He is Maurice Chevalier, the smiling French entertainer whose love-making and love-singing have made him the idol of two continents.

The finest time on the farm by far
Was after the sun went down,
Along in September - when autumn leaves
Were yellow and russet brown;
When twittering cables of blackbirds flew
Across the gray twilight sky;
And tassel and blossom both told the tale
That Summer had drifted by.

Then over the ranks of the dead-ripe corn
Hung low the round Harvest Moon,
While up in its tower, the old windmill crooned
Its mellow and home-like tune.
Then down by the barn in the old corral,
Contented, the cattle lay
And chewed their cuds while the cotton-tails
Skipped 'round the new ricks of hay.

The bull frogs were still in the swamp at last,
And deep in the stacks of grain
The chorus of crickets and katydids
Played on in a minor strain.
And dull was the eye or the ear that failed
To catch in the twilight there,
The wonderful message of peace that rode
The wings of the autumn air.
