SATURDAY, MARCH 17, 1917

If a woman owns property, we tax her; if she commits a felony, we jail her; but if she asks a voice in making the laws that tax and jail her, we sneer and say her place is in the home. Just the same, woman suffrage is coming, and it will not be many years in reaching Maryland.—Cecil News.

The effort being made in some quarters to becloud the Annexation question with that of temperance should be squelched at the beginning. To our mind it is a willful violation of the State's constitution to compel any part of Baltimore, Anne Arundel or any other county to give up their rights without a referendum. The consent of the governed should be obtained before the Legislature grants any extension of Baltimore's boundaries. We feel confident that both sides to the controversy can meet on a common ground, but not in the Preston way, viz., rule or ruin.

W. B. W. Mann, president of the Mann Yacht-Building Company, and a nephew of Mr Philip G. Wilmer, has returned to Baltimore after a conference with Secretary of the Navy Daniels concerning the construction of high-speed coast patrol boats of a new type for scouting against submarines. At the conference there was a score or more builders of vessels, but Mr. Mann was the only Baltimoreon. The Smith & Williams Company, Salisbury, was also represented. Mr. Mann said that while he was given no assurances that his firm will receive any contracts, he is hoping that his plant will be called upon to aid the Government.

John Barleycorn was dealt a severe blow at the hands of Justice Guy in the Bronx County Court Wednesday, when he awarded $20,000 damages to a woman who sued a hotelkeeper for selling liquor to her husband. The Justice conducted an inquest without a jury into the complaint of Mrs. Ida Heaton against Wm. R. Talbot, of Beacon, N. Y. She alleged that Talbot disregarded her verbal and written instructions not to sell liquor to her husband, Reuben Heaton. The suit was undefended and at the conclusion of the inquest Justice Guy awarded Mrs. Heaton a verdict for the full amount sued for. Talbot did not defend the action.

President Wilson has ordered that American merchant ships be armed for self-defense, and also issued a call for Congress to assemble in extraordinary session on April 16 A great majority of the people of the United States stand firmly and unequivocally behind the policy of the President. They do not want war, neither does President Wilson. But he has taken an oath to safeguard the honor of the United States and to protect the rights of her citizens. For the sake of peace he has suffered many annoyances, some of them indeed almost indignities, to pass over with only a warning. But if the time has come when this country must enforce her rights, or cease to exist as a nation, and President Wilson has chosen the only course, so far as we can see, compatible with the dignity and safety of the United States.

A DESERVED RECOGNITION

President Wilson certainly did another wise act when he appointed Hon. David J. Lewis as a member of the Tariff Commission. He also rebuked the traitors in Baltimore and elsewhere who caused his defeat for the Senate. The name of Mr. Lewis went to the Senate with those of Prof. Frank W. Taussig, of Harvard; Daniel C. Roper, of South Carolina; William Kent, of California; William S. Culbertson, of Kansas, and Edward P. Costigan, of Colorado.

Mr. Lewis will be confirmed without difficulty and probably without opposition. Senator John Walter Smith, who had strongly endorsed the former Congressman for this commission, will personally handle the matter of confirmation both in the Finance Committee and on the Senate floor.

Members of the Tariff Commission will receive $7,500 a year. Their pay probably will be raised to $10,000 a year after next July and placed on a level with the other commissions of like importance. Mr. Lewis was named for an eight-year term. The normal tenure is 12 years, but the first group of appointees were named for varying terms from two years to 12, making the commission virtually a continuous body.

NO MARYLAND DAY THIS YEAR

Owing to the failure of the framer of the law, which makes Maryland Day a legal holiday, to provide for a celebration on Monday in the event of March 25th falling on Sunday, there will be no holiday this year unless the Governor should make it so by proclamation. This was the decision of the Attorney-General announced Friday. All other legal holidays carry a saving clause.

RENAMES CABINET

President Wilson renamed his present Cabinet Monday of last week as follows: Secretary of State, Robert Lansing, of New York; Secretary of the Treasury, William Gibbs McAdoo, of New York; Secretary of War, Newton D. Baker, of Ohio, Attorney-General, Thomas W. Gregory, of Texas; Postmaster-General Albert Sidney Burleson, of Texas; Secretary of the Navy, Josephus Daniels, of North Carolina; Secretary of the Interior Franklin Knight Lane, of California; Secretary of Agriculture, David Franklin Houston, of Missouri; Secretary of Commerce, William C. Redfield, of New York; Secretary of Labor, William B. Wilson.

Representatives of the four railroad brotherhoods announce Thursday that a general railroad strike would begin at 6 o'clock Saturday night. The brotherhoods presented to the conference of railroad managers a demand that the provisions of the Adamson law be put into effect at once. The railroads declined and submitted a counter-proposition. The counter-proposal of the railroads was that the entire controversy be submitted to the Goethals Eight-Hour Commission. This proposition was rejected by the brotherhoods and the announcement was made that the strike call would go into effect.

Mary Had a Waterman's Ideal
Mary had a fountain pen,
'Twas neat and good and strong,
And everywhere that Mary went
She took the pen along.
"For oh!" she said, "without my pen
I don't know how I'd feel;
I'm sure I could not write at all
Without a 'Waterman's Ideal.'"
So every time she saw a pen
That leaked all out the top,
She stopped right then and did advise
"Buy a Waterman's at the Co-op."
Mary Had Not a Waterman's Ideal
Mary had a fountain pen.
'Twas neat and looked quite fair,
But every time she tried to write
Dear Mary learned to swear.
But Mary's fellow heard her once;
It made his senses reel,
He smashed that so-called pen and bought
A "WATERMAN'S IDEAL."
