
WHEN A FELLOW'S STRONG AND WELL

and the world seems his to conquer it's pretty hard to work up any real concern over the future.

But assuredly it deserves some serious thought—for no one can afford to forget that youth is the accepted time of preparation for old age.

The man who consistently builds up a savings fund forestalls dependence in later years.

This institution welcomes the young peoples' accounts.

Faithful Officers

Every citizen is under obligation to a faithful officer.

Men may gather into different groups or parties for the purpose of electing their public officials, but when the official is elected he ceases to be in the administration of office apartisan.

It is equally true that when a man is exalted to a public position he has a right to demand the support and loyalty of every American citizen regardless of his partisan affiliations.

Every good citizen is loyal to his officer and supports him in every way possible.

Behold, the spectacle of an officer of the land, the executive in the judical department of this nation being criticised, hounded, maligned and abused for the performance of his duty.

If the courts are to be classed, if instruments of abuse are to be used, if men who belong to the courts and fol low the procedures of the courts are to be attacked because they invoke the arm of the law, then the last foundation of this government has been destroyed.

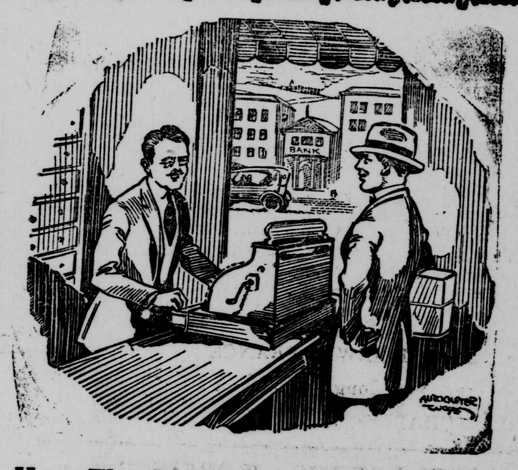
Law is supreme. The courts of the land must be respected and their rules observed.

When judges on the federal bbench of America render decisons they must be respected and obeyed, or men who choose to disobey and disregard must pay the penalty for such treason and anarchy.

The constitution of the United States shall not be torn to pieces.

The Supreme Court of the United States shall never be lowered to the gutter and become the political football of political anarchists.

Every red-blooded, patriotic citizen in America should rise and speak against all infamous doctrines and blasphemous propaganda. Let every worthy American be loyal to his public officals.



How The Bank Serves The Merchant

The Bank is the merchant's right-hand assistant because it facilitates his commercial transactions and stamps him as a reliable man to deal with.

The merchant sells for cash, and deposits his daily receipts in the bank's burglar-proof vaults. The merchant buys on credit established by his bank account or borrows from the bank when he needs financial assistance.

Wholesale business houses dealing with the local merchant have full confidence in him if he is known to the bank.

The Bank is the Merchant's friend. If you haven't an account with us we shall be pleased to tell you more about our Service.

Figures That Talk

The Comptroller of Currency has just issued his annual report on the savings accounts and savings deposits in the National Banks. This report covers the year ending June 30, 1922. Within that year the tinancial depression reached its lowest point.

The Comptroller shows that in spite of the widespread financial depression the number of savings deposits in the National Banks alone increased 764,085 over the number in the previous year. There was an increase in the total amount of deposits of $88,499,000.

So there were more than three-quarters of a million new savers in the National Banks alone. Wonder if among them were any who used to waste their earnings in drink?

With one exception, the Philadelphia Savings Fund Society has the largest number of depositors of any institution of its kind in the world. They number 274,000.

The cost of living is still very high. Rents are exorbitantly high. The cost of building is nearly double that of six years ago. In spite of that fact realtors tell us more families are buying homes than ever before.

And yet in face of all these heavy drains upon its resources, the average family seems to have more money than ever before. In proof of this the Philadelphia Saving Fund Society reports that its deposits for 1922 up to date are $6,000,000 in excess of deposits to the same date for the year 1918.

A boom year was 1918. It was also a year of saloons running at full blast. Depression and strikes have characterized the greater part of 1922. It has been poor enforcement, but no legalized saloon and brewery. AND YET IN ONE SINGLE SAVINGS BANK A PANIC-STRIKE DRY YEAR BEATS A BOOM WET YEAR TO THE TUNE OF $6,000,000.

New Class For Poultry

A departure from the usual poultry show classifications that will appeal particularly to the breeders of utility fowls is to be made at the third annual Maryland Mid-State Poultry Show at Westminster, November 14 to 18.

The new class which has been provided is known as the Standard Production class and is an effort to harmonize present requirements of what are now known as poultry fanciers and utility breeders. The department will be under the direction of Roy H. Jones of the Connecticut Agricultural College, and Roy H. Waite, of the University of Maryland Experiment Station, who also will act as judges in scoring the birds for productive capacities.

Two methods of scoring will be used to determine the winners in the Standard Production Class. First the entries will be judged according to the usual breed requirements and next according to productive characteristics, the two scores being averaged for final results.

50% of accidents are due to defective vision.

We know that 70% of the people need glasses and that about 30% have them. This means that about 40 out of every hundred drivers of motor cars need glasses.
