"BUT BOY, I HAD TO DIG"

Said the little red rooster: "Believe me, things are tough.
Seems that worms are scarcer, and I cannot find enough.
What's become of all those fat ones is a mystery to me;
There were thousands through that rainy spell—but now where can they be?"
Then the old black hen who heard him, didn't grumble or complain.
She had gone through lots of dry spells, she had lived through floods and rain.
So she flew up on the grindstone, and she gave her claws a whet,
As she said "I've never seen the time there wern't worms to get."
She picked a new undug spot; the earth was hard and firm.
The little rooster jeered "New ground! That's no place for worm."
The old black hen just spread her feet, she dug both fast and free.
"I must go to the worms," she said, "the worms won't come to me."
The rooster vainly spent his day, through habit, by the ways
Where fat, round worms had passed in squads back in rainy days.
When nightfall found him supperless, he growled in accents rough.
"I'm hungry as a fowl can be. Conditions sure are tough."
He turned then to the old black hen and said "It's worse with you;
For you're not only hungry, but must be tired, too.
I rested while I watched for worms, so I feel fairly perk.
But how are you? Without worms, too, and after all that work?"
The old black hen hopped to her perch; dropped her eyes, asleep.
And murmured in a drowsy tone, "Young man bear this and weep:
I'm full of worms and happy, for I've eaten like a pig;
The worms are there as always; but boy, I had to dig!"

University's Art Treasure

A full-size copy of Murillo's "Immaculate Conception" in mosaics is in the chapel of the Catholic university at Washington, a gift from Pope Pius XI. Three artists labored nearly four years in the Vatican mosaic studio to piece together nearly 800,000 bits of colored glass and of other mineral compounds which form the finished picture, the original of which is preserved in the Prado at Madrid. The mosaic is 9½ feet long and 6 feet wide. Without a frame, it weighs 6,600 pounds. The pieces are of 20,000 different tints and shades.

Beautiful Capetown

The sea voyage to South Africa is the fair weather voyage of the world. Capetown, once a remote outpost of civilization, is today one of the world's finest cities. It is not only beautiful and delightfully situated but the cape is historical as well, for it was here in 1487 that Dias saw the sea-route to India and this incited Columbus, who in his search for India found America instead. The discoveries between 1487 and 1497 mark this era as the dawn after the Dark ages and the first rays hit the cape when Dias discovered his way around.

Mythological Birds

Probably the best known of the fabulous birds of prey were the roc, which was a bird so enormous that it obscured the sun where it flew and carried away men in its talons; the phoenix, which was a bird with a beautiful voice and a long tail like a peacock's, which was supposed to rise from the ashes of fire; and the harpy, which was a terrible bird with a woman's face and breast and great claws like an eagle's, which pursued men who had sinned.

Magnification

The magnifying power of a telescope is proportional to its length as well as the shortness of focus of its eyepiece. Thus the use of different eyepieces yields different magnifying powers, but those exceeding 1,000 are seldom used because of the trembling of the earth's atmosphere. Compound microscopes may magnify as much as 4,000 times.

Printers' Debt to Franklin

Printing was brought to America with the early colonists and given a stable place by Benjamin Franklin, to whom all American printers look as their particular patron.

AN INEXCUSABLE RECORD

The accident problem is of vital interest to every citizen.

During 1930 accidents accounted for the deaths of 99,000 persons, and 10,000,000 injuries. For these accidents the American people paid $3,250,000.

Only five diseases cause more deaths than accidents, and between the ages of five and fourteen, accidents cause more than twice as many deaths as the most important disease. The death rate from accidents in this country is twice as high as in the principal European countries. The motor vehicle leads all other causes, accounting for 33,000 deaths in 1930, followed by home accidents with 30,000 and industrial accidents totaling 19,000.

But there is a brighter side to the accident picture. Child deaths have been decreased by persistent "safety" education. Accidents have been reduced 28 per cent in two years by 1600 industrial concerns reporting to the National Safety Council. The number of commercial trucks involved in accidents had gone down 19 per cent since 1927. And, in scheduled air transport, the death rate declined 87 per cent from 1928 to 1930.

But when 82,000 people can be killed in a single year in automobiles, homes and industries, every motorist evey employer and employe and all other citizens must recognize their own individual responsibility to help reduce the accident toll.

We have committed the Golden Rule to memory; let us now commit it to life.—Edwin Markham.

INTERNATIONAL CANNING CONTEST

A BALANCED MEAL IN GLASS

Grace Viall Gray

The International Canning Contest is offering splendid prizes for the best entry in the Balanced Meal Class. There are to be other prizes, too, for entries in the fruit, vegetable, meat, pickle, unusual packs and jams and jellies classes. Over 1,400 prizes with almost $5,000.00 in cash will be awarded. The contest is open to any woman or girl. Full particulars for entering the contest may be had by writing to Mrs. Grace Viall Gray, Log Cabin, Aurora, Illinois.

Imagine having a whole dinner ready in jars to be brought out whenever you need it. That is what many of our housewives can plan today. It takes all the worry out of serving unexpected guests. Then to, it lets the housewife prepare her meal on the day when she has more time so that when she is rushed she has only to take her meal from glass jars. Our meal may not include the nuts but it does include soup. And there are so many delicious soups which may be prepared and stored safely in glass jars to be used when needed. Imagine the flavor of well prepared "Green Pea Soup." Then there are tomato or vegetable soups of all kinds. The meat soups may include any number of kinds. Any favorite soup may be canned. Chicken broth or gumbo or the more hearty fish chowder as well as beef bouillon may all find their way into glass jars. Soups are processed for 3½ hours in boiling water, or for 50 minutes to an hour at 15 pounds pressure in a steam pressure cooker.

After soup comes the main part of the meal which may include any meat you may wish. If you have never tasted home canned meats you've no idea how good they are! Just every kind of meat may be canned: Beef stew, hamburger, roast or broiled steak. There may be chops, spare ribs or roast. Veal and lamb are great favorites. When the flock of chickens are culled they may all be canned at once. They may be prepared as stew, roast or fried. Accompanying the meat may be one of a dozen or more vegetables: tomatoes, okra, corn peas, lima or string beans, asparagus beets, spinach, kraut, squash or sweet potatoes. One of these vegetables may be made into a crisp, delicious salad serving with a favorite dressing. With this meal we may add some lovely pickles. There are so many to choose from, for the housewife likes to keep a variety on her cellar shelf.

The meal will include a jam or jelly. What a splendid variety there is to choose from: strawberry jam, orange marmalade or what have you.

For dessert there are the home canned fruits. She will choose the kind which is most suitable to follow the main part of her meal. These may be served either plain, with simple cookies or cake, or made into a pudding, cobbler or pie.

One little widowed mother, who teaches during the year, tells how she meets the demands on her time and money by raising a garden in the summer and then canning these vegetables and fruits for winter use. "I could never manage with my three children, who are in school, if these foods were not all ready for us to use when we get home for our meals. I know, too, that they are good for the children." A balanced meal in glass is a great convenience.

Kent County house wives have an abundance of fruit to put up for winter.
