MISCELLANY.

From an English Paper.

JACK FROST.

"O, ho! O, ho!" quoth old Jack Frost,
As he sped on his wint'ry way;
And he laughed, delighted,
As he nipped and blighted
The things men deemed most gay.
He made the old oak, and the poplar tall,
Bend low at his stormy blast,
And the last yellow leaves to quiver and fall
Before his might as he passed.

"O, ho! O, ho!" quoth old Jack Frost,
As he looked at the farmer's fireside,
And he saw the huge log
On the bright iron dog,
And a flagon and tankard beside:
And heard the gay jest, and the loud merry laugh,
As they trill'd forth their christmas rhymes
How happy they grew as the liquour they'd quaff—
Jack gave a huzza for old times!

"O, ho! O, ho!" quoth old Jack Frost,
As a nobleman's house he passed through,
And saw turkey and chine,
And brandy and wine,
"These, indeed, are rare times for you!"
And the rich man doz'd in his easy arm-chair
And his fire blazed fiercely and bold,
But he [illegible] thought one morsel to spare
For those that were hungry and cold.

"O, ho! O, ho!" sighed old Jack Frost,
As he looked in the poor man's hut;
Dark, dirty, and drear,
And no fire to cheer,
Without window or door that would shut!
And a half-clad mother her children cuddled,
To give warmth to the nestling brood;
And the little ones cried, as together they huddled,
"Oh, motner pray give us some food!"

"O, ho! O, ho!" sighed old Jack Frost,
At a sight he loved not to see,
For paupers he saw,
Condemed by the law,
To feast upon skilligalee.
And he heard the poor wretches refused even that,
By the flint-hearted over-seer;
He believed not their tale, as cozy he sat,
Their heart rending cases to hear.

"O, ho! O, ho!" doled forth Jack Frost,
As he went far and wide thro' all parts;
"I came here to see,
Mirth, comfort, and glee,
Not to deaden and freeze up men's hearts.
I'll leave the world to the bright sun's beam,
Whose brilliance I laughed at before;
And may the warmth of its genial gleam,
Cause the rich to remember the poor."

A LOVE STORY.

FROM FREDERIKA BREMER.

A young farmer loved at the same time two young women, and though strangely enough, loved both with as nearly as possible the same affection, and they both of them warmly returned his passion. But one of them showed for him an almost boundless devotion; and perhaps this might be the cause that at once, with more determined sentiment, he turned towards the other; but she answered him, "I will not be married amid the sighs of an unhappy one, and it is now thy duty to marry Kirsten. To me thou wilt ever remain dear, but now we must part."

What a field there would have been here for the French romantic! What agony, ravings, explosions and explications without end! Here had been sacrifices and poisonings, and at last three corpses. But how simply did the genius of the Dal people resolve this knotty point! The young man obeyed the exhortations of the serious damsel, obeyed that of duty; he married Kirsten; and as they were both truly good and excellent people, they were happy together.

They had lived happily together for four years, and had three children, when the wife died. But as she lay on her death bed, she said to her husband, "I would ask one thing of thee, and that is, that thou after my death, will marry Anna, who was once, and still is dear to thee, and who I know loves thee, and that thou makest no other the mother of my children.

The husband mourned sincerely the loss of his wife, but when the customary period of mourning had expired, it was not difficult for him to endeavor to fulfil her last prayers. He went to the still unmarried, the still beloved Anna, and told her the wish of his late wife, and his own.

"Thou art still as dear to me as formerly," said she, "and willingly would I be thy wife, but I fear that I could not be to them such a mother, that I could not answer it to my conscience and the dead, and that would make thee dissatisfied with me.'

And by that reply Anna stood fast, spite of all arguments of love and reason that were employed to move her. Quite distracted came the young man, one day, and implored my counsel, and begged me talk to the girl, and endeavor to persuade her to become his wife.

