Industrial Exhibit at High School

An exhibit of the half-year's work accomplished in the manual training and domestic science departments of the high school was held there last Friday afternoon, February 3, and demonstrated to those who came to view the real value of such courses in the curriculum.

To each visitor was served by white-aproned, white-capped efficient young eighth grade girls, delicious hot chocolate and cookies—products of the students' culinary art—in the Domestic Science room where were displayed not only models of the work of this feminine course, but a large and varied assortment of products from the boys' manual training department. Furniture for the house was there in variety, ranging from library tables to bookracks, including many ornamental as well as useful articles, doing credit to both teacher and pupil. The former, Mr. Stuart Mackintosh, has much enthusiasm for and pride in his pupils' work; especially does he feel proud of one pupil's achievement—a tomato rack made by a farmer's son for his father's use. The lad was ambitious, and the result is most practicable.

The feminine achievements with the needle are no less creditabe. Under the tutelage of Miss Mary Wright, the girls have mastered the rudiments of sewing until, in the advanced grades, they have made attractive dresses for themselves. The exhibit showed dainty lingerie, practical garments, as well as lovely hand-made waists and one piece dresses. Aside from the needle-art displayed, there was shown a table set for a three-course breakfast, and a demonstration of the relative value in calories of various articles of food.

It is to be regretted that these two important industrial corses must be discontinued now. The teachers, Mr. Mackintosh and Miss Wright, will complete the year at Preston in their respective subjetts.

Fire Early Sunday Morning

Cries of "Fire" in the very early hours of Sunday morning quickly brought forth the fire company and a number of citizens in alarm. The store of Mr. A. E. Coulbourne was discovered on fire by a belated colored passerby. It was discovered, happily, in the early stages, else a seriously destructive fire might have resulted, as the store is in the thickly settled residence section of lower Main Street.

The fire company and engine responded promptly, and soon conquered the flames, which had eaten around the chimney near the eaves and inside apparently having started from a defective flue.

Though comparatively little merchandise was burned, the loss from water soaking will be large. The store building, which is owned by O. G. Williamson, was not damaged to any great extent.

Serious Shooting Affair

Just as the women employees of the Topkis Underwear factory came out for the noon hour Tuesday, they were thrown into sudden alarm when one of their number, Mrs. Lida Smith, was seized by her husband, Raymond Smith, who, brandishing a revolver in her face, threatened to kill her unless she returned to live with him. Mrs. Smith, who married him several years ago and nursed him back to recovery after a serious motorcycle accident, had left him because of nonsupport and ill treatment. It is said she is seeking a divorce, and the irate husband took this method of showing his disapproval.

He fired at his wife's feet and just above her head and, naturally, terrified all the witnesses. When the girl's father, Otto Speorl, who lives near, tried to rescue her, Smith threatened him also, but Mr. Rache Messick, the manager of the factory, interposed and managed to get possession of the revolver as well as the culprit's wrist. He and Mr. Speorl succeeded in holding him until Constable W. G. Noble arrived to take him in custody.

At the hearing before Justice of the Peace Cox, Smith was held in $3,000 bail. He seemed confident he could secure the required bail but he did not succeed and was committed to the county jail at Denton to await court trial.

Home Makers Are Showered

As a genial welcoming into their newly-acquired home on Bank Street, friends of Mr. and Mrs. Chevior Davis arranged a pleasant surprise for them Tuesday evening when about forty self-invited guests walked in and bestowed upon the host and hostess a generous "shower" of household helps including a splendid assortment of aluminum cooking utensils.

Not only were the new home-makers showered with gifts and good wishes but with musical entertainment and refreshments as well—delicious ice cream having been thoughtfully provided. The evening proved a pleasant social affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis were married about two years ago, but have been living at the hotel here until they recently moved to this home they purchased, formerly belonging to Mr. T. Fred Brown.

Town Board Votes for Improvements; Also Seeks Change in Charter

At a recent meeting the Town Commissioners voted to provide ladders for fire-fighting use in the section of town known as Green Ridge. The contract for placing the ladders and erecting cover for same was given to Mr. John McCrea. The Board also voted to place two additional street lights in the newly-developed residence section, Bank Street extended.

A change in the town charter relating to the election of the Commissioners is about to be made. At a citizens' meeting last week, the proposed amendment was discussed and it was finally decided to adopt the plan of electing three commissioners one year and two the following year, all to serve two years. At the coming election this spring, three of the new commissioners will be selected to serve one year and two for two years, in order to put the proposed plan into working order subsequently.

Mr. T. H. Chambers, president of the board, has been authorized to seek legal aid in preparing a bill to introduce in the legislature effecting the change in the charter.

DEAN-DUKES

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in the M. E. Church on Wednesday afternoon, when Miss Mary Roberta Dukes became the bride of Mr. Leonard Dean. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. E. Habbart of Wilmington, a former pastor, assisted by Rev. Frank White.

The bride was very becomingly attired in a tailored suit of reindeer broadcloth with hat of Mohawk georgette and gloves and shoes to harmonize, and carried a bouquet of bride's roses and maidenhair fern, while the groom wore the conventional black. Mr. W. T. Temple, Mr. C. L. Hobbs, Mr. A. W. Dukes and Mr. F. M. Long acted as ushers. The bridal party entered the church to the strains of the Lohengrin march played by Miss Ada Mathews, and as a recessional Mendelssohn's was used.

Mr. and Mrs. Dean left on the afternoon train for a trip to Philadelphia and neighboring cities. Upon their return they will reside in Mr. Dean's home on Second Avenue West.
