Fatal Shooting at Hurlock.

On Tuesday of last week, Fred Harkman shot and instantly killed Howard Taylor, son of John Taylor. Whether the killing was accidental, has not been determined yet. The boys are only about thirteen years of age. Fred Hardman, stopped at the house of Mr. Scott in Cabin Creek about 4 p. m., and asked Mr Scott's son if he had a gun. Young Scott handed him a shot gun and cautioned Fred Hardman to be careful, as it was loaded. Fred took the gun out to the street, still being cautioned by young Scott, about being careful. Just at this moment, Howard Taylor, came up the road, and the gun went off, the charge striking him in the throat killing him instantly. Young Scott ran to Merrick's store for assistance while Fred Hardman, called him, not to tell who did it, then jumped on his bicycle, rode to Hurlock, then started on foot over the B. C. & A. R. R., toward Preston. He was seen by several persons, who reported he was crying as he ran. The next morning he was brought home. Howard Taylor was buried from M. E. Forty One Years of Freedom.

The streets of Easton were filled to overflowing Wednesday with crowds of colored people who had come from all sections of the peninsula to be present at the celebration of the 41st anniversary of the emancipation of their race from slavery.

Long before the parade thousands had arrived by the different railroad and steamship lines and many that lived in the country came to town in carriages and afoot. The celebration consisted first of a parade which formed at Idlewild Park at 12.30 o'clock p. m. and shortly thereafter, preceded by a band of music, paraded the principal streets of the town. In the parade were numerous floats, neatly decorated with bunting and filled with colored folks at work at the different industries, showing what the colored peopled had accomplished during the last forty years. There were also wagons filled with colored girls and boys dressed in odd and fancy costumes, singing the National airs and plantation melodies. There were hundreds of men in gay uniforms riding gayly bedecked horses. Carriages containing prominent men of the negro race were also in the procession. These were followed by the marching contingent which consisted of men and boys dressed in fancy as well as grotesque costumes.

Taking it all in all the parade was a very creditable affair. After the principal streets had been passed the procession returned to Idlewild Park where the speakers, who were S. E. E. W. Camper, Cambridge, Md; Dr. G. W. A. Tolbert, Hartford, Conn, and Rev. T. R. Singfield, of Virginia, addressed the great throng and in many utterances gave them good and wholesome advice on the way they should live and conduct themselves, so as to try to make their lives a success, &c. After the speaking the rest of the day was spent by the younger members of the race at different amusements and the older ones in reviving old friendship, and the day closed by all agreeing that it was a day well spent.—Easton Ledger.

The Partridge A Useful Bird.

The partridge has long been in favor as a breakfast food and as a splendid nourishment for the sick and well, but he is now coming into wide favor and renown as the farmer's friend. He is a candidate for the high perch of national bird. His partisans assure us that he is a stout ally of the American husbandman and a much more active defender of American agriculture and prosperity than the proud, high flying eagle. Ornithologist who, under government auspices, have been studying the patridge, say that he is a winner. Only about one-fourth of his food is grain, 19 per cent. corn, 3 per cent. wheat and the balance millet, barley sorghum, rye and oats. He does not steal this, but gathers it after it has been lost in the field. He never pulls up sprouted grains after the fashion of the crow. He does not rob orchards, though he is fond of fruit, eating wild grapes, dew berries and wild strawberries His long suit is as weed-seed and insect eater. He is a glutton for seeds of the smartweed, pigwood, sheep sorrel and ragweed. He has a passion for the potato bug, the ladybird bug, the chinchbug, the bean beetle, cucumber beetle, bell weevil, caterpillar, cutworm, army worm, wireworm, cotton worm locust and other crop destroyers. Rousing Republican Mass Meeting.

The Republicans on Tuesday afternoon held the most enthusiastic and largest attended mass meeting that the party has held in the county for ten years. Every chair in the spacious Masonic Hall was occupied, and the back part of the hall, and even the lobby, were filled with persons standing. Many gentlemen surrendered their seats to ladies, of whom their was an unusual number, and many prosperous looking colored men occupied one corner of the hall.

The Ridgely band arrived in town about 11 o'clock and paraded out Main street, and after dinner the town band appeared, and together they gave a concert of an hour of more in front of the hall, rendering excellent music which the crowd seemed to thoroughly enjoy.

