The Passing

The west wind sleeps upon the purple butte,
No echo mocks the coyote's mordant cry,
Beneath the silent moon the prairie creeps
Out to the sage-brush edges of the sky.

And where are now the thousand mighty herds,
That long since thundered o'er this drowsy sod,
Those shaggy monarchs of the desert plain,
Those grim creations of the prairie God?

A few remain—and while our wise men probe
For some lost tales of Thebes or Babylon,
This remnant, without protest from the land,
Heads for the last dim trail and passes on.

If these must die, in honor to their State,
Far better let them plunge with burning breath
In headlong stampede from some sheer -faced cliff,
Magnificent as they have lived—to death.

—Thomas H. Ferril.

Billions of Young Fish.—If the fish eggs propagated every year in the state's hatcheries and widely distributed survived diseases, escaped their enemies, and if sufficiently supplied with food to reach maturity, Maryland rivers and streams would be fairly blocked with fish, say the state authorities.

The War and Influenza.

were two abnormal conditions appertaining to Life Insurance that came to the surface during the year just passed, concerning which we simply state and we have pride in the manner the conditions were met.

THEY FOUND THE BALTIMORE LIFE INS. CO. PREPARED

The death claims among those of our policy holders who were in the SERVICE, and the death claims caused by the epidemic of FLUE and PNEUMONIA, approximating a QUARTER OF A MILLION DOLLARS (from those two causes alone) were paid immediately on receipt of proof of death, and not one claim was held in our office seven hours.

IT PAID ITS CLAIMS.
