SACHS' SERVICE SHOE STORE
5th Anniversary Spring Opening.

Five years ago we opened an "EXCLUSIVE SHOE STORE" in the little store room of the Toulson Bldg. At a small expense, with but one purpose in view, namely, "TO UNDERSELL," public opinion has decreed that we have succeedd from the start.

Five years increased business has enabled us to buy and sell in larger quantities at lower prices, thus giving you extraordinary values. Five years of constant application to one particular line, caerfully fitting all feet, guarding against any misfits, and selling only the very best makes of shoes, have gained for us the good will of all our customers, extending over a radius of fifty miles or more.

Our best advertisement is our customers.

There are no complaints, because we make good any unsatisfactory purchase.

Farmers, List Your Repair Needs

It would be hard to find a farmer who at some time or another had not lost valuable time waiting for necessary repair parts. Take this territory and total up the time lost in this way and it will astonish you. And all because repairs are not odered as early as they should be.

There is no better time than right now—just before the busiest season on the farm—to go over your machines carefully, make a list of repairs you are likely to need and send it to us. With this list in our hands, we can order our stock so as to be prepared to meet every call promptly.

Repair part service is a necessary part of our business. We realize what it means to you in time and money to get what you need at once. Help us to help you by making up your list now and sending it in to us.

A BUSINESS STATEMENT A HUMAN DOCUMENT

The business statement of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. for 1921 contains interesting matter not generally found in the statement of a financial corporation. It relates to the human side of a great business. The Company's assets are more than one billion, one hundred and fifteen million dollars and its policies outstanding are more than twenty-five and a half millions. Many people hold more than one policy and the best estimate of the Company is that this number of policies insures, in round numbers, nineteen million individuals. As over twenty million of the policies are the so-called Industrial, on which premiums are collected weekly by Agents who call at the policy-holders' homes, this gives to a Company with the financial strength of the Metropolitan an opportunity for health and welfare work. The statement published shows how the Company has accepted this opportunity.

While the year 1921 in the popular mind is put down as a year of dull business, life insurance has been an exception. The Metropolitan again held the record among all companies in the world in 1921 with $1,564,789,607 new insurance placed on the books. Its assets increased more than one hundred and thirty million dollars, and its income was $38,462,919 more than it was in 1920.

For many years the Company's principal business was Industrial—small policies generally held by the working men of America and their families. But lately the so-called Ordinary insurance, where the premiums are paid quarterly, semi-annually or annually, has so increased that this branch of the business now exceeds the Industrial in amount.

In accepting the opportunity for health and welfare work, the Company extended the free nursing service given to Industrial policy-holders so that last year it was effective in 2,800 cities and towns and the nurses made more than 2,100,000 free visits. Arrangements have been completed by which employers, insuring their employees under group policies, receive the benefits of the nursing service and welfare literature.

In making their weekly calls to collect premiums, the 16,000 Agents distributed booklets and pamphlets dealing with health and disease, telling in simple language how to avoid preventable diseases and what to do if the policy-holders are sick. More than twenty-five millions of these pamphlets were distributed in this way last year. In connection with the Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, the Company is conducting a great experiment at Framingham, Mass. This city was selected as a typical American city with a population of about the average character. The Company financed the Tuberculosis Society in a demonstration to show what proper municipal health regulation can do toward wiping out this disease. Practically all the population were examined for signs of this disease, and then, with physicians to advise them, measures were taken to improve the conditions and for the general betterment of the health of the city. The experiment is watched by health authorities throughout the country. One result has been that deaths from tuberculosis in Framingham during the three or four years that the experiment has been in progress have dropped from the rate of 121 per 100,000 to 40. The health authorities and the people of that city have been so impressed with these beneficial results that they have greatly increased their own municipal appropriation for the health department.

The lack of housing space in so many cities of the country, due to the lack of building during the war, caused the Metropolitan to make a systematic and widespread effort to build new moderate priced houses and apartments. During 1920 and 1921 the Company loaned, and pledged itself to loan, $68,080,000 on new dwellings and apartment houses providing homes for 17,744 families.

In 1921 the death rate among Industrial policy-holders reached its lowest point—31 per cent. lower than it was ten years previous. The rate from typhoid fever decreased 71 per cent.; from tuberculosis, 49 per cent.; from Bright's disease, nearly 30 per cent. and from infectious diseases of children nearly 37 per cent. The records kept by the Company show that, compared with 1911, there were, in 1921, 55,000 fewer deaths than there would have been if the 1911 death rate had prevailed. While there has been a general public health movement and notable progress in medical science and sanitation, which contributed in part, there is evidence that a considerable factor in reducing the death rate among policy-holders of the Company has been the widespread health campaign carried on by the Company.

The Metropolitan announces it will continue its best efforts for the improvement of health and the consequent saving of life, recognizing that the confidence which the American people have in the Company gives it still greater opportunity to serve them, not only in insurance protection, but in the prolongation of life. Those who have the management of its finances believe that great opportunity brings great responsibility.

To Have Place In Hall Of Fame

Provision is made in the supplementary budget which Governor Ritchie sent to the Legislature March 20 for $500 for the painting of the portrait of Miss Mary E. W. Risteau, of Jarrettsville, Harford county, the first woman members of the General Assembly of Maryland, to be hung in the State House.

The House unanimously adopted a resolution introduced by Delegate Joseph, Third District, authorizing Gov. Ritchie to purchase a picture of Miss Risteau. On motion offered by Delegate Roberts, Prince Georges, the House considered the resolution immediately after the Speaker had referred it to the Ways and Means Committee.
