Farmers' Day Proves a Great Success

Farmers and Their Families Five Hundred Strong Inspect Their Agricultural College and Experiment Station In Person—What They Saw and What They Learned.

Weather conditions were perfect for the second annual celebration of "Farmers' Day" at the Agricultural College. The first visitors to arrive were members of the Patapsco Farmers' Club of Howard County, which is one of the most progressive organizations of its kind in the State. From eight o'clock on, automobiles and carriages continued to arrive, the bulk of the crowd, however, coming on the ten o'clock express from Baltimore, which brought representatives from northern counties and the Eastern Shore.

The inspection of the experimental plots began promptly at ten, the visitors making short work of the strawberry patch which for one day in the year was free to all comers for tasteing as well as observing. Much time was spent on the grass experiments where the farmers saw actually demonstrated before them why one field will grow twice as much hay as another because of the kind of fertilizer used. Special spraying demonstrations were given for the benefit of the members of the Horticultural Society who were holding their summer field meeting as a part of "Farmers' Day." Neither were the farm women and children neglected. While their husbands and fathers were inspecting the new hog plant and the dairy barns, the women folk descended on the poultry establishment to see the latest things out in chicken styles and houses.

DEDICATION EXERCISES.

At noon, the entire crowd gathered on the college campus for lunch where for an hour or two everyone was busy getting better acquainted with new friends from every part of the State. Grangers, particularly, were present in goodly numbers, a newly-organized Grange from La Plata, in Charles county coming in a body to attend the celebration. They, with many other guests, attended the dedication exercises of the afternoon. These included addresses by the Hon. James F. Monroe, Henry H. Holzapfel, Jr., Congressman Wm. P. Borland from Missouri, and others, all of whom paid glowing tributes to Chas. B. Calvert, one of the founders of agricultural education in Maryland and after whom the new building, Calvert Hall, was named. Representative Borland, particularly, interested his audience.

The closing event of the day was the formal dedication of the new building, President H. J. Patterson on behalf of the Board of Trustees naming it Calvert Hall. The tablet commemorating this dedication was unveiled by Mrs. Charlotte Calvert Spence, representing the Calvert family. No one present could doubt the success of the occasion as a real day for farmers and farmers' wives or the benefits they found in the instruction and social gathering together that went with the day at their Agricultural College.

BACHELORS' HEADQUARTERS.

ROY H. WAITE.
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

On many farms all the eggs are fertile because the males are allowed to run with the flock. Such eggs are often held in a warm room for a week or more and then carried to town in the boiling hot sun. The germ starts to develop, then dies, and the egg spoils very quickly. Is it any wonder that there are so many bad eggs spoiled every year?

Sterile or infertile eggs keep much longer than do fertile ones, especially during the summer months. This being the case, let's put the better product on the market. We may not get much extra money for our trouble because as a rule, in most sections, an egg is simply an egg, but at the same time we will be helping to get eggs in better repute.

It's a simple matter to get rid of the "rooster" and the hens will lay equally as well, if not better, without him. If you have a valuable male that you wish to keep over for another breeding season, pen him up in a separate enclosure or if you have no extra pen, build a cage 3 feet by 10 feet or larger in which to keep him. If you don't put any special value on him, make a meal of him, and save one of your oldest, strongest and most vigorous cockerels for next season's breeding.

Mohammedan Serenity.

A Mohammedan people enjoy one great advantage over all others—they never suffer from the anticipation of that which is to come, and, as a natural result, they can always enjoy the present, although only a few hours may separate them from disaster or even from death. Their implicit belief in an ordained future imparts a dignified repose and outward calm to all their actions.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Judge for Yourself

Which is Better—Try an Experiment or Profit by a Chestertown Citizen's Experience.

Something new is an experiment.
Must be proved to be as represented.
The statement of a manufacturer is not convincing proof of merit.
But the endorsement of friends is.
Now supposing you had a bad back.
A lame, weak, or aching one,
Would you experiment on it?
You will read of many so-called cures.
Endorsed by strangers from faraway places.
It's different when the endorsement comes from home.
Easy to prove local testimony.
Read this Chestertown case:

S. F. Robinson, stationary engineer, Front St., Chestertown, says: Besides having trouble from my bladder, I also suffer from backache.
