THE TEST OF PROGRESS

The test of progress is whether or not it benefits the average person In past centuries the greatest progressive movements customarily benefited only the nobility and aristocracy. Social or scientific discoveries seldom touched the lives of the great body of citizens.

Our American progress has scattered its principal benefits to other developments of this century. The way. It is the every-day person whose life has been enriched and made happier by the great industrial developments of this century. The automobile, electricity, the raido—such agencies as these have revolutionized civilization.

We live in an age where prosperity belongs not to a single ruling class, but to every field of endeavor. No discovery of the time has failed to do its share or small, in the social and economic progress of the average person. The United States is in the midst of the greatest period of real progress in world hisory.

Nowadays when you see people going about with their noses in the air they may be merely looking at aircraft or counting the stories of a new skyscraper.

GAS IN INDUSTRY

During the past 15 years, use of gas in industry has increased more than 500 per cent. If gas were to be suddenly dispensed with, more than 300,000 workers would be thrown out of employment.

Gas has many advantages, such as cleanliness, flexibility, freedom from smoke, accurate control of heat,efficiency and economy that has given it more than 20,000 industrial uses. Recently, gas has come into favor as a cooling agency.

Those who forecast, some years ago, that electricity sounded the death knell of the gas industry, were poor prophets. In both the home and in industry gas flows increasingly important as its potentialities become better known.

Results of Thinking

Benefits from never wasting anything are clearly emphasized if we, as a scientist would, think about the matter, consider our condition and possibilities of "arriving" if we are prudent.

Just notice how people who save regularly do succeed.

TURKEY CROP BEST IN YEARS

Those who like dark meat and those who ,prefer ,white meat will have plenty of both this Thanksgiving.

One of the greatest crops of turkeys ever grown in the Pacific Northwest is steadily gobbling its way to the chopping block according to a survey made by Hyman H. Cohen, financial editor of the Oregon Journal.

The 1929 crop will be more than 10 per cent. greater than the record crop of 1928, the report states. Not only is the crop larger but it will show a better early quality than normal.

Famous turkey growing sections in the Northwest report as follows:

Central Oregon, 10 to 18 per cent. increase over last year.

Easton Oregon, 10 to 15 per cent. over the previous high record.

The Umpqua and Williamette Valleys will swell Oregons's total at least 10 per ceit.

Central and Northern Washington have an average increase of 18 per cent. with some sections reporting as high as 25 per cent. over former records.

Idaho's crop will range from 5 to 15 per cent. greater than a year ago with a possible average of 10 per cent.

Other sections of the country were generally reported normal or above. Only a few report decreases.

California claims an average increase of 10 per cent. in the northern and central section and as high as 15 per cent. in some parts of the southern part of the State.

Eastern States are fully up to normal, taking the territory as a whole.

In the Southern States, Texas has a large crop, Oklahoma about normal and other States fully well up to last year's volume.

The Ohio Valley reports this year's crop may be slightly less than normal. The same holds true in the Central Mississippi river valley States.

Dakotas and Minnesota report increases and Nebraska has a norml yield.

Reports from the Rocky Mountain region state crops will be normal to larger this year.

TELEPHONE PROGRESS

The work of the telephone in aiding the social and industrial progress of the world cannot be estimated.

The United States has 10,500,000 telephones and the number is increasing at the rate of 800,000 annually. Each year the American people send more than 26,000,000,000 messages.

We can at a reasonable cost, speak to many great foreign cities. Only 15 per cent of the world's telephones are unconnected with the American system. In a fraction of a second a voice by telephone travels to a listener across continents and oceans.

International civilization owes the telephone a great debt.

Community Building

Health Department Is of Highest Importance

Standards that a city health department ought to follow in the handling of contagious diseases are explained by Dr. W. W. Bauer in a series of articles in Hygeia Magazine, entitled "Your City and Your Health."

The citizen has a right to expect prompt quarantine of persons with a contagious disease and those who have been exposed. Furthermore the health department should investigate the source and the means of spreading of these epidemic diseases.

A community should have facilities for hospitalizing persons with contagious diseases. There should be a modern isolation hospital and not the old-fashioned, disgraceful pesthouse.

Taking care of those who have contagious diseases is important but it is not enough. The up-to-date health department must be active in making available the latest proved methods for preventing epidemics.

There are certain definite things a community should do about tuberculosis, which is perhaps the most common contagious disease there is except colds. There should be clinics for chest examinations, public health nurses to visit tuberculosis patients who are cared for at home and a modern, well equipped sanatorium. The community should also furnish an open air school for children of tuberculous parents or with apparent tendencies toward the disease.

Quebec Sees Value of Trees Along Highways

Commendable agitation has been started by various bodies throughout this province for the planting of trees along the highways of Quebec. Apart entirely from what the province has done toward such planning, quite a few rural municipalities have shown a willingness to accept the innovation. This is a movement that will have the approval of all who are interested in the beauty of our province. Tree-lined highways not only add to the attractiveness of rural districts themselves, but are a magnet to tourists. The planting of trees is not a costly undertaking and gives splendid returns for the labor and expense it involves. In many places in the United States special commissions have been appointed by legislatures whose sole duty it is to undertake tree planting. In New Jersey an act provides for a special commission "whose duty it shall be not only to plant trees along highways of the state, but to look after their welfare as well." Such a measure is worthy of emulation in Canada.—Montreal Star.

"Homey" Entrances

The simplest entrance to the home is often the most effective. It doesn't take an elaboration of balconies, buttresses, brackets, columns, beams and arches to make an entrance that will smile.

Here is another rule. Keep the entrance close to the ground. Entrances high above the ground look stilted, awkward, do not properly express the idea of home. We build high entrances for formal buildings like schools and courthouses. To get an entrance that sits close to the ground means also that the house must be set accordingly, which is as it should be.

Industries Important

Industrial development is a trend in the entire field and is more properly a state of mind, which is reflected in the living conditions of the army of the employed. This trend, this state of mind and this reflection is a sharp departure from the days of tenement districts and a steady development toward individualistic homes for working men and women. As a result, new industries mean additional homes, both contributing factors toward the city's growth, representatives of the chamber of commerce, builders and real estate men are pointing out.
