DAIRY FACTS

TIMOTHY HAY NOT GOOD FEED

Animal Husbandry Men at New York State College Point Out Superiority of Legumes.

If you want to increase the cost of producing milk, feed timothy hay to your dairy.

This is the way the animal husbandry men at the New York state college of agriculture are pointing out to the farmers of the state the superiority of legume hay over the non-legumes, such as timothy, for feeding.

They tell of an experiment which showed this clearly. Two lots of cows received identical rations aside from the hay feed. The groups were alternately fed either ten pounds of alfalfa hay or ten pounds of timothy hay. The result indicated that the alfalfa ration produced 17 per cent more milk.

For dairy cows. clover and alfalfa have practically the same value. Alfalfa sharpens the appetite and gives greater gains in weight, but excessive feeding without sufficient variety may overstimulate the kidneys.

Legume hays are good substitutes for concentrates in the ration. With all factors equal as to cows, feeds, nutritive ratio, and the like, milk production has been fully sustained in some tests by substituting eight pounds of alfalfa hay for eight pounds of wheat bran. Good soy bean hay can be used in the same way. With wheat bran or other concentrates at $45 a ton and alfalfa and clover at $20, what this means in cheapening rations the college thinks is apparent.

AGE FOR BREEDING HEIFERS

Safe Rule to Follow Is to Wait Until Animals Are at Least Seventeen Months Old.

It is a recognized method among the best dairymen that crowding heifers to breeding season never makes them as strong, and is apt to lower their production later. Breeding them too young, say at twelve to fourteen months of age, often gives trouble at calving time; they are usually smaller and not so strong as more mature heifers, and seldom have as good records.

Heifers that are well fed at the start may be bred earlier than those which have but little feed besides pasture. A safe rule to follow is to wait for breeding until they are at least seventeen months old, and later if they are not well grown.

SOY BEANS SUPPLY PROTEIN

Provide Valuable Supplement to Ration of Corn Silage, Alfalfa Hay and Oats.

Soy beans grown on the farm give promise of providing many dairymen with a valuable protein supplement which will make them independent of high-priced protein feds, say the dairymen at Iowa State college.

Experiments carried on with a number of cows showed that cracked soy beans proved to be worth $60 a ton for the feeding of milk cows when old-process linseed oilmeal was worth $45 per ton, and so they prove to be a valuable supplement to a home-grown ration of corn silage, alfalfa hay, cracked corn and ground oats. In other words, cracked soy beans, when fed with the home-grown ration mentioned, are worth one-third more than oilmeal.

PUREBREDS REPLACE SCRUBS

Nearly 1,000 Inferior Bulls Discarded in Contest Recently Closed in Kansas.

In the Kansas better-bull contest recently closed live stock men and agricultural college officials of the state replaced nearly 1,000 scrub bulls with purebreds. This is a part of an active purebred-sire campaign which the extension service of the state is conducting. A specialist in animal husbandry has been designated leader in the work and is co-operating with the United States Department of Agriculture in "Better sires—better stock" activities.

DEHORN CALVES WHEN YOUNG

Caustic Stick Should Be Kept in Handy Place by All Dairymen—Horn Soon Killed.

Every dairyman should keep a caustic stick handy and dehorn calves while young. When the calf is a day or two old, the horns or "buttons" are small and can be easily taken off. Applying salve around the "button" before rubbing on the caustic will protect the skin, and the tiny horn will soon disappear. One application is usually sufficient.

Butter Made on Farms.

While millions of pounds of butter are made in the large creameries, it is estimated that 60 per cent of all the butter used in the United States is made on farms, and from herds of less than 10 cows.

Successful Dairyman.

When you find a clock, a thermometer, a set of milk scales and a milk-record sheet in daily use in the cow barn you are quite certain to be in the vicinity of a successful dairyman, or of one who will succeed.

Today's Wise Word.

Decision of character is one of the most important of human qualities.

Friends Day.

The first annual celebration of "Old Friends Day" will be held at St. Paul's P. E. Church, this county, on June 10th. Old Friends Day has been instituted as the means of bringing together annually all those who are interested in the Church and cemetery.

What Gray Has Done the Frst Year

The Grey Motor Company, in 11 months, has established a national dealer organization that places it among the leaders in national distribution.

It is exporting cars to about 30 different countries and adding to the number constantly.

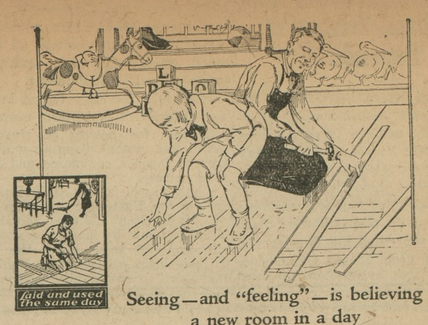
Additions to plant have been made regularly to take care of increased demand.

Plan to construct assembling plants in the South, East, West and Southwest.

The company is one of the strongest backed financially in the industry.

Woman Has "Some" Job.

The business man who thinks he has real problems is "kidding" himself. If he doubt this, he should consult his wife about problems that really are problems—planning meals, keeping up with the fashions, and running the home to suit as many different tastes as there are members of the family. —Exchange.



Seeing—and "feeling"—is believing a new room in a day

Changing to a cheerful, sanitary hardwood floor certainly does make a room seem like new. But—such new room in a day, that may sound exaggerated. Well it isn't. CROMAR is the reason.

You see, what makes the installation of an ordinary hardwood floor take so long, is the scraping—and polishing—and several coats of finishing—and drying—after the laying. Incidentally, that runs up the cost.

But CROMAR, the patented hardwood floor, is completely finished by machines, at the factory. Two carpenters start laying CROMAR right over your old floor in the morning, and you use that "new" room in the evening!

You ought to know all about CROMAR. Get in touch with your Retail Lumber Dealer today—and write us for complete literature.
