While hunting a negro supposed to be selling whiskey illicitly, Chief Adams of the Laurel police saw a suspicious package under a warehouse near the pivot bridge. Lying down, with head and shoulders thrust under the building, in order to investigate, Chief Adams saw a pistol pointing in his face, held by the negro he was seeking. Promptly came the warning "Back out or be shot." Taken at a disadvantage the officer obeyed the order and the negro crawled out, keeping the policeman covered with his weapon. Then seizing his package, he backed away over the pivot bridge, which took him out of police jurisdiction. Chief Adams had a warrant sworn out and with a posse started in pursuit, but the negro had made his escape.

BALTIMORE.

A handsome souvenir circular recently sent out by a number of the business firms of Baltimore contains handsome views of the harbor and the large business places of the city. In speaking of the city it says:

"Baltimore, 'The Metropolis of the South,' and a city of 700,000 souls, is surging rapidly to the fore in the progressive ranks of Commerce and Industry and is marching to supremacy in Politics and Production among the cities of the greatest Country in the World.

Baltimore is a Southern-made city and it is recognized as distinctively Southern in its ways, methods and business relationships. But Baltimore's claim to interest and patronage is not limited to the people of any one section. Baltimore manufacturers as well as wholesalers are doing business with every section of the United States, and export great quantities of merchandise to foreign countries. This great city has substantial reasons for business support. Since its recovery from the great fire of February 7th, 1904, which completely destroyed one thousand five hundred and twenty-six buildings, covering one hundred and forty acres in the heart of the city, from skyscrapers down, the physical conditions of the city have so vastly improved that Baltimore is now prepared to handle all lines of mercantile activity in a way equal to any city in the Union.

As a manufacturing city Baltimore has gained wide notoriety in many and varied lines. In the manufacture of clothing, straw hats, tin cans, canned goods, copper cotton duck, overalls and shirts, Baltimore is a leading factor. This reputation is constantly being added to by the establishment of new enterprises and the expansion of old ones. As a wholesale and jobbing center Baltimore has long been known as one of the most important cities in the country. Its location and transportation facilities are particularly adapted to the successful conduct of this sort of business; in this line it is especially noted for clothing, dry goods, notions, boots, shoes, hardware, hats caps millinery and canned goods.

Baltimore has long been famed for its excellent cooking; nowhere is this tradition better exemplified than at the "Belvidere." This hotel built at a cost of $2,500,000 and located in one of the most beautiful parts of Baltimore, and yet only ten minutes from the retail and wholesale shopping district, is not only noted for its excellent cuisine, but has the reputation of being one of the finest hostelries in the United States. In point of architectural beauty and handsome furnishings there are none that surpass it. Chesapeake Bay foods, which include diamond-back terrapin, canvass-back duck, crabs and oysters, are served in this beautiful hotel, prepared by native cooks.

Baltimoreans have always been reputed for their keen appreciation of social obligations, especially as concerns, 'Strangers within its gates,' and their genial hospitality has not been checked by the vicissitudes of fortune.

"Baltimore is the birthplace of the electric telegraph. The first line in the world was opened between Baltimore and Washington in 1844.

"Baltimore led the world in railroad building by laying the cornerstone of the Baltimore and Ohio—the first steam railway ever built—July 4, 1828.

"Baltimore's famous Battle Monument, in front of the Court House, was begun September 11, 1815, the first anniversary of the battle of North Point.

"The first metallic pens manufactured in the United States were made in Baltimore.

"The first public water company organized in the United States was formed in Baltimore in 1792."

Hill Succeeds Amoss.

At a meeting of the board of trustees of the Maryland Agricultural College, Dr. Richard S. Hill was elected to the position of director of Farmers' Institutes at a salary of $1,500 a year, succeeding William Amoss, who held the position for a number of years and is well-known in this county.

In retiring, Amoss, who was at the meeting, had nothing to say except that if there were any complaints against his work he should have had an opportunity to combat them.

Dr. Hill is a successful farmer and tobacco planter of Prince of the Patuxent Planters' Club and the Southern Maryland Agricultural Fair Association. He was a member of the State Legislature of 1904-1905.

THE SUBMARINE CABLE.

The laying of the armored submarine cable beneath the waters of Chesapeake Bay has lately been completed. This is one of the most notable improvements in telephone facilities in this section of the country that has ever been undertaken and has attracted quite a little attention throughout the technical world because of the many interesting features of the new cable.

The cable is five miles long. It contains sixteen pairs of wire, and it was strung from Love Point on Kent Island to Sandy Point, northeast of Annapolis Shipping and laying this cable was a tremendous task, because of its great weight and length.

When this cable left the New York plant of the Western Electric Company, which manufactured it, it was in four sections, each of which, strung on an immense reel, contained 6,600 feet of lead covered and armored cable. Each spool with its load weighed 58,000 pounds.

The cable was taken from the four reels at the dock on West street, New York, and wound in a "figure eight" on board a barge. The barge was towed to Chesapeake Bay and the cable was then laid without mishap.

