Cows or Mules?

The Still Pond Farmers' Club met at C. W. Harris', Jan 26th. The subject for discussion was opened by Mr. Cornelius.

"Does it pay more to raise cows or mules at the present prices?. The club was unable to answer the question as some were very sure cows paid best and others said mules were more profitable to raise. The average cost of raising a cow was placed at $50 and her average value at $80 The average cost of raising a mule about $100 and his average value at 3 years of age $150. These figures, however, show a yearly profit 10% on the cow and 11% on the mules, based on the selling price of each. The farmer of course assuming all risk of accidents.

The next question was asked by one of the ladies "How can I make my hens lay?" Most everybody's hens seem to be loafing, but she was advised to give them plenty of milk or water and then give them dry mash to make them drink. Grain to be fed them regularly.

The Tomato situation was next brought to the attention of the Club. All are holding tight for $15 per ton and no contracts were reported except one canner in New Jersey who has signed up with his growers for 700 acres at $15 per ton.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mr. F. H. Cornelius, Feb. 22nd.

The charge account will be discussed at that meeting by Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Cornelius, Mrs. Corey and others.

GERMAN NATION IS UNCONQUERABLE BIBLE SAYS

To the Editors of Kent News:

England, Russia and France may curtail Germany's military strength, but they never will be able to wipe Germany from the map.

Some one may ask, "Do you think this very war is mentioned in the Bible?" I surely do. Is it not true that a considerable portion of the Bible is given to the story of the wars of the nations? In the early chapters of Genesis you will find the story of the wars of Chedarlaomar. Does not the Bible tell the story of the wars of Assyria, of Babylon, of the Medes, of the Persians, of the Greeks, of the Romans, of the Syrians? Yea, verily, and many of them are mentioned by name. It would be passing strange that a war, the mightiest of them all, the mightiest that ever has shaken this old world, should be passed by without specific mention in the Book of God.

The prophect of God spoke of this when he said as recorded in Hosea 9-7: "The days of visitation are come. The days of recompense are come. Israel shall know it. The prophet is a fool. The spiritual man is mad for the multitude of thine iniquity and thy great hatred." True, indeed, it is that the prophet who has not the Word of God as his guide knows absolutely nothing about the outcome of the titanic struggle. But God's people, says Hosea, shall know it.

Beginning with the closing days of July 1914, a change came in God's dealing with the nations of the earth. Something happened at that time in the council of heaven. I mean to say this, that we then entered upon an era of judgment for this world, the like of which we have never seen since the days of the flood.

Never, since the days of Noah, has such a fearful judgment come to this earth as has come in the terrific, titanic struggle that is soaking the fields of Europe in a welter of blood. From some angles of vision, the present pentecost of calamity which is sweeping over Europe, and carrying ten thousands of men to untimely graves, which is causing women to sit widows in their homes, hearts to be desolated, famine and hunger to stalk through the land, babes to die for lack of milk—I say that this calamity is in some ways a far more dreadful, crueler one then even the flood, for when, in the days of Noah, the flood came, there were mighty rains from heaven, the waters rose on every side, and in a few short moments of time as it were, all the pain and sorrow were over. Only in that all the world is not included in this cataclysm less awful than the flood.

This is not a war of victories, but of extermination. Men are asking, "Will the Allies crush the Central Powers?" "Will the Central Powers wipe out the Allied nations?" No, neither will happen. Years ago a Bible prophet spoke concerning these same nations of Europe and said that the iron monarchy of Rome would be divided into ten parts, that three of those would be plucked up by the roots, and that the other seven would remain to the coming of Christ. England, Germany and France are among the seven.

In olden days battles took their names from the places where they were fought but it is pretty hard to name a battle nowadays. When you think that the battle line on the western front extends from the Vosges mountains of Switzerland over 400 miles to the waters of the North Sea, it is hard to name a battle when all along that long line they are fighting for all they are worth. In the eastern theatre the battle line begins on the shores of the Gulf of Riga and extends for thousands of miles to Salonika on the Aegean. It is stupendous! Carnage in battles of old was a mere few thousands, but official reports of the Teutonic losses show that almost a half million have perished at Verdun alone.

Very sincerely yours,
Seventh-Day Adventist Church.

WASHINGTON ON TOP

Smothers Mt. St. Joseph's College, 35 to 6, on the Chestertown Court.

Last Saturday night, despite the fact that Captain Spedden and Lankford, star forwards, were not in the line up, Washington ran wild against Mount St. Joseph's, of Baltimore, and scored 35 points to 6. The visitors could not penetrate the stonewall defense of the home team, succeeding in getting only one goal, the remaining four points being contributed by McClellan from foul circle.

Washington tallied first when Cain caged the ball from the foul mark, followed by a pretty toss by Caldwell.

Mount St. Joseph's was unable to stop the brilliant floor work and lightning-like passing of the Chestertown team, Washington carrying the ball time and again to the basket by the team work that electrified the spectators The entire Washington team played in grand style, Caldwell leading with five goals. Hart and McClellan starred for Mount St. Joseph's. Francis, of Mount St. Joseph's, officiated very satisfactorily in the absence of the regular referee. The line up:

Washington.	Position.	Mt. St. Joseph's.
Brown, Bunting, Cain
Frampton	R. F.	Hart
Caldwell	L. F.	Mathews, Marco
Cain Errickson	C.	McClelland
Wallace, Wilmer, Shelberg	R. G.	Cummings, Martin
Young, Frampton	L. G.	Keleher

Goals—Brown (2), Caldwell (5), Errickson (2), Cain (3), Wallace, Young (2), Bunting, Hart, Fonis McClellan (1), Cain (2), Errickson.
