Easter comes exceptionally early this year, in fact, it will occur earlier than any other year since 1900. The first full moon after March 21 will appear March 25, therefore, Easter, which is always the first Sunday after this occurrence, will be March 27. Easter will not be so early again except 1913, when it comes on March 23, until 1921, when it falls on the same date as this year.

Changed Her Mind.

Ollie H. Thompson, of Washington, D. C., journeyed to Hurlock, on Tuesday, of last week, to claim for his bride a girl who about the hour of his arrival was plighting her troth to another man. Ollie H. Thompson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Thompson, of Hurlock. He has a position in Washington and had a best girl at Oak Grove, Del., just across the line from Dorset. These two lovers were to have been married and in high spirits the groom-to-be packed his wedding garments at Washington, selected some choice flowers and headed for home and sweetheart.

Just about the time of his arrival his intended was married to Eugene Handy, of Reliance, near the Delaware line, by Rev. M. D. Nutter, at the parsonage of Washington M. E. Church, Hurlock. Ignorant of this marriage a member of the Thompson family went to Cambridge on Wednesday and secured a marriage license for Ollie H. Thompson and Bessie H. Stanton. The girl had married the "other fellow" the night before.

New Eastern Shore Line.

The Baltimore American of Saturday says:

It was announced yesterday by an official of the Queenstown and Love Point Transportation and Development Company that plans are now being formulated by that concern to establish a regular passenger and freight service between this city, Love Point and Queenstown. It is expected to have the line in operation by May 1, and it is understood that there will be a regular schedule, two sailings a day between these points.

The new company has under contemplation the spending of about $250,000 to improve their property at both Love Point and Queenstown by building places of amusement and laying out parks for the accommodation of excursion traffic during the summer. The contract for these improvements, it is stated, will be given out shortly, and the plans for the general improvement of the company's property pushed to completion in readiness for the opening of the line.

The company now owns the large excursion steamer Dreamland, which last summer made regular trips to Chesapeake Beach. The Dreamland is the fastest excursion steamer on Chesapeake Bay, and with this vessel it is proposed to bring Eastern Shore points into closer time connection with this city. Another adjunct to the line is proposed in the operation of a fleet of gasoline freight boats, which will act as feeders, bringing produce and other farm products from the nearby rivers and creeks. It is also assured that as the business increases additional steamers will be placed on the line to guarantee prompt and efficient service. According to assurances received by the new concern, the people of that section of the Eastern Shore it is proposed to reach greatly desire a competing line, so as to create competition, which, they feel, will bring about better and easier communica- with this city, assuring Baltimore of a large part of the Eastern Shore trade, at least.

The Queenstown and Love Point Transportation Company has had for the past year a lease on Commercial Wharf, near the foot of Broadway, which will be the terminal of the line in this city, and it is proposed to construct suitable sheds on that wharf for the receiving of freight and the sheltering of passengers.

There is also in the embryo, it is stated, plans for the construction of an electric line to extend from Queenstown to Easton, Cambridge and Salisbury. The charter for the right of way has already been secured, and the company is now getting the parties interested together, preparatory to the construction of the line in the near future.

Clerk Skips With Money.

Thomas N. Conaway, a clerk in the Berlin post-office, has left that town for parts unknown and Edward S. Furbush, the postmaster, accuses him of having robbed the safe in the store adjoining the post-office. The funds of the post-office, however, have not been tampered with. After a thorough search Mr. Furbush stated the accounts of the office correct and the amount stolen, which is unknown at this time, is his personal loss. The amount, so far as can be ascertained, will reach several thousand dollars. For sometime past there has been a shortage of money in the safe.

May Connect Two Railroads.

A petition which is very largely signed, is being circulated by Captain Wilson, of Barclay, Md., urging upon their Senator and Representatives in the Legislature and passage of a law, providing for the connecting of the Pennsylvania and the M. D. & V. Railroad at Centreville. The petition will be completed in a very short time, and will then be given to Senator Harper and the three members of the lower house for their action. This matter was agitated about a year ago, when a petition was circulated addressed to the Pennsylvania Railroad asking them to connect the two roads, thus giving the people continuous travel from Townsend to Love Point without change of cars.

To Relieve Road Makers.

A bill has been introduced in the Senate for the relief of the laborers, machanics and material men who have sustained losses by reason of the failure of McCormick & Co., of Philadelphia, the contractors for the state roads in Prince George's, St. Mary's and Queen Anne's counties. McCormick & Co., recently failed for several thousand dollars, but should the bill pass the money will be paid by the State to the laborers etc., and will be deducted from the money which would have been paid the firm for the construction of the State road. The firm which was recently tied up for lack of funds is said to be owing about $3,500 in Queen Annes county.

The Coming M. E. Conference.

Bishop John. W. Hamilton, who will preside over the M. E. Conference which will open at Salisbury, Md., on March 16, is now on his way to Porto Rico where he will hold a conference before coming to the Peninsula.