The installation of this cable makes possible a short cut for telephone subscribers in Baltimore who may wish to talk to people in Delaware or on the eastern shores of Maryland and Virginia. It means a saving of fifty miles between Baltimore and Cape Charles.

The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania has run additional wires to the terminals of this cable from points in the southern part of the eastern shore, Pennsylvania, and from Baltimore and and Annapolis to the other end.

The lead covered cable is armored with layers of jute and wire. This outer covering is believed to be capable of withstanding the ravages of the deep for many years.

Wilmington Without Government.

Wilmington, Del., has been rudely awakened to the fact that it has for some time been doing business under an illegally constituted government and that the city is at present without a government possessing the power to do things. In an opinion handed down by the Supreme Court of Delaware on the 7th of last June, upon questions involved in contested election cases, the majority of the Court held that chapter 178 of the State laws in 1907 was unconstitutional because not properly passed by the legislature. As the Wilmington municipal election held in 1909 was based upon that law the inevitable inference would seem to be that the election is void and that the mayor and city council chosen in 1909 have been performing their official functions illegally. The situation has been brought to a crisis by the refusal of a firm of New York brokers to accept a $200,000 bond issue for which it had successfully bid, on the ground that the securities are illegal because Wilmington at present is practically without a city government.

Lives After Being Cut In Two.

Although cut in two by a locomotive on the Reading Railway at Lansdale, Pa., Giovanni Mattera lost only a pint of blood, lived one hour and 12 minutes and was conscious until within ten minutes of his death.

Had one wheel run over him, the doctors said he would have died almost instantly. But the wheels of both the engine and tender passed over him and thus gave him a lease of life that physicians call remarkable.

As the wheels rolled over Mattera, the tremendous weight welded the skin together in such a manner that the lower part of the trunk was virtually sewed together, thus preventing the blood from escaping and also preventing hemorrhages. Shock killed Mattera, but he conversed with his friends for more than hour before his death.

Some newspaper men are terrible liars. In writing of a cyclone out west one of them said it turned a well inside out, a cellar upside down, moved a township line, blew the staves out of a whiskey barrel and left nothing but the bung hole, changed the day of the week, blew a mortgage off a farm, blew all the stakes out of a fence and knocked the wind out of a politician.

A correspondent at Georgetown says: Peaches at 25 cents a basket and potatoes at $1 a barrel hardly pay for the picking and hauling, and most farmers in that section say they will not ship any more fruit and potatoes at those prices. One farmer solved the problem when he brought his peaches to town and found that they were bringing such poor prices. Filling quart boxes with nice looking fruit, he met every train and easily disposed of the fruit to the passengers at 25 cents a box. His experiment netted him 2 dollars a basket.

Adrift on the Indian River and Rehoboth Bay for twenty-four hours, Carmel Steele, his wife and 3-year-old child, of Piney Grove, were picked up by the steamer plying between Ocean View and Millsboro. When rescued they were exhausted from hunger and fright. Steele with his wife and child, started on a deep-water fishing trip in their launch Pauline, and were far out when the engine broke. In the heavy sea it was all Steele could do to keep his boat headed to the waves that threatened to swamp it.

Jones Ellingsworth, a Sussex Co., farmer, has had many troubles to come his way in rapid succession since the 1st of last month. About three weeks ago he fell from a load of fodder and received severe injuries to the spinal cord, which has left him a hopeless invalid. Last week during a severe electrical storm that swept over that section a bolt of lightning killed his favorite horse and his only hog and Friday morning his last and only horse was found mysteriously dead in the stable. This leaves the unfortunate Mr. Ellingsworth an invalid, with no children to help him, without a team and with his season's crops in the field, needing harvesting. Residents of the neighborhood deeply sympathize with the unfortunate farmer and will go over to his farm and harvest his crops for him.

A 51-foot well dug upon the Walter B. Cooney property, Rising Sun, is producing water that sparkles like diamonds, but so salty as to be unfit for use. Vessels in which it is placed soon become corroded with salt. No other well of water in Cecil county is of a salty nature.

It is reported upon good authority that foriegn capital is deeply interested in approject of bridging Chesapeake Bay from Miller Island to Pooles Island to Woods Point in Kent county, with lift bridges across the channels on either side of Pooles Island. Soundings have shown shallow water at all points except the two channels, and no trouble is anticipated in bridging these spaces. Mary had a little lamb, its fleece was white as snow; it strayed away one day, where lambs should never go. And Mary sat her quickly down and tears streamed from her eyes, she never found the lamb because she did not advertise. And Mary had a brother John who kept a village store, he sat him down and smoked a pipe, and watched the open door. And as the people passed along and did not stop to buy, John still sat and smoked his pipe and blinked his sleepy eyes. And so the sheriff closed him out but still he lingered near, and Mary came to drop with him, a sympathetic tear. How is it, sister, can you tell, why other merchants here, sell all their goods so readily and thrive from year to year? Remembering her own bad luck the little maid replies: "The other fellows get there John, because they advertise."—Ex.

