After the Grip

Relief from Hood's Sarsaparilla Wonderful and Permanent.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"I had kidney trouble and severe pains in my back, which was brought about by a cold contracted while in camp at Linfield in 1862. I have been troubled more or less since that time and have been unable to do any heavy work, much less any lifting. I received only temporary relief from medicines. Last spring I had an attack of the grip, which left me with physically, in fact my system was completely run down. I tried a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla and it made me feel so much better that I continued taking it, and have taken six bottles. It has done wonders for me, as I have not been so free from my old pains and troubles since the war. I consider Hood's Sarsaparilla a God-sent blessing to the suffering." WILLIAM J. BAKER, North Pembroke, Mass.

A Bad Cough, Very Weak

IF WE ONLY COULD.

If a man could be born when he's old,
And gradually grow young,
The wisdom he'd gain and the lore he'd attain
Are not easily said or sung,
If I knew as much as my boy,
Who is six times younger than I,
I'd have a sufficience of general omiscience,
Be finished and ready to die.
So a man might drink deeper, I hold,
Yea, force out truth's obstinate bung,
If he could be born when he's old
And gradually grow young.

For the groping and ignorant man
In his darkness would count it a joy
If he had the light to enlighten his night
Of the wise, luminiferous boy,
If he could grow younger and wise,
And develope from age into youth,
We'd be able to hold when we're thirteen years old
The sum and substance of all truth,
And the ocean of wisdom w'ed hold
Cannot be imagined or sung,
If a man could be born when he's old
And gradually grow young.

But a man is now born very young,
And he gradually grows old,
And as his youth finishes his wisdom diminishes,
And his ignorance grows manifold,
And so every year doth his wisdom decrease
And his tight knowledge web is unstrung,
And no man can be sure he is not immature
Unless he's exceedingly young—
What sages the world might behold,
What giants of brain and of tongue,
If a man could be born when he's old
And gradually grow young.

A SHREWD MOTHER.

The Plan She Employed to Marry Off Her Six Daughters.

A fond mother tells how she married off her six daughters:

"I did it," she says, "with the frying pan, a cosy fire and cushioned chair. There, now, you have the whole story," confessed the lady. "I would have every one of these girls on my hands this minute if I hadn't found them husbands out of my cookery book. Despising an old maid as I do a smoky chimney, when my eldest girl wes full grown I turned right and left for some means of marrying her. Mary was neither very handsome nor very lively, so I knew better than to trust to luck. So I just set to work and determined on a plan that has never miscarried with any of them."

"All my life I have made close observations of men's ways, and have heard great stories of the happy results of feeding the sex. So I looked carefully over the field and picked out a pleasant, thriving young fellow, whose habits were good and his heart whole. I began by asking him in a friendly manner to call. Then I led the conversation around to his mother, the way he had been nurtured and what he most cared to eat in general. I never missed a word, and after the first visit we got him to drop in a tea on Sunday evening. Then, you may be sure, I did my best, and when the second meal was over I knew the yearnings of that man's appetite better than he did himself.

"My calculations seemed to believe it best to start toward the close of the year. Spring is no good. A man loves all womankind at that season; his appetite is slight. In my experience, courtships started in November lead, as a rule, to a wedding in May. Of course, my chief reliance is in tempting food, but I would always advise supporting the liberal table with a big comfortable rocking chair, drawn facing a cheerful fire. Speak of it as 'his chair,' and you won't make any mistake.

"Another thing—don't be too pressing A steady eye and a light hand count more than nagging. I was always careful not to gush, but if I had apple fritters on Tuesday, I apologized for their poorness and begged him to drop in on Thursday and let Mary redeem her mother's reputation with some particularly appetizing dish. I had her trained to sit in a low sewing chair under the big lamp, and either darn socks or hem dusters. When we spoke of her I said I trembled at the awful blow it would be for us if she should marry and go away. This kind of thing was kept up until February 1, when my gentleman began to feel easy and snug, like one of the family.