A feature of the coming conference will be the sessions of the Laymen's Association, with a representative from each pastoral charge. H. S. Goldey, of Wilmington, is president, and Prof. C. A. Short, of Delaware College, secretary of the body. The conference will choose successors to District Superintendents Rev. A. S. Mowbray and Rev. S. M. Morgan, of the Wilmington and Dover Districts. Arrangements are now making for quarters for members of the Conference during the sessions.

Segregation of Consumptives.

One of the farthest reoching items in the legislative program of the Maryland Association for the prevention and relief of tuberculosis for this year, places the association on record in favor of the segregation in a State institute of those people who are suffering from tuberculosis in such an advanced state as to make them a danger if allowed to remain at large in the community. Such persons are known to physicians and health officials as "pus distributors." As a rule they are not careful to see that all of their sputum is destroyed, so they pass tuberculosis along to other people. Each consumptive who dies, unless he is very careful in his habits, may usually be charged with three other cases contracted from him during his period of illness, when he was a "pus distributor."

The Legislature of Maryland, which for the last eight years has been inclined to seek and accept the best advice in matters relating to tuberculosis, will be urged to make some provision for the isolation of advanced consumptives. The State Association will ask is friends and supporters throughout the State to discus the matter with their local delegates and senators with a view to urging the establishing of care for advanced cases, to supplement the splendid work now being done for incipients at the State Sanatorium at Sabillasville and Eudowood, near Towson.

The New Primary Law.

The proposed new primary election law for the State drafted by Attorney General Straus has been introduced into the Legislature.

The measure is intended to supplant the law of 1908, and follows the recommendations of the Governor, who, in his recent message to the Legislature, urged a law that will require nominations of candidates for elective offices to be made direct by the people. In commenting upon the effect of this measure, if passed, the Governor said direct nominations, steadily maintained and exercised by the whole people, will improve the government of the State.

Under the provisions of the bill political parties that poll or have polled 10 per cent. of the total vote cast in the State at a general election must nominate all candidates for public offices and elect all delegates to bodies, precinct, ward, city, county and State executives by primary elections. The nomination of any candidate by a party in convention is prohibited, as in the section or appointment of a party official, executive or manager. The powers of conventions are limited to taking action upon all the interests of the respective parties save the nomination of candidates for public offices or party managers or executives.

The primary election, it is provided, shall be conducted by judges and clerks appointed by the Supervisors of Elections for the general election. The nominating contests of the different parcies are to be held on the same day and at the same polling places with provision, however, for seperate ballots of different color and separate ballot boxes for each party. The voters must be registered in the regular registration books, and provision is made for the recording of their party affiliation. This system, the bill provides, will apply to elections throughout the State. The elections are to be conducted in the same manner, as far as practicable, as the general elections are held.

In effect, the bill extends the provisions of the Baltimore City Primary Election law throughout the State, eliminating, however, in the city and all the counties any nominations by convention. It provides that all aspirants for State offices may submit their candidacy to the direct vote of the people to express their choice in the selection of candidates for State, Federal and local offices. The adoption of the measure will mean in addition to candidates for elective offices party managers and executives will have to be selected by direct vote of the party members. Members of the State central committees and other party boards will have to be chosen by popular vote, and this reform was strongly urged by the Governor, who said a better electorate would follow its adoption.

Primary contests must be held not later than the third Monday in September of each year, but the day for holding the elections need not be the same in the city or several counties. In Baltimore, however, the candidates of the various parties and their State central committees, party managers and officials must be chosen by the direct vote of the party members in the same polling places. The printing of ballots of the different parties on paper of different colors and the separation of the voters of each party will facilitate the casting of the votes.

To have his name placed on the ballot as a candidate for nomination for a public office or aspirant for the post of party manager, executive or official, the candidate must file a certificate with the Supervisors of elections, stating the public office for which he desires to be nominated or the party committee to which he wishes to be elected. A fee of $25 must be paid by each candidate for nomination to a public office, while those seeking positions as executives or members of party committees must pay a fee of $20. For violations of the law the same penalties are provided for in the General Election laws are operative.

Will Test Jug Law.

The first infraction of the new Federal law compelling shippers of whisky or beer to mark plainly the contents of a package was discovered in Georgetown, Del., last week, when a package marked "glass, handle with care," from a Baltimore liquor firm, manifested as whisky in the freight slip, and directed to Green Short, was stopped at the freight station and held for further orders from the railroad company.

When Short went to the freight station after the package, which was expected, he was asked what it contained. Ignorant of the new law, Short told the freight house officials that he believed it contained whisky. He was not allowed to have the package, which was held as evidence.

According to the new law, two years imprisonment or $500 fine is the penalty for sending such a package, and the freight company is liable if it delivers it.

William J. Maxwell Dead.

