Why Compare Beef and Coal Profits?

Swift & Company has frequently stated that its profit on beef averages only one-fourth of a cent a pound, and hence has practically no effect on the price.

Comparison has been made by the Federal Trade Commission of this profit with the profit on coal, and it has pointed out that anthracite coal operators are content with a profit of 25 cents a ton, whereas the beef profit of one-fourth of a cent a pound means a profit of $5.00 a ton.

The comparison does not point out that anthracite coal at the seaboard is worth at wholesale about $7.00 a ton, whereas a ton of beef of fair quality is worth about $400.00 wholesale.

To carry the comparison further, the 25 cent profit on coal is 3½ per cent of the $7.00 value.

The $5.00 profit on beef is only 1¼ per cent of the $400.00 value.

The profit has little effect on price in either case, but has less effect on the price of beef than on the price of coal.

Coal may be stored in the open air indefinitely; beef must be kept in expensive coolers because it is highly perishable and must be refrigerated.

Coal is handled by the carload or ton; beef is delivered to retailers by the pound or hundred weight.

Methods of handling are vastly different. Coal is handled in open cars; beef must be shipped in refrigerator cars at an even temperature.

Fairness to the public, fairness to Swift & Company, fairness to the packing industry, demands that these indisputable facts be considered. It is impossible to disprove Swift & Company's statement, that its profits on beef are so small as to have practically no effect on prices.

THE TURN TOWARD PEACE

Big Problems Which Confront The Nation For Settlement

The United States has now turned toward the ways of peace as quickly as it turned to war. With the military strength of the Central Powers shattered and hostilities ceased under the terms that preclude a renewal of the great struggle, the United States with the Associated Governments, have taken up the problems of reconstruction. Immediately ahead, diplomatic Washington sees the peace conference—the world's court of justice before which Germany as the chief criminal with Austria, Turkey and Bulgaria will stand as prisoners at the bar. When or where the final peace negotiations will be held, officials will not conjecture. Thirty days is the time allowed under the armistice terms for assembling of the peace congress. The military authorities look to the breaking up and return to civilian life of the great army mobilized in the past nineteen months. Further increase of the military forces was checked through cancellation of all outstanding draft calls.

The return home of the nearly two and a quarter million men overseas and the mustering out of the million and a half troops in camps in this country will not come immediately. The United States entering the war last will probably be called upon to do much of the police and guard duty in France and Belgium. Future events in Russia are uncertain and the small force there may have to be augmented.

The newly constructed and rapidly increasing merchant marine must not only bring the men from France, but carry to France and Belgium, devastated by the war, to lands of Southern Europe long unproductive through lack of man power and even to the enemy nations, foodstuffs, clothing and the means of keeping alive the war-weakened populations.

Industrially the change from war to peace will create as many problems as the change from peace to war. War contract plants must be converted to make the commodities of peace. Workers engaged in such plants must be assimilated in peace production. Wage standards, changed by the war must be readjusted. The position of women in industry must also be determined.

The returned soldier must have work and a home.

Government control of the railroads, while insured for twenty-one months longer, must be decided as to permanency or abandonment as well as the control of the telegraph and telephone systems. Supervision of food and fuel distribution and the fixing of prices for necessary commodities are other problems of reconstruction.

With the war behind and peace ahead, Government officials in no wise discount the tasks of the future. The great problems of war must be supplemented by the important questions of peace and reconstruction.

Peninsula Horticultural Society To Meet

The Peninsula Horticultural Society has arranged a very interesting and instructive program for the meeting to be held in Bridgeville, Delaware, on Jan. 14, 15 and 16. F. M. Soper, the apple king, will report on apples and Orlando Harrison, the peach and nursery king, will report on peaches. There will be experts on all phases of the spraying proposition and Prof. McCue, of Delaware College, will conduct a round table on spraying in which experts, both scientific and practical will take part and give their experiences. Dr. Quaintance, U. S. Entomologist, who for years has been investigating fruit insects; Dr. Headlee, State Entomologist of New Jersey, and Prof. Ernest N. Cory, State Entomologist of Maryland, will all be present and will be able to tell all that is known about these pests and how to get rid of them. A dozen other speakers will take part in the program and the State Corn Show program will follow immediately. The apple show will be the biggest and best ever held on the Peninsula.

The State Grange will meet in Dover on Tuesday, Dec. 10. Horace L. Dilworth, of Wilmington, will preside.

You Must Do The Talking

The telephone system can carry your voice, or another voice to you, but it can not talk or hear for you.

When the operator at the central office has connected your telephone with another, she has canceled the distance between the caller and the person called; but clear speaking, attentive listening and mutual courtesy are in order if the ensuing conversation is to be satisfactory.

In the Bell System there is untiring effort to give satisfactory service, but the cooperation of the public is always necessary.
