SENATOR LEE WILL WIN.

In the primaries four years ago Senator Lee carried the following counties: Garrett, Frederick, Montgomery, Prince George's, Carroll, Harford, Baltimore, Calvert, St. Mary's, Charles, Cecil, Caroline, Queen Annes, Talbot and Somerset; a total of 15 with 64 votes in the State convention. He has now the influence of Baltimore city's 28 votes which will swing other counties in line for the Senator. From the above counties the Lee forces concede to Harrington Baltimore county with its 7 votes in the convention. This will give Senator Lee 85 votes in the State convention—20 more than are necessary to nominate. Can they beat Lee? Not a bit of it. And when you add Kent's three votes and Wicomico's four votes to the Lee column, that will make up for the loss of Baltimore county's 7 votes. And there is an interesting fight in Worcester that may put Worcester's four votes in the Lee column. Wait and see.

The Lords Day Alliance State-Wide Educational Campaign.

The splendid co-operation of Dr. Howard A. Kelly has made possible a state-wide educational compaign for a better observance of the Lords Day. Not only has Dr. Kelly joyously furnished his automobile for these trips but has given 20 Sundays speaking from 6 to 11 times each Sunday. So far we have travelled over 2,000 miles in the automobile and spoken in 21 counties to 233 audiences aggregating at least 50,000 persons since the last Sunday in October. Already tentative plans are made to cover 1 additional county. We have distributed 25,000 pieces of literature besides giving the spoken message to those thousands. The welcome has been most gracious and in all the counties except Baltimore and Anne Arundel we have had the co-operation of the local authorities. In Baltimore county we have spoken in 61 places and in every district. The authorities responsible for the enforcement of Sunday laws have criticized us, but in not a single instance have they disputed a single specific statement made by us. These counties are "bossed" by men and organizations tied up with Sunday liquor selling and gambling. The dawn of a better enforcement of Sunday laws is at hand even in Baltimore and Anne Arundel counties as the result of the splendid work of Judges Duncan and McLane. As a result of our meeting in Reisterstown a Citizens League has been formed to work for a clean Sunday in a clean town. The roll of membership is already over 125. Like committees in other communities are the results of these automobile trips. In Baltimore City the splendid co-operation of the Police and Liquor License Boards has given us an almost ideal city so far as the Sunday saloon is concerned. The total receipts of the sheriff's office from Sunday liquor fines in the first 4 months of 1912 were $2,256 while for the first four months of 1914 they were $29. Like faithfulness on the part of the liquor license granting and law enforcing authorities of Baltimore county would give us a like result. In Baltimore the problem is how to handle the 4,000 open Sunday store proposition.

Grange Notes.

Next Monday night, June 28, being the last Monday night in the month, Worton Grange will hold its regular business and social meeting. Sister Mary Parsons as Flora will have charge of the literary program of this meeting and the gents will show us what they can do in the way of refreshments. Sister Parsons has prepared a fine program for this occcasion, consisting of readings, recitations, music and singing, and while we know this is a busy season with the farmers, yet all should make an effort to be present, for remember these meetings are only being held once a month and each meeting promises to be better than the last.

So come. Be on hand at 8 o'clock sharp,
To enjoy the music of fiddle and harp,
A few of our members, of course, to other places will hie,
But the treat they are missing,
O, my! O, my!!

Kennedyville Grange held a meeting on Monday evening. The next meeting will be held Friday evening, July 2nd. Business of importance will be discussed. Members are requested to be present.

It Must Be So.

"It's 'cinched,' I tell you."

"And I say you've lost your mind."

Thus the debate goes between the Lee and Harrington advocates.

Unless the wise ones are deceived the Lee people believe every word they say. The Harrington people are, likewise, confident that the opposition is crazy. They have always felt that way about the Lee people, and there is consolation in holding to that view at the present time.

The Harrington folk raise a finger in solemn warning.

"Things," they say, "are happening that no one knows anything about."

It must be so.

Are you in "Kent County And Those Who Make It"?

THOUGHTLESS FRIENDS.

They Mean Well Enough, but They Will Do Such Queer Things.

"Most of the annoyances of life are caused by friends," writes James Montgomery Flagg in the American Magazine. "It doesn't annoy you when your enemy tries to get you in bad. You don't expect anything else from him. It's his regular business. You'd feel that he was a pretty measly sort of enemy if he didn't try to puncture one of your tires! Then you can think and speak about him as a leprous horned toad. But you can't think or speak about a friend that way when he gets under your skin. He's your friend! That's all there is to it—he did it, and he's a feeble minded anteater, but he's still your friend!