Postoffice Inspector, William J. Maxwell, who is known throughout the Peninsula, died in Wilmington on Friday, aged 64 years. Mr. Maxwell was a frequent visitor to Denton.

During the winter of 1882-3, Mr. Maxwell made application for a position in the Federal service as an inspector in the Postoffice Department, and after passing a highly successful examination under the Civil Service, was placed on the eligible list, and later was given an appointment.

During his many years as Postoffice inspector Mr. Maxwell had run down many offenders against the postal laws, and he was remarkably well fitted for his duties. Probably one of his most important pieces of work was that relative to the Cuban postal frauds. He had a pleasing personality and had friends in many walks of life.

He never fully recovered from a severe cold which he contracted in March of last year, from which he was ill some time, though he was able to look after his duties.

THE VALUE OF WORDS.

A strange minister occupied a city pulpit one Sunday evening. It was one of those occasions which seems to come sometime or other even in church services—when everything goes wrong: a woman began to cough—she coughed and coughed; then somebody let his hymn book fall with a crash; some body went out; and finially as a climax, at the most impressive part of the service the electric lights went out and stayed out long enough for everybody to lose interest in what was being said. At the close of the service the minister was going away thoroughly discouraged when a timid lady approached him and said, "I thought I would like to tell you how helpful I found your sermon—that was a beautiful thought you gave us about———. I never looked on it in that way before."

It was a little thing but the preacher went to the home where he was staying and told his brother clergyman about it, saying: "I would have been completely disheartened, thinking my service had been an utter failure if it had not been for the word of that woman." Because of her words of appreciation he was encouraged to give the same thought many times in other places, and it always seemed to result in much good. He says: "Now when I think of the Sunday spent in C——— I almost forget about the many disturbances in my service, and remember it only with pleasure because I know that my words were a blessing to one life."—Onward.

Local Option Bill Introduced.

The general Local Option bill of the Anti-Saloon League was introduced in the Maryland Legislature Monday night by Mr. Herschel Ford who is regarded as one of the ablest of the new members of the present Legislature. While the House Committee on Temperance is regarded as doubtful the League considers its make-up a victory in the fact that Mr. Dawkins is not on the Committee in spite of the utmost efforts of the liquor interests to again land him as chairman, while Mr. Eldridge who was elected by the League as the only man in Baltimore City declaring for the Local Option Bill is a member of the Committee. To Speaker Peeples is due the credit for blocking the effort to "pack" the committee against the bill. The Senate Committee is regarded as unfriendly. The League however, expects the bill to be reported from committee in both houses, believing that neither Governor Crothers nor Senator Gorman, responsible for the committees in the House and Senate respectively would care to assume the responsibility for preventing a vote on the Local Option Bill.

The League expects to force the fighting and has asked the House Committee to hear the advocates of the measure next week and to close the hearings within two weeks from that date on the ground that the bill is thoroughly understood and any attempt on the part of the opponents to delay beyond that time may fairly be considered simply an effort to lessen the chances of the bill's passage. The liquor men regard the Senate as their bulwark and the bill will probably not be introduced there until it comes from the House. The League will make no effort to have a big crowd present at the House hearing in order not to give any excuse for delay.

On Sunday, January 30th, the League expects to have a "concerted discussion," when every pastor in Maryland will preach on the local option issue and urge his people to write to the members of the Legislature in favor of the bill. On that afternoon the League will have a great local option demonstration at the Lyric, to be addressed by Judge W. A. Covington of Georgia, a member of the Georgia Legislature which passed the prohibition law.

SAVED AT DEATH'S DOOR.

The door of death seemed ready to open for Murray W. Ayers, of Transit bridge N. Y., when his life was wonderfully saved. "I was in a dreadful condition," he writes, "my skin was almost yellow; eyes sunken; tongue coated; emaciated from losing 40 pounds, growing weaker daily. Virulent liver trouble pulling me down to death in spite of doctors. Then that matchless medicine—Electric Bitters—cured me. I regained the 40 pounds lost and now am well and strong." For all stomach, liver and kidney troubles they're supreme. 50c at C. H. Redden, Denton, A. L. Duffy, Hillsboro, Md.

Oldest Methodist Preacher.

Dr. E. M.Cady of Earlville, Ill., writing to the Northwestern Christian Advocate, says: "I do not know who the oldest Methodist preacher in the United States is, but I am sure there are few older than Rev. S. W. Bidwell of Middlebury, Vt., who has been a local preacher in our Church for probably three-fourths of a century. He reached his hundredth birth-day December 6, and on the previous day, Sunday, Dec. 5, he preached an interesting sermon from Psa. 116: 12-14: "What shall I render unto the Lord for all his benefits toward me," etc., in the Methodist Episcopal Church at East Middlebury, near which he resides. Mr. Bidwell has survived all his family except one son, and he has no living grandchildren. I have known him from my boyhood. Eccentric in character, he has nevertheless maintained the respect of the community in which he lives."
