As One Woman Sees It.

A woman who prides herself on her insight into the characters of men she meets remarked the other day that a man always judges other men by himself as a standard. This is the way she finds one man judges another man.

A crank—one who has theories about men and things different from his own.

A dude—one who dresses better than he.

A miser—one who saves more money than he.

A spendthrift—one who spends more money than he.

A snob—one whose social position is better than his own.

An upstart—one whose social position is worse than his own.

A rascal—one who owes him money.

Ditto—one to whom he owes money.

A smart man—one who thinks as he does.

A fool—one who doesn't.

The woman went on in the same strain and gave her own idea of men. These are some of them.

A captlalist—one who takes $1,000,000.

A theif—one who takes $1.

A statesman—one who talks without making money.

A politician—one who makes money without talking.

A laborer—one who gets to work at six o'clock.

A business man—one who gets to work at 10 o'clock.

A hypocrite—one who says what he does not think and is found out.

A great man—one who never opens his mouth.

A soldier—one who makes killing a business.

A murderer—one who makes killing a pleasure.

A lawyer—one who makes his living out of the quarrels of his fellow men.

A physician—one who makes his living out of the bodily sufferings of his fellow men.

A merchant—one who makes his living by buying what he does not want, to sell at a profit wrung from his fellow men.

In On The Ground Floor.

A few years ago a widow and her daughter were occupying a section in a Pullman sleeper on the Missouri Pacific railroad. The section next to this lady happened to be occupied by a couple of the directors of that railroad. The partition between the two sections was so thin that it was not difficult for a conversation carried on in one section to be heard in the other. The lady traveler heard the two directors discussing a plan of consolidation whereby the stock of the Missouri Pacific was bound to be greatly enhanced in value. It was then worth but two or three cents on the dollar. She was then on her return trip to her home in Hartford, Conn. The conversation of the two directors preyed on her mind. She revolved it over and over again until her home was reached, about which time a five thousand dollar note due her was redeemed. She sent for her attorney, detailed to him the conversation she had heard, and said she almost resolved to invest the five thousand dollars in Missouri Pacific. The attorney, mistaking her announced resolution for irony, laughed, but the woman of wealth persisted.

"It is but five thousand dollars," she said, "and if I lose I shall have just as much to eat as I have always had and just as much to wear. If the plans betrayed by these two directors work out I shall make a good deal of money by Missouri Pacific."

The attorney obeyed the instructions of his client, invested the fiue thousand dollars, and in less than one month the proposed consolidation was consummated and and the Hartford widow realized for her five-thousand-dollar investment $250,000. At the first blush this incident is set down as proof of luck, but the Cincinnati Times-Star holds that there was no luck about it. It was simply an unexpected exhibition of what in Wall street vernacular is termed "nerve" on the part of a quick-eared and quicker-witted woman. Not one person in ten thousand would have given any heed to the conversation referred to, and not one of a thousand who might have heard and heeded and who happened to have the money, as the widow have it, would have dared invest it. These incidents and illustrations might be expanded until volumes were filled. The evidence would be cumulative that eyes and ears and brain make what the thoughtless term luck.

Farm Philosophy.

The lazy dog is pestered most by the flies.

A calf is not valued by the loudness of its bawl.

He who leads time by the forelock can sleep well at night.

The prettiest blossoms do not always hold the sweetest honey.

Growling at the times will not lift the mortgage on your farm.

Be the kind of a man that you would like to have your boys become.

Success is on the hill top, you cannot get there without climbing.

It is money in your pocket to fail to make your stables comfortable.

The sunshine of a glad heart makes the darkest, dreariest day radiant and pleasant.

There is more solid comfort in a smile in a whole gross of frowns. It is good economy to smile.

If you get mad go to the looking glass and watch yourself growl, and see how quick you will quit it.

The man who depends on the spur of the moment often discovers that particular moment hasn't any spur.

Laziness and labor are brothers; but the one is married to incentive, and the other always remains a bachelor.

Do not act the rascal with your farm, by taking from it more than you give back to it in the way of fertilizers.

If you can see nothing but the bad, shut your eyes. Better be blind than unable to see the beautiful and the good.

Some men pretend to love God, who shows that they do not love the wives of their bosoms, by making the use the most primitive household utensils, while they themselves are supplied with all the best improved farm machinery used by civilized men.

AN exchange shouts out: Lift your hat reverently when you pass the teacher of the primary school. She is the guardian angel of the republic. She takes the bantling fresh from the home nest, full of pouts and passions, an ungovernable little wretch whose own mother honestly admits that she sends him to school to get rid of him. The lady who knows her business takes a whole car load of these anarchists, one of whom single-handed and alone is more than a match for his parents, and at once puts them in a way of being useful and upright citizens. At what expense of toil, patience and soul weariness! Lift your hat to her.

A Million Friends.

A friend in need is a friend indeed, and not less than one million people have found just such a friend in Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs, and Colds.—If you have never used this Great Cough Medicine, one trial will convince you that it has wonderful curative powers in all diseases of Throat, Chest and Lungs. Each bottle is guaranteed to do all that is claimed or money will be refunded. Trial bottles free at M. A. Toulson's Drug Store. Large bottles 50c. and $1 00.

IT is not necessary to feed the dry cow on concentrated food, but she should be kept in proper condition. The regulation of her food is more a matter of observation than the adoption of any system for such cows when there are several of them. The individual requirements of each must be noticed especially as they vary in the periods of calving. Attention to the proper feeding of dry cows will often prevent milk fever when the cows are in service.

IF kerosene lamps give off an unpleasant odor, give a bad light and smoke, put the burners in an old saucepan with water and a tablespoon of soda, and boil for half an hour. Do not cut the wickes, but rub off the charred surface each morning with a rag or piece of soft paper.

THE heavens cease not their bounty. They send us generous hearts into every generation.

She Had Heard of It.

One of the loveliest things in young house-keepers to be found in these United States lives right here in Detroit. She has been a wife about three months and got into her own little housey a week ago. Day before yesterday she was going home, about half past 4 o'clock, and as she passed the last grocery up that way a thought struck her and she went in.

"Have you," she said to the smiling clerk, "any minced ham?"

"No, miss—ma'am," he replied, in doubt.

"Pshaw," she exclaimed, "are you sure?"

"Quite so, ma'am, we sold the last this morning; but will have some more tomorrow, if you can wait."

"But I can't wait. Charlie is so fond of minced ham, and he told me to be sure to have some this evening. It's too late for me to go back down the street now, for he will be home by the time I get there, and what shall I do?"

"Possibly I might get you something else, ma'am?"

She hesitated betwixt conflicting emotions for a minute or more.

"I don't know," she said at last, patting her pretty little foot impatiently, "but I might make some bacon powder do for this evening. Have you any bacon powder?'

Then it was the clerk's Napoleonic tact came to his rescue, and gracefully retiring to look for it among the hams, he sent out the proprietor, who broke the news to her gently, and Charlie got no minced ham or its possible substitute that evening.—Detroit Free Press.
