SATURDAY, MARCH 10, 1917

IT is the general verdict that the roads are worst than ever before—and you can't blame it on Gibbs.

NOT a word is heard of Gibbs during this winter when speaking of the roads. Isn't it too bad not to have poor Isaac on whom to saddle the condition of the roads.

G. H. ALFORD, the efficient State Farm Demonstrator, has resigned just as he had organized the State for work. He has accepted a fine position with the agricultural department at Washington.

CHESTERTOWN has been awarded the "blue ribbon" by the Easton Gazette for the muddiest road on the Shore. Kent believes in having the best of everything, although in this case it happened to be mud!

LEE AND LEWIS are no longer representatives in Washington. Lee was beaten in the primary while Lewis was beaten in the election by the gang in Baltimore who care more for the loaves and fishes than for any love of party or country.

THE NEWS has received a letter from Mr. George E. Noland, the faithful and efficient manager of Tolchester, stating that he is not a candidate for any office. He appreciates, however, the complimentary letters and assurances of support which have come to him unsolicited.

THE terrible condition of the road between Rock Hall and Gratitude caused a bad accident to Expressman Frank M. Satterfield Tuesday morning. His team broke thru a culvert, Mr. S. being thrown out and the horse ran off and got mired. Mr. S. was badly shaken up and his foot injured.

THERE never was a time when it paid to farm like it does today. Every farmer who possibly can should endeavor to do more farming this year than ever, and if his sons have any brains at all they will discover gold mines in wheat and corn and potato fields instead of trying to hunt for them in shorthand and typewriting, or while ringing up nickels on a street car.

PRESIDENT WILSON is one of the few occupants of the White House in the past eighty years that have been elected twice in succession. It is a remarkable fact that in that time the only President who actually served two full terms, or eight years consecutively, was General Grant. Lincoln was assassinated within six weeks of the beginning of his second term, as McKinley was within six weeks of the beginning of his, while Harrison, Cleveland and Taft were defeated when they ran a second time. In an earlier period Polk, Fillmore, Pierce and Buchanan had no opportunity to extend their service, being considered unavailable for nomination. Fillmore, like our other accidental Presidents—Tyler, Johnson, Arthur and Roosevelt—aspired to be continued in office, but Roosevlt was the only one that succeeded in getting a full term. As for Mr. Wilson, he is the first Democrat to receive a second term since the days of Andrew Jackson. Van Buren, who had been Jackson's heir-apparent to the office, came to grief when he ran a second time, and no other Democrat was again renominated until the time of Grover Cleveland.

THE bill to give President Wilson authority to arm American ships and protect the rights and lives of Americans on the seas was lost by a filibuster in the Senate preventing a vote being taken, although there was a large majority of in favor of the bill.

What the consequences may be no ones knows, but the absurdity of a minority of Senators being able to defeat the will of themajority has been plainly shown, and it is most earnestly to be hoped that the extra session of the Senate, called by President Wilson, will so amend the rules that such tactics will be impossible in the future.

LET US KEEP GOD'S DAY

We believe with Speaker Clark that the World is growing better, but let us not lose our respect for the Sabbath, a cherished American tradition. History proves such respect to be a national safeguard. It stands for stability. No nation that has had reverence for God's day has ever perished. A disregard for this as a day of rest, of quiet and of worship carries with it a train of license into the whole moral life of the people. Unless it be different from other days, it belies its name and no longer justifies its existence.

Strong influences have been at work to make the American Sunday a day for amusements and recreations, leaving little time for rest and less for worship. We do not believe the best judgment of the American people will ever support the change of this holy day to a holiday. In New York State the day is now made the object of a concerted attack by movies, which have been running wide open on Sunday, are violating the law. The movie men are, therefore, leaving no stone unturned to secure an amendment to the existing law exempting the Sunday movie.

They have a rich harvest every week and their avarice is insatiable. Must

"AMERICA FIRST"

A Great Man, Woodrow Wilson, Inaugurated for Second Time Amid Impressive Surroundings.

Woodrow Wilson, with the major part of the world at war and America on its verge, consecrated his second inauguration as President of the United States with a last message of hope for peace.

Standing in the shadows of the nation's capitol with his face turned toward the eastern war stained skies, the President renewed his oath of allegiance to the constitution, praying to God that he might be given wisdom and prudence to do his duty in the true spirit of the American people.

While trumpets blared and martial accountrements rattled prophetically about him, the President pictured the deep wrongs the United States patiently had borne in the conflict of other people without wishing to wrong or injure in return. Asserting that the tragedies of another continent had removed provincialism and made Americans citizens of the world, and that the principles of this republic should be applied to a liberation of mankind, he resolutely voiced a determination that America standing "firm in armed neutrality," must demonstrate her claims to a "minimum of right and freedom of action" in world affairs.

Peculiar interest and significance in the light of the rebuke Saturday night to Senators who prevented passage of the armed neutrality bill were attached to the President's assertion on this point. Even more interest and concern were aroused when he added:

"We may even be drawn on, by circumstances not by our own purpose or desire, to a more active assertion of our rights as we see them and a more immediate association with the great struggle itself. But nothing will alter our thought or our purpose. We desire neither conquest nor advantage. We wish nothing that can be had only at the cost of another people. We have always professed unselfish purpose and we covet the opportunity to prove that our professions are sincere."

Only about 50,000 people attended the second inauguration of President Wilson, a mere fraction of the crowds that are usually in Washington when the chief executive of the nation is inducted into office. Only about 19,000 men marched in the parade that the President reviewed—a handful almost in comparison with the thousands upon thousands who in previous years have marched past the reviewing stand until long after dusk.