"To seek to persuade her I cannot promise thee," I said, "for in so solemn an affair a woman should make a resolve in freedom; but speak to her I will, and tell her what I think, and advise in the matter."

"I sent for the young woman, talked with her of her future duties, and succeeded in pacifying her all too sensitive conscience. Soon after I had the pleasure of uniting the two lovers. A few years afterwards I came on an official journey to the district where they resided. It was a dark autumn evening, and cold and dull without; but when I entered their room, the fire blazed cherrily, and by its light on the floor played four children, full of pleasure. Husband and wife arose to meet the enterer, but when they recognised me again they began to weep.

"Ask her, ask her;" said the husband, and pointed to the wife, "whether she is not satisfied with me?" But I did not ask her—I saw warm and happy tears already speaking.

NEW SEIRES
OF THE
CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE AND APPENDIX,
TO BE STEREOTYPED.

THE undersigned originated the mode of journalizing the proceedings of Congress, which presented them entire. Their publication was the first and only one that gave each successive step in every measure in both branches of Congress; a brief of all the debates; every important vote; and an Appendix, including at full length all the revised speeches delivered during the session. The work thus conducted by them is a most perfect political history. The Senators from the States and the Representatives from every section of the Union bring with them into Congress a knowledge of the feelings, sentiments, and interests of their several constituencies. Public opinion and the public information, as it exists among those they represent, are embodied by them, and in the crucible of Congress the wisdom of our times is brought to its test, and is there concentrated, in directing the political movements of the whole country. The impulses thus given through Congress from every quarter react upon the nation as a whole, and all its component parts made tom ove to co-operation. The press cannot be more usefully employed than in condensing and again spreading abroad the intelligence of our free country, tending to such happy results thro' our almost miraculously adjusted State and National institutions.

Having identified ourselves with the plan of advancing the usefulness of Congress by publishing full and impartial reports, and having a large mass of the Congressional Globe and Appendix, issued during the last ten years, which would be impaired in value to us and utility to the public if the work were discontinued, we have a double motive to prompt us to extend it through a new series. We are resolved if possible to give it permanence, and to hand it down to successors as a standard work, worthy of being maintained and improved. We shall enter upon our new undertaking without being distracted or burdened by any associate labors of the press; and, thus unencumbered, shall hope to make the new series a step in advance of the former in all points of execution. With a view to accomplish this, we shall be (one or the other) always in attendance in Congress—will compare the manuscript of our own reporters with the daily reports of the city papers—correct all by our own observation and knowledge of the proceedings; and in important matters, where that will not assure us of the fidelity of the reports, we will procure the aid of the members themselves, to obtain the exact scope of their remarks. The work thus authenticated, will be stereotyped, which is a guaranty that we will make it as perfect as it is possible for us to make it, as we would not incur the expense of stereotyping it, if we did not feel confident of its superiority over all works of the kind which have been or are likely to be published.—Stereotyping the work will enable us to supply lost or mutilated numbers, which we will do, without making any charge for them.

The Congressional Globe is made up of the daily proceedings of the two Houses of Congress, The speeches of the members are condensed, to bring them into a readable length. All the resolutions offered, or motions made, are given in the mover's own words; and the yeas and nays on all the important questions. It is printed with small type—brevier and nonpariel—on a double royal sheet, in quarto form, each number containing sixteen royal quarto pages.

The Appendix is made up of the President's annual message, the reports of the principal officers of the Government that accompany it, and all the long speeches of members of Congress, written out or revised by themselves. It is printed in the same form as the Congressional Globe, and usually makes about the same number of pages.

We print the numbers as fast as the proceedings of Congress furnish enough matter for a number. During the first month or six weeks of a session, there is rarely more business done than will make one number of the Congressional Globe and one number of the Appendix a week; but during the remainder of a session there is usually sufficient matter for two or three numbers of each every week. The next session will be a long one, and it is supposed will be unusually interesting; therefore, we calculate that the Congressional Globe and Appendix will each make near one thousand large quarto pages, printed in small type—brevier and nonpareil. We furnish complete indexes to both at the end of a session.

