WARNING!

Hereafter parking on Market Street in any manner except strictly parallel with the curb is forbidden. This is the warning issued by State Motorcycle policeman Taylor, in compliance with a law to that effect passed in 1918. Except in the very wide portion of the street, the parking at right angles to the sidewalk makes the passageway on the street barely wide enough for a team to make its way through, let alone for two ttams to pass. Mr. Taylor spoke to several men about it last Saturday night, and was told that they knew of no such ruling. Therefore he decided to warn the publi at large through the paper before making any arrest. Beginning with next Saturday night, December 24, the law will be strictly enforced. If there is no room left on Market Street along the curbing, it will necessitate parking on the side streets.