Shortly before two o'clock the speakers entered the Hall and Chairman of the State Central Committee, John A. Sigler, called the meeting to order, naming Mr. Robt. D. Bradley, of the Fifth district, to preside and announcing the following Vice presidents: William L. Pritchett, of the First district; Joseph H. Bernard, of the Second district; F. C. Ramsdell, of the Third district; Hon. Robt. M. Messick and Jas. Bridegroom, of the Fourth district; George H. Jefferson of the Fifth district; Peter Hagadone of the Sixth district; W. W. Seward of the Seventh district, and Chas. Howard and C. H. Todd of the Eighth district. Mr. H. E Ramsdell was chosen as Secretary, and Mr. Bradley opened the meeting with a ringing speech of twenty minutes, the enthusiasm of the audience breaking out in frequent applause at the mention of the names of President Roosevelt, McKinley and Congressman Jackson. He declared that under Republican administration "America has become the Beacon Light, upon which the eyes of all nations are fixed in the march of Progress."

The chairman was followed by Mr. S. S. Ford, of Baltimore City, who after a glowing compliment to the ladies present, reviewed the history of the Nation and the Republican party, from "The days before Wah" to the present. The speaker captured the audience with his witty sayings at the beginning and was followed with the closest attention His apt quotation of scripture and his application of the same, made many strong points in his address. In passing the speaker mentioned the race issue raised by the Democrats of the State, of which he said every self-respecting, intelligent Democrat was ashamed, and gave his audience a little of the history of "Bill Garland," who appeared before the Parker, Davis and Smith club, at Hillsboro, last week with his "nigger" panorama, stating he had been convicted in the United States Court of violating the law, and was heavily fined. It is also well known that Governor Warfield refused to reappoint him a Justice of the Peace in Baltimore City, and that while in office he boasted of the "niggers" he sent to jail a few days before each election. The speaker noted the reference made by the Democratic papers, to the record of Congressman Jackson, and stated the Republicans stood ready to compare record at any time, Mr. Jackson is no orator, but his record shows that the business interest of his district have never been better taken care of than during his term of office. "By their Fruits ye shall know them" declared Mr. Ford, 'go to Port Deposit and view the magnificent Tome Institute! Jacob Tome was a Republican; view the Johns Hopkins University, of Baltimore! Johns Hopkins was a Republican; see the grand Hospital and magnificent church at Salisbury, built by Congressman Jackson! and then tell us what has Gorman done? What has John Walter Smith done? What is "Free" Raisin doing for the comfort and uplifting of the people of Maryland? The speaker closed by declaring that the people of the United States had too much good sense to want to go back to Democratic times like those of Cleveland's administration."

House of Delegates in the last Legislature, was the next speaker. He was suffering with a severe sore throat and was compelled to leave to catch the evening train as soon as he had finished his address. He dwelt mostly on the tariff issue and made it very plain why the farmers and business men of the country did not want a change of administration

As it was growing late the next speaker Major W. T. Warbutton closed the meeting by giving the reasons why he advocated the election of President Roosevelt The Major is an orator with a fine physique and a splendid voice, and his glowing tributes to President Roosevelt called forth round after round of applause. He supplimented the declaration of Chairman Bradley by saying that "America is not only the Beacon Light for other nations, but if it were blotted out the world would be utterly at sea without chart or compass." He confidently predicated the election of Roosevelt and a Republican Congress, and advised the Democrats, if they wanted a Congressman who could be of use to them and not a mere figure-head, to vote for Jackson.

Mr. Jackson was on the stage during the meeting and remained in town all night, leaving for Centreville about 9 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The Money in the Road

A certain shrewd old Duke once put a stone in the middle of the highroad, and then hid in a room overlooking the road to watch the course of events.

The first cartman who went by turned out to avoid the stone. The next did the same. By the end of the afternoon a new road had been worn around the stone, because not a single cartman had the energy to get down and push the stone out of the road.

At the end of the day the Duke called together all the men in the market place and then with a slight effort he lifted the stone out of the road.

From under it he took a purse filled with gold, and read the inscription on it to the assembly:

CAUSE OF LOCKJAW.

Lockjaw, or tetanus, is caused by a bacillus or germ which exists plentifully in street dirt. It is inactive so long as exposed to the air, but when carried beneath the skin, as in the wounds caused by percussion caps or by rusty nails, and when the air is excluded the germ is roused to activity and produces the most virulent poison known. These germs may be destroyed and all danger of lockjaw avoided by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm freely as soon as the injury is received. Pain Balm is antiseptic and causes such injuries to heal without maturation and in one third the time required by the usual treatment. It is for sale by R. J. Colston, Denton; Davis, Druggist, Rigdely.