We have on hand the Congressional Globe and Appendix for the last twelve sessions of Congress, of which five were long and seven were short sessions. The Congressional Globe and Appendix for each session are bound together in excellent binding, with Russia backs and corners. Our prices for them, thus bound together, are $3 a volume for a short, and $5 a volume for a long session, making $46 for a full set. Those who want the back volumes should apply for them immediately, as they are in demand. The last Congress subscribed for two hundred and twenty-six sets; and it is probable that the next will subscribe for at least as many more, as the proceedings of Congress for the last eight years cannot be procured from any other source, Gales & Seaton having stopped printing their Register of Debates in 1837. A few hundred copies of the first volume is all we have on hand.

The next session of Congress will be a long one, and, therefore, the Congressional Globe and Appendix should be $2 for the session, which is the price we charge for the unbound numbers of the past long sessions; but we have concluded to reduce the price, as follows, until the first day of next January, after which time the Congressional Globe and Appendix will each be $2 for the session, and no deduction will be made on account of the number of copies taken.

TERMS.

For one copy of the Congres. Globe	$1 50
For one copy of the Appendix	1 50
For four copies of either, or part of both	5 00
For 25 copies of either, or part of both	25 00

The money may be remitted by mail at our risk. It should be here by the 7th of December, at farthest, to procure all the numbers promptly.

Proprietors of newspapers who copy this Prospectus, and send to us one copy of their paper containing it, shall have their names entered on our books for one copy of the Congressional Globe and Appendix during the session.

Our prices for these papers are so low that we cannot afford to credit them out; therefore, no person need consume his time in writing for them and not sending the money.

HEMSLEY'S VEGETABLE TONIC.
PREPARED BY
R. F. HEMSLEY,
PHARMACEUTIST.——Easton, Md.

NO MEDICINE has acquired in so short a time so deserved a popularity; and none is prepared to present so honorable an array of certificates from the FACULTY OF MEDICINE and private individuals throughout the State as Hemsley's Vegetable Tonic. In moderate doses, regularly taken, this medicine is a sure preventive of Fever & Ague and Bilious Fever, while it affords in most instances a permanent cure when employed for the removal of these diseases. In all cases of general debility arising from old age, protracted illness, or uniform delicacy and feebleness of constitution, it is without question one of the most agreeable and efficient tonics ever offered to the public. Let all who are afflicted apply to this remedy with the full expectation of perfect relief. It promises nothing which it is not competent to perform; and must, in a very short time, be the remedy preferred to all others in the various forms of Fever and Ague and in cases of general debility. Full directions for using it will accompany each bottle.

Certificates.

The undersigned Physicians of Baltimore, having been more acquainted with the ingredients composing "Hemsley's Vegetable Tonic," have no hesitation in saying that the compound, if properly used, cannot fail to conduce greatly to the accomplishment of the object proposed in its employment; and do therefore cheerfully recommended it to the afflicted public.

THOS. OWINGS, M. D.

The preparation made by Mr. Hemsley, Apothecary, Easton, Md., and known as "Hemsley's Vegetable Tonic," is in my opinion the best article ever offered to the public for the radical cure of that distressing affection, Intermittent Fever. This composition forms a pleasant bitters, and furnishes a most desirable tonic in cases of constitutional debility resulting from natural infirmity or the ravages of disease. I have recommended this medicine extensively in my practice and have always found it to answer the desired purpose.

CHRIS. C. COX, A. M. M. D.

Mr. R. F. Hemsley, Sir:—This is to cer itify that for a long time I labored under the debilitating influence of that dreadful disease, Ague & Fever, and had recourse to many remedies recommended to me by Physicians and others, all of which proved unavailing. I heard of your celebrated 'Vegetable Tonic,' of which I procured two bottles, and before I had taken it all I was entirely restored, and have not since felt any symptoms of its return. It has accomplished more in my case than all other remedies put together, and I most cheerfully recommend it to all those persons who may be laboring under this most wretched disease.

