FAIRLEE NOTES.

In the rural districts but little work of any kind can be done.

Fox hunters have had several "runs" lately, a number taking part in the sport.

Many who thought they had purchased sufficient coal in the fall to run them through winter, find that they will need more.

The roads are not in as bad condition as one might suppose they would be after such a snow blockade. They were in good shape, however, before the snow came.

Mr. Alfred Bramble is critically ill at his home in Baltimore with typhoid fever. His father, Mr, James Bramble, is by his bed side. We hope for his speedy recovery.

The laboring people are feeling the cost of living these days. In fact they are not able to buy some necessities of life. Our merchants say they are selling very little meat.

Six or more are to be initiated in the Fairlee Grange this Wednesday evening if the weather permits. And there are more to follow. The membership of this grange is increasing rapidly.

Many availed themselves of the opportunity of reaching Baltimore on last Saturday morniug via Tolchester. At this writing the bay about Tolchester is filled with drifting Susquehanna ice and debris.

A number in our vicinity have placed phones in their homes recently. A phone in one home makes a demand for one in another. They are becoming an actual necessity, time and money saver.

The Fairlee church supper at Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Smyth's last Monday evening was a very pleasant and successful event. Rain fell quite heavily during the evening. The supper was fine. The receipts show that it was partaken by seventy-five guests.

ROCK HALL NOTES.

Frogs are heard chirping their spring songs the past few days unmindful of the fact that the ground hog will begin a recreation here next week.

Mr. D. C. Kelley is under the professional care of Dr. Beall. He is suffering with a lameness in his left knee and is unable to walk except with crutches

Mr. F. C. Wilkins' flock of sheep are furnishing lambs at the rate of 2 to 1, and is the Squire's extra chore work which keeps him on the hustle all day.

Capt. G. F. Satterfield, having lots of time on his hands, is passing some of it at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Satterfield. Yachting seems to continue kindly with Frank.

While everyone hereabout feel sorry for the floods destructive onslaught along the Susquehanna river, yet as such destructiveness has taken place, it is hoped that the debris of wood will reach our waters, and many are on the lookout for drift wood. So far very little has been seen.

Some party or parties during the past week have mutilated a number of mail boxes on Rural Route 2 south of this town. Carrier Clayton as well as the owners are anxious to ferret out the guilty. Suspicion is centered on one or more and if they don't watch out Uncle Sam will get them.

Some of the oyster runners from here did pretty well with their cargoes during the freeze-up and for a week the tongmen who were harboring in Swan Creek were much encouraged with better prices for their catches but as soon as the ice blockade was lifted so that the whole fleet got out on Monday last, the prices dropped down to 20 cents again with prospects for a still further fall had their operations continued. The freshets from the Susquehanna put a stop to oystering on Tuesday.

GALENA NOTES

There are several laid up with colds, some threatened with pneumonia.

The steamer is expected up to Fredericktown to-day. She has not been able to get there since before Xmas.

Mr. Prettyman is having his ice-house filled this week with very thick ice. Two colored men, with their teams, are filling it for him.

George W. Starr got back from the South on Sunday evening, badly used up with erysipelas. He thinks there is no place like Galena.

Our butcher, Mr. John Newnam, finished filling both his ice-houses to-day. The meat boycott over the country is, we think, doing a great service to all us poor people. It looks like there might be a great army of vegetarians after this.

The new rector for Shrewsbury, Mr. Robinson, from Texas, has arrived at the parish house and expects to preach in Shrewsbury Church on Sunday next, and at St. Andrew's P. E. Church, Galena, Sunday afternoon at the regular hour, 3 o'clock.

We understand L. R. Vansant has gone into the coal business at Lambson. He received a car load a few days ago. Before then several of our people had to haul some from Black's. It took a two-horse team to haul a half ton of coal from there.

The snow is disappearing fast and the roads are getting a little better for travel. As most of the farmers have shut out the traveling public from crossing their fields it has forced them to travel on the public road as best they could, consequently there are more teams to be seen in our town.

The remains of Miss Helen Power, who died at the home of her niece, Mrs. Annie Yarnell, in Philadelphia, last Saturday night after an illness of several weeks, were brought to Millington by train and interred from her late home on Sassafras street at 10.30 a. m. on Wednesday in Millington cemetery. Undertaker John L. Smith in charge. There was present a large number of friends from Philadelphia, and from Kent and Queen Anne's counties. Miss Power was connected with Asbury M. E. Church and was a member of the various societies of the church. She was a very earnest worker, and in all of the different societies of the church, but she very especially gave her attention to the sick or needy of the community without regard to creed. Only to know that some one was in distress was sufficient to arouse her sympathy and she would soon be wanting to go with aid to their assistance being so considerate for others. Many are want to speak of her beautiful grace, and we shall all miss her so sorrowfully. The floral offerings were numerous and beautiful, coming from personal friends and the different societies of her church.

Our residents have stored more ice this winter than ever before. Twenty-two houses have been filled with about two thousand wagon loads of ice.

We are glad to report the scarlet fever seems to be about stamped out. Much credit must be given our town commissioners for their strict attention of the sick and the issuing and enforcing special ordinances for the protection of the residents.

The heavy ice which has had navigation closed along the Eastern Shore took its departure during the strong south winds of last week. We are now hemmed in with drift ice from the Susquehanna river. The Ericsson Line steamers have been cutting through the ice and landing here this week.

DOINGS AT ANNAPOLIS.

J. Bibb Mills, Esq., has registered in Annapolis as legislative agent of the Anti-Saloon League.

Representatives of St. John's, Western Maryland and Washington Colleges and of Charlotte Hall Academy appeared before the Senate Committee on Finance opposing the bill offered by Senator Crothers, of Cecil, doing away with continuing appropriations. Speaking for St. John's was Dr. Thomas Fell, president; Rev. Dr. T. H. Lewis, president, appeared in behalf of Western Maryland College; Dr. James W. Cain, president, spoke for Washington College, and Major George P. Thomas, principal, made an address in behalf of Charlotte Hall.

Dr. Cain, for Washington College, raised the point of an irrepealable contract, especially regarding a grant of £1,250 made in its early years and promised "irrevocably and forever." He stated that the cost of conducting Washington College was $28,000 a year, and that the income, exclusive of board of students, which about balances cost, has not reached $8,000 a year. It would be undignified and unwise, he thought, to have representatives of colleges running to Annapolis every two years seeking appropriations.

Washington College has 18 scholarships, carrying board and tuition, 35 other scholarships in the college department carrying tuition alone, 48 tuition scholarships in the normal department and 5 foundation scholarships.

All the speakers made a point of what they regarded as a contractural relation between the State and the institutions established by the various continuing appropriation acts. It was also brought out that the legality of the repealing measure may be attacked because at one swoop it undertakes to repeal many different acts and parts of different acts.

As the speakers announced their belief that it would be impossible, or, at any rate, very difficult to continue colleges without State aid, and that such being the case it should be arranged so that they should not be obliged to come as supplicants before every session of the Legislature.

School Commissioner John N. Bennett, of Kent, visited Annapolis this week and attended a meeting of the State Examiners to discuss legislation.

Mr. Harris has introduced a bill to place Miss Virginia Johnson on the retired school teachers' list.

Senator Slay, chairman of the Governor's commission on banking, has introduced a bill prepared by the commission creating a department of the State government to be known as the Banking Department.

The Bar of Baltimore city is favorable to the passage of an enabling act retaining Judge Pearce upon the bench of our circuit, as is evidenced by a large number of Baltimore lawyers petitioning the Legislature to pass such an act:
