NEW YEAR

he new year comes reoicin'—let every heart be glad. . . heery anthems voicin' we greet the new-born lad. . . . 's that once was sorry take up the lively strain, and ev'ry we borry be mirth instead of pain. With many a blesmise, the risin' sun doth beam; Instead of takin' from nds its blissful gleam. . . .I know its horn of plenty holds s gifts fer me. . . I banish nineteen-twenty-one, with the of used-to-be. . .

hail the Happy New-Year, that dawns around the I'm mighty glad to be here, to celebrate its birth. The breeze is stingin' but it can never last—I'll think of s bringin' to crown the doubtful past. . .I love the hour ue me, because I know it's mine; there's nothin' comin' rom the days of ald lang syne! Then, here's to New ow, our cycle's youngest son—May all replace their with gladness by the ton!

Else What?

A colored man named Sam had worked for his boss about five years, and in that time he had just about run things. His good friend Ben said to him one day: "Now Sam, you have worked up there and made your boss rich. You ought to ask kior more money or else you quit. You just go up there and say: "Look here, boss, you pay me more or else.' " Sam tried his friend's advice the next morning. He began, "Say, boss, you'll have to gib me mo' money fo' dis job." "Well, Sam, I'll see about it," replied the boss. "See about nothin', you pay mo' or else." "Pay more or else? Else what?" The boss' eyes flashed and his tone was sharp. Sam's eyes blinked as he detected his boss' anger, and in a soft voice he replied, "Else I wuck fo' de same money."

AND WITHOUT HER THE TRIP'LL BE SPOILED

VELVET JOE'S 1922 ALMANAC IS READY

Over two hundred interesting and highly informative statements and tables are contained in the 1922 Almanac published by 'Velvet Joe" the good-natured philosophical friend of the pipe smoker.

All the things which are naturally taken for granted about an almanac are there—the calendar for the year, rising and setting of the sun and moon, weather forecasts, how to read the clouds, and legal holidays, both Christian and Jewish.

But the most noteworthy point—the feature that distinguishes "Velvet Joe's" Almanac from all other almanacs, and makes it a part of the home library is that it is a "Book of Facts" as well.

The 1922 edition is no exception. The reader finds all sorts of useful information. Helps and economies for taken for ranted about an almanac the automobile owner, especially prepared by a leading authority, important Government information about crops, valuable information on rare coins, some particularly valuable information about Liberty bonds and the dates on which coupons are due.

Disabled veterans, and everyone interested in them will find a special official message from the American Red Cross. It tells how to secure compensation and medical service, the best procedure to follow in obtaining help for the veteran's family and how to secure the vocational training to which disabled soldiers are entitled.

And it explains how the Red Cross assists in looking after Liberty bonds, back pay, bonus claims, loss of baggage, etc. It offers to keep disabled veterans posted on such new laws as may be of advantage to them.

Entertainment is blended with usefulness. The almanac describes the telling of fortunes by signs of the zodiac and gives a diagram and instructions for reading the character and the future from the hand. Even home games—with playing directions—offer a means to make many a stormy evening pleasant.

And then there are scores of things which everyone wants and ought to know; interesting points about the Blue Laws, the Japanese birth-rate in California, electronic energy, Washington's Bible, the age of the earth and the approximate time of the first man.

Sportsmen will find adequate 1921 records of baseball, golf and tennis, with notes about the game laws in the United States and Canada.

"Velvet Joe," publisher of this unique volume, will be glad to mail a copy of his almanac to anyone who desires it. He does it absolutely free of charge. "Velvet Joes's" address is

4241 Folsom Avenue
St. Louis, Mo.

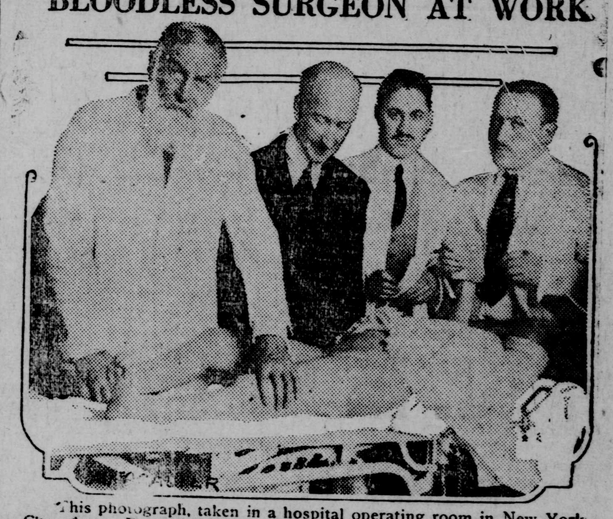
BLOODLESS SURGEON AT WORK



This photograph, taken in a hospital operating room in New York City, shows Dr. Adolph Lorenz, the world's most skillful bloodless surgeon at work saving a little girl from lifelong cripplement. Dr. Lorenz has just arrived in this country from Austria to perform his bloodless surgery on many American crippled children. He was our gentlest enemy, but an enemy no longer.