MORE PRACTICAL PROOFS of the extraordinary virtues of

WORSDELL'S PILLS.

Cure of Dyspepsia.

EASTON, Md. May 8th, 1845.

Dear Sir:—Duty to the afflicted portion of society, and gratitude to you, Sir, prompts me to communicate to you the great amount of suffering I have endured from Dyspepsia, and the incalculable benefit I have derived from using Worsdell's Vegetable Restorative Pills. About three years ago my digestive organs became weak, and twelve months from that time my system was much debilitated, which compelled me to quit work for two or three weeks at a time. All the medicine prescribed only gave me temporary relief, and I gradually became weaker. I tried various patent medicines with no better success; and at length I had to quit work altogether. I believe it was last October when a pamphlet was left at my house, stating the properties and effects of Worsdell's Pills, which induced me to try them, although I had given up all hopes of recovery, as I had been confined to my house three months:—the latter part of the time I was so sick that I could not bear to be out of bed. I commenced, however, using Worsdell's Pills: the first dose I took had no effect; in the evening I took another dose of eight pills, which operated a little, the following day I repeated the same dose, and they produced a brisk purge, which relieved me. This brightened my hopes, and I persevered until I had taken the contents of one box, when, to my astonishment, I was able to go out; and, by persevering with the Pills, I soon recovered strength to enable me to attend to business. For twelve months I had suffered daily with a burning pain in my stomach, attended with pain in my side and severe headache, and had to abstain from fresh meat.

I have given Worsdell's Pills a fair trial, and they have produced the desired effect, as I have now been able to attend to work steady for six months; and I feel as well as I ever did—I am hearty and relish my food. I sincerely believe I should have died had it not been for the timely use of those truly valuable pills. I feel thankful for the blessing I have received, and desire that all who use them may be equally benefitted.

I am yours respectfully,
SAM'L. SATTERFIELD.

To Mr. Geo. Pearson, Vestry St. N. York.

ANOTHER GREAT CURE OF FEVER AND AGUE.

Marsh Hope Bridge, Del., Sep. 20, 1844.

To DR. WORSDELL,

Sir:—The great amount of suffering produced by the Chills and Fever to thousands of my fellow-creatures, induces me to make known the benefits I have derived by using your Vegetable Restorative Pills. During the past few years I have suffered much with the chills and fever, for which I have advised with Physicians, and tried their prescriptions and other medicines that were recommended, without experiencing the desired relief. Three months ago I had another severe attack, and on hearing some of my neighbors praising your Pills, who had proved their virtues, I was induced to make a trial. I perused your directions, which accompany each box of Pills, in hopes of finding something in relation to the chills and fever, but there being nothing wrote under that head, I felt reluctant to use them. However, on making further inquiries, and being assured that the Pills were safe and gentle in their effects, I concluded to try them;—I commenced by taking eight pills on going to bed, which had the effect of stopping the chills and allaying the fever; I repeated the same dose on the four following evenings, which, to my astonishment, effectually cured me. It is now three months since I first used the pills, and I have had no chills or sickness of any kind; in fact I have, and continue to enjoy, better health than for many years past. My wife, also, has taken your Pills, and I have administered them to my children on several occasions with success. I can confidently recommend them as a family medicine, and an effectual remedy for the chills and fever.

Grateful for the blessings I have derived by using your Vegetable Restorative Pills, and hoping you will make this known for the benefit of the suffering public,

I remain yours sincerely,
JOHN W. JEEFERSON.

STILL ANOTHER PROOF.

[Copied from the Baltimore daily Sun.]

BALTIMORE, May 1st, 1845.

