COW ON TEST SHOWS NEED OF SUMMER GRAIN

For several years dairy authorities have expressed the opinion that cow owners could not rely on pasture alone for milk and make money in the long run by doing it. So far, however, this has been largely theory, and it is only very recently that real evidence has been obtained to settle the question.

For two whole years several cows have been under observation at the Larro Research Farm, Redford, Michigan, where the comparative value of grain and pasture was tested out to their complete satisfaction.

The record of cow No. 76 during 1924 and 1925 is typical of the results obtained. She is an ordinary grade Holstein, a pretty good producer and as good a cow as could have been chosen for such an experiment.

Throughout her whole lactation in 1924, this cow was kept on a grain ration, with absolutely no pasture. She produced as high as 39 lbs. per day, and kept up a good, even milk flow, averaging 31 lbs. per day throughout the milking period.

Towards the end of the 1924 lactation, cow No. 76 showed an entirely normal decline in milk production. She was in splendid condition as the result of her year-round grain ration, and gave evidence of this fact by starting off her 1925 lactation by producing up to 47 lbs. of milk per day—8 lbs. higher than her performance in the preceding year.

On May 16, 1925, this cow went on pasture. For ten days her milk production moved up, but after the first stimulus of the grass tonic wore off, she fell steadily in milk as her grain ration was reduced.

Two months after she went on pasture, when she was getting only 2 lbs. of grain per day, she had fallen from 40 lbs. of milk per day to 22½ lbs. This was true though pasture was plentiful and good. She simply was not getting sufficient nourishment of the right kind, and her milk yield was cut practically in half.

The production continued to drop off until the 280th day, when she was producing only 10 lbs. daily, as against 25 lbs. daily in the previous lactation at the same time.

No dairyman could ask for more convincing proof that reliance on grass alone is costly, and that a regular grain ration, with pasture throughout the summer, pays real dividends in milk production.

DAIRY

FACTS ABOUT COSTS OF PRODUCING MILK

That feed forms more than 50 per cent of the total cost of milk production, and that farms where cows are kept for a city milk-production service have much higher costs, are two of the items found in a recent two-year survey taken on 20 farms in Walworth county. This was done by men employed by the experiment station, says a writer in the Wisconsin Farmer.

In 1923 the average cost of producing 100 pounds of milk was $1.96 and the cost of producing a pound of butterfat was 56 cents. The average price received that year by these producers was $2.39 per 100 pounds of milk and 68 cents per pound of butter fat, showing 23 cents margin on milk and 12 cents margin on fat over costs.

In 1924 the average cost of producing milk was $2
