FARMERS AND LAND OWNERS
Why not Look to Your Interest
In the Improvement of your lands, while grain is a good price and the indications have an upward tendency. Does it pay to let your land sour and degenerate for want of a stimulant? We answer no. The question arises how are we to get the best results from our crops and at the same time raise the standard of our land? We answer by the use of lime. Well, what Lime do you think will give the best results? We think
The Celebrated Kerr's Wrightsville Lime, which has stood the test for many years by our oldest and most prosperous land owners. We can furnish you with other limes as you may wish, all of which will be delivered to any station on the Balto. & Del. Bay R. R. at short notice on reasonable terms. Last but not least is the well known Standard Lime and Stone Company's Lime, which has been the greatest selling Lime on the market; this Lime runs 97 per cent. of pure Carbonate of Lime. We can deliver this Lime by water to any point on the Chesapeake Bay or tributaries on reasonable notice, We would be pleased to have you call on or write us before placing your orders.

It Hangs On
If it was only health, we might let it cling.
But it is a cough. One cold no sooner passes off before another comes. But it's the same old cough all the time.
And it's the same old story, too. There is first the cold, then the cough, then pneumonia or consumption with the long sickness, and life trembling in the balance.
Ayer's Cherry Pectoral
loosens the grasp of your cough. The congestion of the throat and lungs is removed; all inflammation is subdued; the parts are put perfectly at rest and the cough drops away. It has no diseased tissues on which to hang.
Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral Plaster draws out inflammation of the lungs.
Advice Free.

GRADE COWS.

An Interesting Experiment at the Kansas Agricultural College.

The Kansas Agricultural college has taken up a new line of experiment, says the Boston Cultivator, and we shall watch with much interest for the results. They have purchased a herd of good average Kansas cows, weighing from 1,000 to 1,100 pounds, and not particularly of the dairy type as it is understood, but such as many good farmers in that state and others must rely upon for their principal stock.

They will try to see if good food and good care will enable them to produce the dairy products at a profit from such cows, and, if there is a profit, to see how it compares with the profit from cows of the true dairy type, animals from stock bred for generations for dairy purpose. This will constitute a valuable object lesson for the students and for those who read the bulletins of their experimental work or the papers which republish them. But to make the experiment complete they should take the best of these cows and mate them with good bulls of dairy families, raise the heifer calves with care and ascertain how much better such grade stock may be than the cows it is bred from.

Not every farmer can restock his farm by buying a new herd of dairy cows, even if he is convinced that they will pay a larger profit, but almost any one can buy grade cows, heifers or calves of dairy type and blood or can procure the services of a good bull to mate with his best cows and can raise a few calves. The change can be made gradually easier than it could be made all in one year.

And yet farther investigation may be needed. The best grade calves will not always come from the best dairy cows. The contest for supremacy or hereditary influence between different bloods or between the dairy type and the beef type may be so great as to make the product of a mating of a very uncertain character. A good bull may succeed in implanting the character of the family he is bred from upon the offspring of a very inferior cow of no particular breeding and utterly fail to do the same upon the calf of another and better cow that is strongly marked with the character of some other blood or type of animal.

Adulterated Cream.

No sooner does an article of food become widely used than a certain class of men begin to devise methods to falsify and adulterate it. The use of cream is spreading rapidly in the cities, and, as a consequence, methods for giving the cream a false richness are in demand. Fortunately the men who get up these methods of adulterations are almost invariably profoundly ignorant of the possibilities of chemical analysis, and the crude compounds which they put upon the market are easily distinguished if enough is used to make the adulteration profitable. The latest method which has come to our notice is one for falsifying cream, giving it a richness not due to butter fat. The product is called "albuminoid" and is a mixture of boric acid and gelatin. This compound when added to cream makes it thicker and apparently richer, and also, owing to the boric acid, makes it keep longer. Fortunately both these compounds are easily detected by the chemist, and the dairyman who thinks to increase his profits by the use of such a mixture stands a good chance of incurring a fine that will make a hole in his profits, and the hole will be of sufficient size to make him think twice before running the risk a second time. The tendency at the present time is toward pure food products, and, although such compounds as the above appear on the market with great regularity, we notice that in a short time they disappear.—Hoard's Dairyman.

Filth and the Separator.

Many dairymen are inclined to attribute to the separator good points which it does not possess. A dairyman recently made the remark to the writer when it was mildly suggested that his stables were not as clean as they might be that all odors and filth which might by accident get into the milk were removed by the separator at the creamery where the milk was sold. No one will question the value of the separator for doing what it was intended to do—separate the butter fat from the milk—but it surely was never intended to remove filth. The dairyman who will deliberately permit filthy cows and stables to be the rule should be forced out of business, and the time is not far distant when creamery operators will find a way of detecting the source of supply of tainted and filthy milk. Then the dairyman will be forced to do what he should now voluntarily do as a matter of decency.—Atlanta Journal.

Water For Cows.

A plentiful supply of water is necessary for the proper production of milk. American experimenters state that the amount of water absorbed by a cow does not influence materially the quantity or quality of the milk. I am bound to disagree with this, although I have carried out no experiments on the subject, for the reason that watery and sloppy foods, such as grass, brewers' grains and roots, certainly do tend to the production of a larger quantity of milk with a corresponding decline in the total solids, more particularly in the butter fats. At least I consider that this is the most feasible explanation of why the total solids go down when watery foods are given and also why the excess of water drunk in a hot summer has a like effect.

Period of Lactation.

Irrespective of everything else, a cow yields the largest quantity of milk of the poorest quality some six or seven weeks after calving, and as the quantity goes down from advancing lactation the quality or richness of the same goes up, the increase being more particularly in the butter fat alone.

"Pulled" Bread.

When dough is being shaped for baking, knead it in such a manner that the grain will be lengthwise of the loaf. When baked and still warm remove the crust. Gash the loaf at the ends and pull apart into halves, pulling from the outside toward the center. Gash the halves and separate into quarters. Repeat the process until the pieces are the size of a bread stick. Place these on a rack in a pan and dry out the moisture in a slow oven and color a delicate brown. Keep tightly closed in tin, and when ready to use reheat in the oven. The pieces should snap when broken.—Boston Cooking School Magazine.

Don't bolt your food, it irritates your stomach. Choose digestible food and chew it. Indigestion is a dangerous sickness. Proper care prevents it. Shaker Digestive Cordial cures it. That is the long and short of indigestion. Now, the question is: Have you got indigestion? Yes, if you have pain or discomfort after eating, headache, dizziness, nausea, offensive breath, heartburn, langour, weakness, fever, jaundice, flatulence, loss of appetite, irritability, constipation, etc. Yes, you have indigestion. To cure it, take Shaker Digestive Cordial. The medicinal herbs and plants of which Shaker Digestive Cordial is composed, help to digest the food in your stomach; help to strengthen your stomach. When your stomach is strong, care will keep it so. Shaker Digestive Cordial is for sale by druggists, price 10 cents to $1.00 per bottle.
