MR. ROBERT MOFFETT, butcher, is now occupying his fine new building on High street, and the temporary building erected on the Public Square, has been removed to his lot on Cannon street. It is the first of the shacks to be removed.

J. D. URIE, ESQ., attorney, has sold to Mr. G. Wylie Hodgson, of Locust Grove, the big McWhorter farm, recently purchased by Rev. T. B. Gardner. This farm is located near Millington and contains about 350 acres.

THE finest field of corn in Kent is claimed by Andrew A. Woodall, on Mr. A. P. Prettyman's home farm, Galena. How 'bout it, Romie?

THE will of the late Harrison W. Vickers, Esq., was admitted to probate in the Orphans' Court for Kent county, Tuesday. It provides that the entire estate be left to his wife absolutely and that she act as executrix. The will is dated May 24, 1911, and was witnessed by S. P. Townshend, Esq., and J. C. Loud.

A VALUABLE COW belonging to Mr. R. C. Leaverton, in Quaker Neck, was struck by lightning on Monday morning last and instantly killed. He had $30 insurance on it.

THE Kent County Savings Bank have elected Cashier W. F. Russell, John D. Urie, Esq., and J. D. Bacchus as representatives to the State Bankers' Convention at Deer Park next week. Messrs. Merrick Clements and C. H. Price have been elected from the Chestertown Bank and Cashier W. B. Copper from the Third National.

W. C. TOWNSEND and Geo. F. Rouse each lost a horse this week.

IT was thought by many in the beginning of the strawberry season that the Armour factory would not be able to run half the time because of the scarcity of berries, but the rains of late have greatly increased the crop and the factory is running day and night. Last week they manufactured about seven hundred barrels of preserves and this week will far exceed that number.

THE rains have brought on the strawberries in abundance. Mr. Dan Woodall, near McGinniss' Corner, shipped 21 crates to Baltimore on which he cleared fifty cents! He thinks there are over 10,000 quarts now rottening on his 1½ acres. A little girl picked 65 quarts in a few hours one day this week!

THE storm of Thursday afternoon blowed down a number of trees in and near Chestertown. Mr. Subers was blown with a load of hay off his wagon near Mr. T. E. W. Crew's gate and the team went off home.

THE young ladies of Chestertown gave the young men a dance in Firemen's Hall Wednesday evening.

IT is said by many who travel from Chestertown to Tolchester that Mr. W. G. Skirven has the best tomato patch, and the finest field of wheat.

GREAT HAIL STORM

The outlying sections of Baltimore were visited by a hail and wind storm Monday night that did $50,000 damage. Several persons were injured, hot houses ruined, trees blown down and crops damaged. Some residents gathered enough hail to put in ice boxes while the boys pelted each other with the big hail. Kent county escaped. Here the rain was a great blessing. Mr. J. W. Duyer says next Saturday, 24th, will be the anniversary of the big hail storm which visited Kent some years ago.

Alaskan Wheat.—Mr. Paul Jones, of Phcenix, Arizona, is visiting his aunt, Mrs. W. Thomas Maslin, near Chestertown. He brought samples of Alaska wheat with him that was grown near Phoenix and it was a tremendous head.

Experiments by Mr. Swepson Earle in the growing of Alaskan bearded wheat in Queen Anne's county have shown it to be much more productive than the ordinary beardless Fultz wheat in use on the Eastern Shore.

The first seed was imported from Alaska by Dorchester county farmers, who paid $48 50 for a bushel of the grain. The seed is not sown as thickly as ordinary wheat. It is planted in the fall, but does not make much showing before spring, and then requires only about two months before reaching maturity.

One head of the Alaskan wheat contained 150 grains. The ordinary wheat has about 50 grains.
