MICE IN HAT

Woman Doesn't Find It Out Until She Gets In Church.

Two ambulance surgeons, a squad of policeman, two ministers and several hundred other persons figured in an exciting scene at the Fourth Reformed Church, Trenton, N. J., Monday, when Mrs. James Emmons, a member of the congregation, was seized with hysterics.

Two innocent mice were responsible for the commotion. The excitement took place while services were in progress.

Mrs. Emmons' new Easter hat, which was of a costly pattern, was practically ruined. When she started for church she had to put on the new headgear hastily and had no time to make a thorough inspection. She placed several hatpins in and was angered because she had some difficulty in adjusting the pins. When she arrived at the church she was made uneasy by a peculiar sensation about her head. At first she thought nothing of this, but when it seemed to grow more violent she became frightened. Suddenly the hat was almost lifted from her head.

She screamed and interrupted Rev. Joseph Burton, who was delivering a strong sermon against extravagance by women. Some members of the congregation believed that Mrs. Emmons was simply suffering from a nervous attack. A message was sent to St. Joseph's Hospital. This brought Dr. George Hayes. The sufferer fought hard against being taken to the hospital.

The ambulance surgeon began to remove the woman's hat and discovered the source of the trouble. Two mice had sought warmth and comfort in the interior of the bonnet. They could not escape because Mrs. Emmons had run the hatpin through them. Dr. Hayes removed a hatpin from the ribs of one mouse. The rodent, still alive and active, made a dash for liberty. There were screams and faints. For a few moments Dr. Hayes had to leave the other mouse and his first patient to revive the others, who had either become hysterical or fainted.

The commotion was not subdued until all the women had succeeded in getting out of the crowded church.

IN MEMORIAM.

In sad but loving remembrance of my dear father Wm. M. Darrell who departed this life 2 yrs. ago, March 14, 1908.

Dearest Father how I miss you:
Miss you more than tongue can tell;
Every hour and day that passes
Brings me nearer with you to dwell.

In the grave yard softly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one I love so dearly
In his lone and silent grave.

Farewell dear father may your slumber
Be as gentle as your love,
And when God calls me homeward,
May we meet in heaven above.

BY HIS LOVING DAUGHTER ELSIE M. WALLACE.
