LIVE TO SOME PURPOSE. — Thousands of men breathe, move, and live, pass off the stage of life, and are heard of no more.—Why? They do not a particle of good in this world; and none were blessed by them; none could point to them as the instruments of their redemption; not a line they wrote, not a word they spoke could be recalled; and so they perished, their light went out in darkness, and they were not remembered more than the insects of yesterday. Will you thus live and die, O man immortal? Live for something. Do good, and leave behind you a monument of virtue that the storms of time can never destroy. Write your name in kindness, love, and mercy, on the hearts of the thousands you come in contact with year by year, and you will never be forgotten. No! your name, your deeds, will be as legible on the hearts you leave behind, as the stars on the brow of evening. Good deeds will shine as brightly on the earth as the stars of heaven.

INNOCENCE AND VIRTUE.—Innocence and virtue, though totally different, are often mistaken for the same thing.—Innocence is hardly to be found in this world; our specimens of it are to be seen in the lamb, the dove, and the infant; it consists of ignorance of evil.—Virtue is alone attained through a knowledge both of good and evil, and a determined strife against the latter in all its forms. The innocence of this world may often go astray from very ignorance. Virtue knows both the good and evil path, but adheres firmly to the former. Virtue, then, is by far the nobler attainment of the two.

KNOWLEDGE. — Knowledge, says Lord Bacon, is not a couch whereon to rest a searching and restless spirit, or a terrace for a wandering and variable mind to walk up and down with a fair prospect, or a tower of state for a proud mind to raise itself upon, or a sort of commanding ground for strife and contention, or a shop for profit or sale, but a rich store-house for the glory of the Creator, and the relief of man's estate.

Error is the cause of man's misery, the corrupt principle that has produced evil in the world; 'tis this which begets and cherishes in our souls all the evils that afflict us, and we can never expect a true and solid happiness, but by a serious endeavor to avoid it.

Be not diverted from your duty by any idle reflections the silly world may make upon you; their censures are not in your power, and consequently should not be any part of your concern.

Whoso keepeth his mouth and his tongue keepeth his soul from trouble. —Bible.

EARLY RISING.—The Rev. Mr. Strachan, who used to rise every morning at five, said he could not, by practice, convert it into a pleasant one. The honest divine would find few dissenters on this head. Eels may get used to being skinned; but unless a man has a natural gift for the exercise, he can never take delight in kicking off the bed-clothes of a cold morning, two hours before daylight.

An editor out West complains that he lost a case in court was sacked by his lady love, received a general flogging from a brother, had a tooth drawn, lost twenty dollars at faro and had his note protested all on the same day.

"Annexation and war—that's true, every word of it," said a pert old maid; "no sooner do you get married than you begin to fight."

If the Devil should lose his tail, where would he get another? In a dram shop to be sure, where they retail bad spirits.

What's a pretty girl like? Give it up. She is like to get a husband, isn't she.