"Then came the delicate moment, for just at this point I would introduce some silly dandy that neither I nor Mary would have looked at. But I coddled the youngster, had him to tea on the same night as regular, and waited to see what would happen. The ruse always succeeded. He and Mary would come blushing to ask if they might have each other, and while they made up in the parlor I looked my cookery book up to see my way to another son-in-law.—Pearson's Weekly.

Beyond Comparison

Are the good qualities possessed by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Above all it purifies the blood, thus strengthening the nerves; it regulates the digestive organs, invigorates the kidneys and liver, tones and builds up the entire system, cures Scrofula Dyspepsia, Catarrh and Rheumatism. Get Hood's and only Hood's.

THE INCOME TAX.

Questions to be Asked and Answered —How your Income is Ascertained.

On the Collector of Internal Revenue will devolve the work of collecting the income tax, as provided by the past congress. The following are the blanks to be filled, and as some of Kent's citizens come under the provisions of the law we publish same.

In the blank for individuals all the various items of receipts are first given as follows:

1. Gross profits from any business, or any interest therein, wherever carried on $——.

2. From rents received or accrued during the year, $——.

3. From profits realized on sales of real estate, purchased since December 31, 1892, $——.

4. From farming operations:
Proceeds from sales of live stock, $——.
Proceeds from sales of agricultural products, $——.

5. Money and the value of personal property acquired by gift of inheritance, $——.

6. Premium on bonds, stocks, notes or coupons, $——.

7. Income from profession, trade or other employment, except stated salary or pay, $——.

8. From salary, compensation or pay for particular services, and not including salary or compensation received from the United States, $——.

9. For salary or compensation received for service in the civil, military, naval or other service of the United States, including salary of Senator, Representative or Delegate in Congress, $——.

10. From gains and profits, divided or undivided, of any partnership, $——.

11. From interest received or accrued within the year upon all notes, bonds, mortgages or other forms of indebtedness bearing interest, whether paid or not, if good and collectible, $——.

12. From interest or coupons paid or accrued on any bonds or other evidences of indebtedness, of any corporation, company or association, $——.

13. From dividends or interest paid or accrued on the stock, capital or deposits of any corporation, company or association, $——.

14. Income of wife or minor children, computed on the same basis as this return $——.

15. From all sources not above enumerated, viz: ( ), $——.

Total gains, profits and income, $——.

DEDUCTION TO BE MADE.

Following the receipts are the deductions which must be made to get at the net amount on which the tax is chargeable:

1. Exempt by law, $4000.

2. Interest which has become due or which has been paid during the year, $——.

3. National, State, county, school or municipal taxes paid within the year, not including taxes assessed against local benefits, $——.

4. Amount expended in the purchase or production of live stock or produce sold within the year.

5. Necessary expenses actually incurred in carrying on any business, occupation or profession, and not elsewhere deducted in this return, $——.

6. Losses actually sustained during the year, incurred in trade or arising from fires storms or shipwreck, and not compensated for by insurance or otherwise, and not already deducted in ascertaining profits, $——.

7. Actual losses on sales of real estate purchased since December 31, '92, $——.

8. Debts ascertained within the year to be worthless, and not elsewhere deducted in this return, $——.

9. Salary, compensation or pay over $4000, from which the tax of 2 per centum has been deducted or withheld by any paymaster, disbursing officer or any other person in the employ of the United States, $——.

10. Dividends heretofore included in the estimate of gross profits, under paragraph 13, received from corporations, companies or associations, on which the tax of 2 per centum has once been paid by such corporations, $——.

Total deduction, $——.

Taxable income for the year 1894, $——.

Amount of tax at 2 per cent, $——.

SOME VERY POINTED QUESTIONS.