Dear Sir:—It is with pleasure I communicate to you the great benefit I and my family have received from the use of Worsdell's Vegetable Restorative Pills. My dauhter, Catharine Bryan, was afflicted twelve months with a disease of the Liver. She had severe pains in the breast and side, sick stomach aad headache, which so debilitated her that she could not bear least the exertion. Hearing of the good effects produced by Worsdell's Pills, I procured a box from Mr. J. K. Love, 69 *H*anover street. She soon experienced relief, and when she had taken the contents of three boxes, was quite restored to health and enabled to attend to her domestic duties with ease. It is about six months since I commenced using these invaluable Family Pills; during that time I have used no other medicine, as I have found them to be an excellent purifier of the blood and all that is necessary for the preservation of health.

Yours, respectfully,
K. LINDSLEY, 115 Lee street.

To Mr. Pearson, Vesey street, New York

☞ Satisfactory accounts from those who have proved the virtues of Worsdell's Pills, are almost daily sent to the proprietor, and the unprecedented great demand for them in every section of the country where their efficacy have become known, is sufficient evidence of their extraordinary qualities.

The office of Worsdell's Pills is to go at once to the root of disease by purifying that principle of life—THE BLOOD. They preserve and improve the health and digestion relieve the lungs, promote perspiration, remove bile from the stomach and dangerous oppression from the brain; produce serenity of mind; and, in short, give tone, energy, strength, and elasticity, to all the physical functions. They do not contain an atom of Mercury, Calomel, or any other deleterious drug, and have been found so beneficial in almost all cases of disease which the human system is liable to, that they may justly be considered unequaled as an universal Family Medicine; being purely vegetable, the most delicate females find the occasional use of them materially beneficial to their general health.

CLICKENER'S
SUGAR-COATED VEGETABLE EXTRACT
PILLS.

A Medicinal preparation is herein announced which has been long desired, and sought for, and which the public must at once see and acknowledge the advantage of. It is a purgative pill, COATED with SUGAR, so that it leaves no taste whatever of its internal ingredients. In fact the medicine is so entirely disguised that if a person were to swallow the pills without being informed what they were, he would believe them to be simply lumps of pure sugar; nor could he afterwards, unless by its great purgative effect suspect that he had been taking medicine, for these pills are so skilfully prepared that they do not gripe the bowels; and thus the patient who takes them avoids two evils which attend all other purgative medicines; namely: nausea and pain. Medicine administered in all other sweet forms has the disadvantage of being mixed with the sugar, and hence produces a mingled flavor, which, to most persons is more disagreeable than unadulterated bitterness In these pills this is altogether avoided; the sugar and the medicine being entirely distinct from each other, so that the former must be thoroughly removed before the latter can manifest itself to the taste. It is universally known that nearly all diseases originate with impurity of the blood. Pure blood is therefore essential to health. We must not, however, wait until the blood is impure, for then it takes time—and that time passed in ill health—to rectify it; but when the slightest derangement of the system is indicated by costiveness, or any other sign, it admonishes us that superfluities are gathering in the system, which should at once be got rid of, for their removal leaves the chyle, (from which the blood is formed) in a healthy state, and purity of blood must be the result. This fact, as stated, is universally known; but people have such an aversion to medicine, that, unless the case is urgent, they prefer the disease to the cure, until an impaired constitution, or a fit of sickness rebukes them for the folly of their conduct. Still they had some excuse; for heretofore, medicine in almost all its forms, was nearly as disgusting as it was beneficial. Now, however, the evil is most effectually removed; for have no taste whatever of medicine—produce none of the nausea and griping, attendant on the operation of other medicine—while their speedy effect in removing all impurities from he system cannot be excelled by any other medicine which has ever been discovered.

CAUTION.—The public should remember that C. V. Clickener is the inventor of the Sugar-coated Pills, and that nothing of the sort was ever heard of until he introduced them. Therefore should any other person, seduced by the popularity of his discovery, advertise Sugar-coated Pills, they must be a wretched counterfeit, which it would be dangerous to use, as none but the most ignorant quacks can be found dealing in such a nefarious traffic as palming off counterfeit for genuine medicines. feb 4
