Quartet Chosen In Contest By Czar

The Russian Cathedral Quartet, which will appear at the Chautauqua, is recognized as one of the finest in both Europe and America. They are musicians of high standing who have sung from early boyhood in the famous Cathedrals of Russia under the personal patronage of the former Czar.

These four singers were selected by Czar Nicholas to come to America to interpret Russian folk songs and church music. They were also selected to sing at the Russian Cathedral in New York where a quartet was needed which should embrace the highest and lowest voices, conditions made necessary by the fact that the Cathedral has no organ, and accordingly required long range voices to give substance and variety to its music.

In addition to the local Russian population the quartet has been known only to music lovers who made pilgrimages to the Russian Cathedral to hear them, as they were permitted by the Russian Government to give but one concert a year in this country, but now that the reign of the Czar is ended the public may hear them.

Some time ago they sang in Washington, D. C., and received the high compliment of being personally invited by the President to visit the White House.

Their programs are made up entirely of Russian folk songs and church music, which is of a character that has for years challenged the admiration of the musical world.