The person making the return must also answer the following questions:

1. Had your wife or any minor child or children of yours any income last year?

2. Have you included such income or incomes in their return?

3. Have you kept books of account?

4. Is your income herein estimated or taken from your books?

5. What are the particular items of "losses" set forth by you opposite paragraph 6 of "deductions," and when did each occur?

6. Are you a citizen of the United States and what is your occupation?

7. How did you determine that debts returned by you as "worthless" could not be collected?

8. What were the "necessary expenses," and the amount of each class, included in the amount set opposite paragraph 5 of "deductions?"

The entire return is then sworn to, with supplemental affidavits in case the income is less than $4,000. For corporations the blank is the same general form, but with the items and questions altered to meet the different conditions. On each blank are copious extracts from the law, and instructions by the Treasury Department.

THE PACK OF TOMATOES.

An Enormous Pack Last Year—What the American Grocer says of Future Prospects.

The American Grocer, one of the leading and most reliable trade publications, in a recent issue publishes some information relative to the tomato packing industry of the country. The figures show that Maryland leads in the lists of States in this industry. We gather the following from the article published:

"In a country of such vast area and varying climatic conditions as the United States, it is rare to find an entire industry governed by like conditions at all points. If extreme drouth or an unusual wet spell prevails in one section, there are other localities where conditions are of a more favorable character, so that the failure of a crop or general adverse conditions of any sort are the exception and not the rule.

"We have frequently stated that the study of the annual reports as presented by this journal for fourteen years past, shows that the average annual requirements of the United States will absorb, at fair prices, a pack of about 3,300,000 cases of tomatoes. In 1894 the pack reached a total of 5,726,000 cases, against 4,635,183 cases in 1893. These figures show a total supply for two years of 10,371, 183 cases, or about three times the annual average requirements under normal conditions.

"It happens, however, that during the past two seasons the trade has been confronted with unusual depression in business, resulting in reduced purchasing power on the part of the common people, the laboring class, who are the chief consumers of canned food. Hence an oversupply and a lessened demand together contributed to make the present demoralized market so marked a feature of the closing months of 1894. In January of that year No. 3 standard tomatoes commanded in the New York market $1@$1.10 per dozen, as against 65@75 cents at the close of December.

"The situation is somewhat different in another respect, viz., that most of the holding or carry-over of 1894 is in the hands of the packers, whereas in 1893 it was in possession of the jobbers. The overproduction of corn in 1893 caused many of the factories in the West to turn their attention to tomatoes, and the result is a surprisingly large output in some of the Western States, notably Indiana, where a great many new factories have started and where efforts are being made to organize still others.

"In our last annual report the suggestion was made that the situation warranted the most conservative action if the trade was to escape an over-burdened and demoralized market during the fall of 1894 and the opening of 1895. Unfortunately the packers were deaf to all ideas of an over pack, but from the result recorded it is evident that the factories were pushed to their utmost capacity. Conditions for 1895 are in some respects more favorable for the packers. Tin-plates are over $1 per box lower, shooks are lower, and packers are contracting for raw material in New Jersey at $1.50 a ton less than in 1894. If all will reduce their acreage it must result in improving the situation, particularly if there is a revival in manufactures, trade and commerce. It is eight months before 1895 packed tomatoes will be available, and with light stocks in the hands of retailers, we can see good reason for forcing sales on a demoralized market."

THE tameness of some animals in thinly settled districts is remarkable. While a young man was fishing on an old dam in a New England stream a chipmunk ran out from the wood and boldly picked up the crumbs from his luncheon that were scattered near him. Then, curious as to what kind of an animal the young man was, the chipmunk ran upon his leg as far as his knee, chattered for an instant and whisked off into the forest again.

A PRETTY man is seldom good for anything else.

About one-twelfth of the entire weight of the human body is the blood, and this is the life fountain that nourishes and invigorates and cleanses all the rest of the anatomy. Otherwise the fountain is poisoned at its source. To increase the red corpuscles and carry new vitality to the very well-spring of life nothing equals