The inauguration was not a holiday; it was not the usual merrymaking which friends all over the country make the occasion for a reunion and a few days of "good time" in Washington. There was a lack of all ostentation. Instead of the fuss and feathers of other days, a solid line of soldiery guarded the path of the President from the White House to the Capitol.

Maryland was big in the show—the show that comes once every four years in Washington—the inauguration of the President of the United States. Despite the overhanging clouds, the chilly weather and the shivering winds, Marylanders went by the thousands.

What would the inauguration of the President of the United States be without Maryland? Of course, it was Maryland which contributed the territory in which the seat of the government is located. But of the thousands, the thousands upon thousands, of men and women who lined the processional march Maryland was well represented, enthusiastically represented.

The center of attraction of all Marylanders was Governor Harrington, who headed the official representation of the state in the inaugural parade. His is a Southern cut of face and figure, tall and lean. He was mounted on a beautiful horse, Dexter by name, which he had conscripted from Police Marshal Carter, of Baltimore. The Governor and his mount moved in perfect unison with the music, the dress and the martial tread which pervaded along the line of march. In step and well mounted with the Governor were the members of his staff

A WORD OF EXPLANATION

In view of the fact that there has been some little criticism concerning the delivery of the weekly papers through the postoffice on Tuesday and Friday evenings, I feel that the following explanation will prove satisfactory to the patrons:

The establishment of city delivery in the town has made the change necessary in order that all the subscribers may be treated fairly. A very large proportion of the Transcript and KENT NEWS are delivered by city carriers on Saturday mornings, and the same may be said of the Enterprise on Wednesday mornings It would be manifestly unfair to the patrons of city delivery and the subscribers on the rural routes and throughout the county generally to force them to get their papers on Saturday morning and allow the box-holders in the office to have their papers on Friday evening, especially as the day of publication is not Friday but Saturday. I regret very much to feel myself compelled to discontinue a custom which has been in vogue for the past ten years, but in order to give every one concerned the same service and the same accommodations, I have felt that the best interests of all concerned will best be subserved by the plan which has been anopted. And I am very glad to state that in this movement I have the co-operation and support of the editors of the KENT NEWS.

T. D. BOWERS, Postmaster.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of JOSEPHINE ROBINSON PHILLIPS, who departed this life one year ago, March 5, 1916.

From this world of grief and trouble,
To the land of peace and rest;
God has taken you, dear daughter,
Where you will find eternal rest.
LOVING PARENTS.

Oh, dearest sister, since you have passed away;
It seems not one year, but only yesterday;
Wherever we speak your name our eyes with tears are wet,
Oh, sister dear, we loved you and love cannot forget.
The Lord took you from us, it was his holy will.
And left in our hearts a vacancy, which never can be filled;
But in our saddest moments one happy thought holds sway,
We will meet again, dear sister, and be happy some sweet day.
SISTER RUTH.

123 BRITISH SHIPS SUNK LAST MONTH

Over 18,000 Ships on Seas—Admiralty Reports That 67 British Merchant Vessels Were Unsuccessfully Attacked During Month—Losses of Ships of Allies or Neutral Nations Not Included in Announcement—General Situation Declared Satisfactory—Number of U-Boats Sunk Withheld.

Official figures from the British Admiralty, made public at the office of the consul general of Great Britain, show that during February 123 British merchant ships were destroyed by mines or submarines. It was also reported that during the month 67 British merchant vessels were unsuccessfully attacked by submarines, as shown by reports on file with the admiralty up to and including March 4.

The figures show that the number of merchant vessels of all nationalities over 100 tons each and exclusive of local or fishing craft which arrived at and departed from British ports, were as follows:

Vessels arrived, 9 463.
Vessels sailed, 9,124.
Total, 18,587.

The foregoing figures do not include losses of ships of Great Britain's allies or those of neutral nations, which, the Admiralty stated, were not available.

The number of German submarines captured or sunk, the Admiralty says, will not be made public.

Indicative of the activity of Great Britain in replacing the losses to her merchant marine occasioned by the submarines and mines, it was officially stated that at the present time more than 2,000,000 tons of shipping is on the stocks in various shipyards, all in more or less advanced stages of construction.

"The general situation," the Admiralty announced, "is considered quite satisfactory."

Two German submarines that recently returned to their base sank 15 steamers and seven sailing vessels, aggregating 64,500 tons gross, the Admiralty announced Sunday.

By the sinking of these ships the following were destroyed:

Eight thousand eight hundred tons of grenades, 3,300 tons of grain, 3,000 tons of linseed, about 15,000 tons of coal, 2,500 tons of war material, 3,000 tons of parcels, 4,300 tons of timber, 1,200 tons of iron ore and 1,800 tons of ground nuts.

Mary Had a Waterman's Ideal

Mary had a fountain pen,
'Twas neat and good and strong,
And everywhere that Mary went
She took the pen along.

"For oh!" she said, "without my pen
I don't know how I'd feel;
I'm sure I could not write at all
Without a 'Waterman's Ideal.'"

So every time she saw a pen
That leaked all out the top,
She stopped right then and did advise
"Buy a Waterman's at the Co-op."

Mary Had Not a Waterman's Ideal

Mary had a fountain pen.
'Twas neat and looked quite fair,
But every time she tried to write
Dear Mary learned to swear.

But Mary's fellow heard her once;
It made his senses reel,
He smashed that so-called pen and bought
A 'WATERMAN'S IDEAL."

THE South Bend Watch Company might use garnet jewels in their watches instead of ruby and sapphire jewels as many other watch companies do and thus greatly reduce the cost of production.

You would not notice the difference in buying.

But, if garnet jewels were used, the watch would not have any such lasting qualities—and the South Bend Watch Company believes it is better to have smaller profits and satisfied customers than large profits and dissatisfied customers.

That's the way we feel about it, too, which accounts for our giving South Bend watches the preference.