"Only a dear friend would greet you when you're feeling peculiarly gay and fit with, 'Sa-a-ay! What's the trouble? You look positively green, old horse! Don't you feel well? You ought to take a long rest, that's right; I don't like that hollow eyed look of yours, perhaps it's your heart.'

"Or come up behind you when you are looking calmly at some old prints in a window on the avenue and forgetting there are such things in the world as idiotic friends, and let his enormous flat nine pound hand down on you between your shoulders so that you think for the moment that a prehistoric mule with hoofs on him the size of the rubbish receptacles on the corners has planted them in the interior of your lungs! Only a friend could inspire such diabolical and streaming hatred that rises up in the wreck of your breast, when you manage to turn and see what hit you!

"Or if you happen to ask certain friends to go motoring several times and have them to dinner quite often, and you let two or three Sundays go by without asking them, it is only dear friends who would, on meeting you next time, greet you with a Hudson Bay expression and a bucket of sarcasm!

"Or, speaking of the sex that is responsible for all the poets, who but a true and tried friend would put over to her friend, 'Oh, Camille, you were such a pretty girl as a young girl, and you did have the loveliest clothes!'"

MEDICINE HAT.

The Indian Chief From Whom the Canadian City Was Named.

Not many persons know what was the origin of the strange name borne by the Canadian city that Mr. Rudyard Kipling once called "the city born lucky."

The word "medicine" means more to an Indian than to us. We think of it as meaning something nasty that is good for us, but the Indian distinguishes as "good medicine" and "bad medicine" anything that he fancies will change his fortunes for better or for worse. Imagine that Lo is hunting antelope and meeting with no success. Presently he finds an empty cartridge shell or the top of a tomato tin, and shortly afterward he gets a shot at his game. Can he doubt that the piece of tin or the shell gave the luck? Not he. He wears that fragment of tomato tin or empty shell about his neck with his other jewelry, and it is "good medicine."

Several years ago there was a Blackfoot chief who lived in the vicinity of Seven Persons River, where now stands the city of Medicine Hat. He and his tribe were fond of hunting and of making war on their enemies, the Crees. This chief always wore a headdress of feathers that he called his "medicine hat," for he thought that it brought him good fortune.

It was a dark day for the chief when he last met the Crees at the place where now stands the growing city. He and his men fell upon the enemy with great bravery and even put them to ignominious flight. But just then a gust of wind whirled out of the west, caught the magic hat and tossed it into the swift running Saskatchewan river. Instantly the poor chief lost all confidence in himself and his cause, and with victory in his hand he forbore to grasp it, but fled over the plains toward the Rockies, followed by his tribe.—Youth's Companion.

A TIMELY GIFT.

It Wasn't Much, but It Meant a Great Deal to Dr. Anna Shaw.

When Dr. Anna Howard Shaw was studying theology in Boston she was very poor and had to depend on the little preaching she did to pay her expenses. After a week's hard work at a revival, for which she received no money, she was heartsick and discouraged. She tells the story thus in the Metropolitan Magazine:

I was friendless, penniless and starving, but it was not of these conditions that I thought then. The one overwhelming fact was that I had been weighed and found wanting. I was not worthy.

I stumbled along, passing blindly a woman who stood near the church entrance. She stopped me timidly and held out her hand. Then suddenly she put her arms around me and wept. She was an old lady, and I did not know her, but it seemed fitting that she should cry just then, as it would have seemed fitting to me if at that black moment all the people on the earth had broken into sudden wailing.

"Oh, Miss Shaw," she said, "I'm the happiest woman in the world, and I owe my happiness to you! Tonight you have converted my grandson. He's all I have left, but he has been a wild boy, and I've prayed over him for years. Hereafter he is going to lead a different life. He has just given me his promise on his knees."

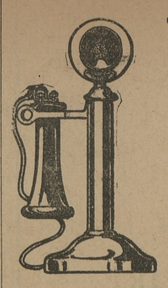
Her hand fumbled in her purse.

"I am a poor woman," she went on, "but I have enough, and I want to make you a little present. I know how hard life is for you young students."

She pressed a bill into my fingers. "It's very little," she said humbly; "it is only $5!"

I laughed, and in that exultant moment I seemed to hear life laughing with me. With the passing of the bill from her hand to mine existence had become a new experience, wonderful and beautiful.

"It is the biggest gift I have ever had," I told her. "This little bill is big enough to carry my future on its back!"



The Telephone Gets You There First

The lines of the Bell telephone system extend like a network over the state and country. There is a Bell talk-train ready to start whenever you are—whether it be a call to somebody in your home town or in another part of the United States.

Often a call by telephone will gain admittance for you where a call in person would be fruitless. Bell lines reach everywhere and rates for out-of-town talks are reasonable.
