NEWSY TIDINGS FROM OUR BOYS

The "News" Will Be Glad To Mention Any Items of Interest You May Send About Your Soldier Lad

Harry Derringer, of the U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, is visiting his mother, Mrs. Alice Derringer, in Chestertown. Harry in on a 20-day furlough after a summer cruise with 1200 other cadets.

John William Newton, Jr., the captain of the last big company of soldiers to leave Kent has written a very interesting letter to his parents who live in Worton. The letter is especially amusing when it is remembered that John has not been in the habit of doing much work about the house He says, "I peeled potatoes for two hours and have done more scrubbing than all the rest of my life. But there is this about it, being in kitchen you get plenty to eat."

Mr. and Mrs. William T. Durham received a letter from their son, Corporal William T. Durham, Jr. He said he had a fine trip over and he was feeling fine at this writing, and when he gets home it will take him a week to tell us about his trip. He likes the country for it looked like home. They were just harvesting wheat when he arrived.

With two sons on the edge of the great war arena in Europe, and the wife of one of the sons in the canteen service of the American Red Cross in France, Mrs. Mary A. Starr, of Galena, undoubtedly holds the unique record of Kent county for contributing to the Allied cause.

William L. Starr, the youngest son who is a corporal in the 310 Field Artillery is somewhere in England. George L. Starr leaves in a few days for Italy as a correspondent. Mrs. George L. Starr, the wife of the oldest son, sailed from a Atlantic port recently for France with a unit of the American Red Cross. In three different parts of the globe the Starr family is being represented in the fight for democracy. Mrs. Starr, who was formerly of Utah, recently spent a seven-day period in Galena with her husband on the eve of their departure for overseas. She enlisted in the Red Cross eight months ago and reported on August 10 for service.

Corporal Starr who is somewhere in England has written a very interesting letter back to the States to his mother which broadly tells of the great friendship existing between the Yank and Tommie. So good is the Galena boy's letter in the effort to show the welcome hand the British people extend to the Americans that the letter is being printed all over the States today.

Though the older brother George L. is not in the ranks of the army, he goes as a war correspondent for one of the biggest news wire syndicates in the country. And the path of the correspondent at this time is by no means a path of roses. Instead several of the scribes have performed heroic work. Only recently Floyd Gibbons, the noted Chicago correspondent, while keeping pace with the Yanks in the Chateau-Thiery salient picked up a gun of a Yankee who was killed by a Hun, and was wounded three times before being forced to give up. The younger Galena war correspondent leaves in two days for Italy.

Another striking illustration that the British people are receiving the Yankee soldiers with welcome arms and making life comfortable for them during their stay in England is pictured in a letter received from Corporal William L. Starr, of the 310th Field Artilleryy. He is somewhere in England, on the eve of his departure for France. Corporal Starr speaks highly of the National Red Cross, including both the American and British organizations and adds a good word for the work of the Y. M. C. A.

Included in the 310 Field Artillery are many Chestertown boys, and at present they are having a delightful time in seeing some of the big cities, and historical sites of England during their spare moments from training. A curiosity to the Yanks is the railroads in England, after riding in the big passenger cars in the States.

One of the greatest amusements Corporal Starr declares the Yanks have is counting British money they get in change after making purchases in England stores. This stunt he says furnishes lots of amusement.

In part Corporal Starr says: "The boys of the 310th Field Artillery, including boys from Maryland, Delaware and Pennsylvania are all well and happy in a rest camp somewhere in England. We are seeing some wonderful sights over here and have been fortunate to enjoy trips through some of the big cities of England. A honor was given us recently of inspecting the oldest church in the world.

"The railroads here sure are a curiosity after looking over the type used in the States. It is really funny to see the little engines and cars. The freight cars hold about eight or ten tons. One of the most odd features about these cars which shows how far back England is in comparison with the advancement of the States is that the freight car wheels have the old style spokes in them instead of the solid iron wheels like they use in the United States. The street cars have an upper and lower part for passengers and the conductors are all women. Women do most of the work here.

"Another odd thing, I noticed was the passenger cars. Instead of the big cozy cars used in the States, England has passenger coaches divided into compartments. Each compartment holds eight people to each car.

"One of the greatest sports we have is counting our change after buying something in the stores. For some of the Yanks it is real sport and I must say, I like the sport also for it offers something different.

"Before I close my letter, I must say a word for the Red Cross both in the States and over here. I got my first inkling of the great work this organization was doing when we left an Atlantic port. They gave us excellent lunches, while the Y. M. C. A. provided plenty of books for all abroad to read. When we arrived at an English port the same reception awaited us from the Red Cross. The people are giving us a royal welcome wherever we go and look on the Yanks as the real soldiers sent over to save the Allies."

Henry Kratzer, of the U. S. Aviation Service, Dayton, Ohio, is spending several days with his parents in Quaker Neck.

The following two are called for limited service and will report to Camp Humphrey's tomorrow, Sept. 5: W. Fred Staats, Rock Hall; Joseph Thomas Jones, Millington.

Among the soldier boys home from Camp Meade on Sunday were: Corporal Joseph R. Lambert, Privates Earle Dodson, Dave Connelly, Graham Nelson, Eli Elliott, Frank Turner and Conlyn Noland.

Jack Barroll, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hope H. Barroll, has enlisted in the Naval Reserves and left last week for training.

A card was received in Chestertown last week by a friend from Frank Passwater, formerly station agent at Chestertown, that he had arrived safe overseas.

Capt. Louis Lamborn, of Camp Meade, was the guest on Saturday of his uncle, Capt. W. J. Taylor, of the Md., Del. & Va. Railway.

Lieut. Floyd Brown, of the U. S. Marines, spent a short furlough in town last week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Brown.

In a letter received by Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hirons, from their son, Norman, he says he has seen Lee Gill and Walter Truitt, and was certainly glad to have seen them. Walter is stationed a short distance out of the city from where Norman is.

Kenneth G. Faulkner, organist of Starr Methodist Protestant Church, Baltimore, received a telegram announcing the death of his brother, Gordon L. Faulkner, who was killed in action in France, July 30. Young Faulkner, who was 27 years old, enlisted during the Mexican uprising, and after serving on the border for several months was discharged. When this country entered the war he enlisted in the 110th United States Machine Gun Company and was sent to France last May. The last letter received from young Faulkner was dated August 1, in which he said that he was well and had seen some of the thickest fighting. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Faulkner, of Chester, Pa., formerly of Crumpton and Templeville.

CHESTERTOWN; MD.

Depositors in the several Banks in Kent County are receiving approximately

$20,000 Per Annum

on their Savings Accounts than they would be receiving but for the action of this bank in advancing the rate of interest from three to FOUR per cent. thus forcing all the other banking institutions to do likewise.

And the FOUR per cent rate is being maintained today solely by the refusal of this bank to enter into any agreement or combine to put the rate back to three per cent.

Many depositors are showing their appreciation of the benefits accruing to them as the direct result of the action of this bank, as is evidenced by the continued steady growth and increase in deposits—many more would place at least a part of their deposits here if they would take time to carefully consider the situation and conditions.

Because this bank declines to enter into any agreement or combine to reduce the interest rate to Three per cent. it is subjected to unfraternal proscriptions and indignities unknown in banking circles of any other community.

But still we "Carry On."

The Peoples Bank is now OFFICIAL DEPOSITORY, for the U. S. Government, State of Maryland and Kent county.

Good enough for "Uncle Sam," should be good enough for you.

You may deposit in this bank under any or all of three distinct kinds of accounts, viz: Active or Checking Account; Ordinary Savings Account; and Certificate of Deposit, or Time Account.