A BLOW TO DRUGGISTS

Sections of the country which receive their intoxicating stimulants in the guise of perfumes, essences, medicines or drugs were delivered a body blow by Commissioner Cabell, of the Internal Revenue Bureau, who gave out a list of more than 200 preparations which hereafter may be handled by drug stores only after the government liquor license is paid.

These preparations, including many well known because of their wide advertisement, were examined by the chemists of the Treasury Department and held to be insufficiently medicated to render them unfit for use as a beverage or to take them out of the class of alcoholic beverages. Treasury Department officials said they believed that many of these preparations were concocted mainly for sale in "dry" territory, where the prohibition laws made it impossible to obtain legally anything with a liquor flavor.

It is estimated there are 40,000 druggists in the United States, slightly more than half of whom pay the $25 yearly special tax, which permits them to sell the preparations involved. Other stores which continue to vend these mixtures now will be required to pay the tax, and the United States Treasury will be enriched accordingly.

Secretary MacVeagh has issued an order fixing a standard of medication to govern the chemists of the Internal Revenue Bureau in passing on the question of the amount of alcohol that may be used in medicinal preparations in the future, so that they may come within the requirements of law. Alcohol will be permitted only to the amount necessary to hold in solution all medicine used to extract or preserve the same. Each prescribed dose of a mixture must contain a normal dose for an adult of drugs or medicines of recognized therapeutic value.

Dog Scare In Milton.

Residents of Milford are up in arms over the dog question. Dogs supposed to have had hydrophobia are permitted to run at large and on Sunday last a hound that came running down the street just as the Sunday-school was dismissed created a great sensation.

John Mills of Milford Neck a few days ago learned that two of his most valuable cows, one a heifer, had been bitten by his own dog, that was affected with hydrophobia and had to kill them. The next day three more cows had to be killed for the same reason, and a promising two-year-old colt that had been bitten.

Citizens of Milford have circulated a petition, which is receiving many signatures, asking Mayor George Fisher Pierce to call a special session of City Council, to consider a law to protect them from dogs that are allowed to run at large without being muzzled. Milford is said to have more mongrel dogs than any other town in Delaware.

TOO MUCH FOR FLANAGAN

It was lawyer Steve O'Brien that had the case, says the New York correspondent of the Cincinnati Times-Star. The uncle of Patrick Flanagan of Carrick-on-Shannon, had died and left to Patrick $20,000 in hard money. Mr. O'Brien trailed Mr. Flanagan anxiously about town. He heard of him here and he heard of him there, but he finally located him in the depths of a sewer that was being dug on Third avenue. "Pathrick Flanagan" calls Mr. O'Brien.

Mr. Flanagan answered.

"Are you the son of Pathrick Flanagan and was your mother's name Mary? And what were the names of your uncles?"

Mr. Flanagan answered correctly.

"Then come up," said Mr. O'Brien. "Your uncle James has just died and left you $20,000."

There was a commotion in the ditch and Mr. O'Brien leaned over again and called anxiously, "Pathrick Flanagan."

"I'm coming, sorr," said Flanagan. "I just stopped to lick the boss."

Mr. Flanagan proved his right to the money, paid Mr. O'Brien what was due him, and for a few weeks interested Third avenue, dressed in a high hat and hard shoes, and doing full justice to his thirst. He just burned up that ardent thoroughfare until his money gave out and he disappeared from sight. The other day his other uncle died and Mr. O'Brien went back to the works. "Pathrick," said he "your Uncle Tom has died and left you $20,000 more. Come down to the office to-morrow and get it."

Mr. Flanagan stuck his pick into the side. "I don't believe I can do it, Mr. O'Brien," he said. "I'm not a sthrong man like I was whin I got that other money. I doubt I'd live troo spending twinty tousand dollars more."

How To Cure Rheumatism:

The cause of Rheumatism and kindred diseases is an excess of uric acid in the blood. To cure this terrible disease this acid must be expelled and the system so regulated that no more acid will be formed in excessive quantities. Rheumatism is an internal disease and requires an internal remedy. Rubbing with Oils and Liniments will not cure, affords only temporary relief at best, causes you to delay the proper treatment, and allows the malady to get a firmer hold on you. Liniments may ease the pain, but they will no more cure Rheumatism than paint will change the fibre of rotten wood.

Science has at last discovered a perfect and complete cure, which is called "Rheumacide." Tested in hundreds of cases, it has effected the most marvelous cures; we believe it will cure you. Rheumacide "gets at the joints from the inside" sweeps the poisons out of the system, tones up the stomach, regulates the liver and kidneys, and makes you well all over. Rheumacide "strikes the roots of the disease and removes its cause." This splendid remedy is sold by druggists and dealers generally at 50c and $1.00 a bottle. In tablet form at 25c and 50c a package. Trial bottle of tablets sent by mail on receipt of price 25c. Booklet free. Write to Bobbitt Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.
