some have gone,
Others yet the world do storm,
I hope they will do it no great harm.

Some are yet on college height,
In their mental lofty flight,
Yearn to soar from present plight,
To show the world their shining light.

The world is dark and needs the glow
Of all the light that you can show,
From college hall you soon may go
Carrying weal or carrying woe.

But go slow, John Barleycorn,
That bell tolled for others ere you was born,
And when you are dead few will mourn,
And this old world will still roll on.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving remembrance of our sister, LYDIA A. HICKMAN, who died at her home in Betterton one year ago, May 8th.

O the memory of that evening
As we stood with aching heart
Seeing one we loved so dearly
Pierced by deaths awful dart.

How hard we tried to save her,
But our cares were all in vain;
The savior took her from us.
She is with the angels free from pain.

Long are the days and sad the home
Whence thy bright smile is gone,
But oh, a brighter home than ours
In heaven is now thy own.

God needed one more angel
To join the heavenly band,
So he bent with loving smile
And clasped our sister's hand.

Into sweet rest she entered,
No more to suffer or weep;
She is smiling upon us from heaven.
Our sister has fallen asleep.

Sleep on, beloved, sleep and take thy rest,
We loved thee well, but Jesus loved thee best,
Thine is a perfect rest, secure and sweet, Farewell, farewell.

—W. H. H.

In sad but loving remembrance of my dear husband and father, who departed this life one year ago June 10, 1908, JOHN THOMAS KENDALL.

One long year has passed away,
One sad year since that fatal day,
The one I dearly loved and prized
Lies cold in death before my eyes.

I miss his coming footsteps,
I miss him everywhere;
Home is not what it used to be
Since he has passed away.

No words will ever seem so sweet,
As the words he used to say;
No day will ever seem so sad
As the day he passed away.

—BY HIS WIFE.

We sit alone tonight at the table,
And gaze on his empty chair,
And memory takes us back to the day
When dear papa sat there.

But ne'er again while life shall last
As on our lonely road we tread,
Will we be called upon to lift
That tired and weary head.

Don't waste your time in controversy. Life is too short. We heard a phonograph the other day rendering a song "let trouble amble by." Some one has said, "when church people fight about religion, and tramps about grub, it is a pretty good sign that both religion and grub are scarce." Arguing about religion never does much good. "Argifying" Bible classes soon peter out because they arrive nowhere. When I was a boy, there was a store near by where a group of men gathered every night and "talked." They would generally drift around to religion and argue and argue. We boys would stand around in open-mouthed wonder as we listened to these great and wonderful men. Years rolled on as they talked. I went to college and became a man and a Christian. I tried twice to lead the chief arguer into the Kingdom, but in vain. Not one of that little corner-store circle, with all their arguing, died a Christian. They all failed to get anywhere. It is the same in business, politics, and on the ball-field, the disputer is a nuisance and rarely arrives. The quiet, silent man who does things which talk for him is the man who convinces.

THIRD OPERATION PREVENTED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chicago, Ill. — "I want to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. I was so sick that two of the best doctors in Chicago said I would die if I did not have an operation. I had already had two operations, and they wanted me to go through a third one. I suffered day and night from inflammation and a small tumor, and never thought of seeing a well day again. A friend told me how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped her, and I tried it, and after the third bottle was cured."—MRS. ALVENA SPERLING, 11 Langdon Street, Chicago, Ill.

If you are ill do not drag along at home or in your place of employment until an operation is necessary, but build up the feminine system, and remove the cause of those distressing aches and pains by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?
