PAPER ROBBERS SEE THEIR FINISH

The discovery that wood pulp is no longer necessary in the manufacture of paper carries a ray of sunshine into every home.

The prices that merchants have been compelled to pay for wrapping paper have reached a proportion that has actually affected prices in some commodities.

The paper robber has not been solely a newspaper problem though hundreds of publishers have been driven into bankruptcy by the unconscionable gouging of paper manufactures.

Prices have been tilted under every pretex under the sun. Not more than a month ago publishers were warned of still further advances.

Relief, however, is in sight. Florida saw grass is being used in newsprint paper manufacture. A great mill at Leesburg is turning out substantial quantities of a paper up to the highest standard. The importance of the discovery lies in the fact that the paper can now be made from an annual crop. It takes fifty years to grow pulp wood.

Up-to-date newspaper publishers have regarded the paper situation with dread. They knew they were in the grip of the manufactures and experience has shown they might expect no mercy. Their only hope was governmental interference with further exploitation and with Attorney General Daugherty in the saddle they had little hope of any relief from that quarter.

However, the reaper now is beginning to take place of the lumber jack and old dame nature puts an end to futher public robbery which to date government has failed to stop.

WHO DID IT?

To the editor of The American Union:

At 6 o'clock p. m., November 20, a shot was fired in front of our house, breaking a window and tearing the window shade. If the person who did it will come and apologize and pay damages, he will have more respect for himself.

Are you man enough to do it?

Miss Martha Scheen, of Williston, daughter of Henry Schoen, has been invited by the League of Women Voters of Maryland to take part in the exhibit they are staging in connection with their Executive Council, at the 5th. Regiment Armory, Baltimore, December 15 and 16.

At the time of the county exhibit here, Miss Schoen with her spinnng wheel was a part of the Williston exhibit. The spinning wheel, which was bequeathed her by her grandmother, was made in Austria, and so fashioned in that it would carry well to America.

In the exhibit which will cover the home industries of Maryland, from the earliest days down to the present, Miss Schoen will represent the art of spinning. She left this morning, and will be met by Miss Engle in Baltimore, where she will be entertained by the League for three days.

Mrs. Linwood Cohee, who has been under the care of a doctor on account of a fall down stairs is able to be and around.

Miss Catherine Thawley, of Denton spent the week end with Miss Ruth Maloney.

Rev. J. E. Smith will preach at the usual hour at the Williston church.

Notes From Williston School

A new flagpole has recently been erected to take the place of the one which was blown down some time ago. There are no big boys in the school and this work was done by the smaller boys, who deserve much credit for their accomplishment.

There will be a meeting of the Patrons Association next Wednesday. A Christmas program has been prepared, and all the parents are urged to attend and identify themselves with this splendid work.

A supply of coal has been received for the school, which will insure comfort for the pupils through the cold weather.

GREENSBORO

Death of Mrs. Milton Roe

Mrs. Katie Virginia Roe, wife of Mr. Milton Roe, died at her home on Railroad Avenue early last Sunday morning from complications. Mrs. Roe had been in very poor health for the past eighteen months. She was the daughter of the late Sarah Martha Whitby. Mrs. Roe was a member of St. Pauls Methodist Episcopal Church, and was 55 years of age. She is survived by her husband.

The funeral was held at her late home Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock, Rev. J. A. Leach officiating. Interment was made in Greensboro Cemetery. Those attending from out of town were Mr. J. T. Plummer of Philadelphia, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Roe, Sr. and Walter Roe, Jr., Mr. Massey Roe and Mrs. Donald Thorn of Baltimore and Mr. and Mrs. Courtland Roe and daughter of Easton.

Klotz—Jarman

The home of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Jarman was the scene of a very pretty wedding Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, when their daughter, Mary Bradie, became the bride of William Edward Klotz, of Wilmington, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Klotz, Ridgely. Only the immediate families were present. The ceremony was performed by Rev. James A. Leach. Mrs. Charles Baggs, aunt of the bride, rendered the wedding march. The bride was attired in navy blue Poiret Twill and carried a beautiful bouquet of brides roses. Immediately after the reception the bride and groom motored to Willmington where they will make their home.

Those attending the wedding from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Jarman, Mrs. W. B. Moore, Mrs. James Wilson and J. Brown, of Wilmington; R. C. Coursey, of Baltimore, and W. Redman Jones, of Queenstown.

JOHN WANAMAKER, DIED TUES., AGED 84

prominent as an independent Republican. In 1882 he was offered the Republican nomination as Congressman-at-large for the State of Pennsylvania, but declined it, and in 1886 he declined to be an independent candidate for Mayor of Philadelphia. He took an active part in most of the Presidential campaigns and gave a great amount of work to the Republican National Executive Committee, of which he was a member during the Harrison campaign. Upon the election of Harrison, Mr. Wanamaker was invited to enter the Cabinet, and although there was much criticism to the effect that a merchant was unfit for a Cabinet position, Mr. Wanamaker became Postmaster General and was acknowledged later by his critics to have worked many desirable reforms in the postal system. Organization, system, method and business mechanism, so essential in the Postoffice Department were all in Mr. Wanamakers line.

He spread the fast-mail service and opened sea postoffices in which foreign mails are distributed and made up on the sea, and, among other things, advocated the parcels post and postal savings, which were later realized, and also urged Government ownership of telegraph lines.

Took Pride In Sunday-School

The religious side of Mr. Wanamaker's life was one less known to the general public than any other, but one in which he was deeply interested. Verly early in life he became a member of the Rev. John Chamber's Presbyterian Church Philadelphia, and it is related that when Dr. Chambers appealed to his congregation for a church suitable to its needs. Mr. Wanamaker then a boy shouted enthusiastically, "I'll give a load of brick from my father's brick yard."

Later he gathered together a handful of boys in a shoemaker's shop and formed a Sunday school which was the nucleus of what is today the Bethany Presbyterian Church, of Philadelphia. The Bethany Sunday school, of which Mr. Wanamaker was superintendent, has 6,000 members. Mr. Wanamaker took particular pride in this school as well as the Brotherhood of Andrew and Philip, which he also founded, and it is known that he carried about with him constantly an alphabetical index of the members of the school and brotherhood, and that, when time permitted, he studied this list to acquaint himself individually with all the members. His attendance at the Sunday school meetings kept him on his feet almost continuously for eight hours every Sunday, for he often conducted as many as 12 meetings and made short addresses at all of them. Such was his Sunday work the year round for more than half a century.

Liberal In Charities

Other public institutions which Mr. Wanamaker established were the Presbyterian Hospital of Philadelphia and the First Penny Savings Bank. He also assisted in erecting the many Youngs Men's Christian Association buildings in various cities and contributed toward college missionary institutions in Inda, China and Japan At the outbreak of the World War he was one of the first to assist in the relief of the stricken Belgians supplying two ship loads of food for the invaded country.

Early in his career Mr. Wanamaker married Miss Mary B. Brown, a sister of his original partner, who cooperated with him in much of his philanthropic work. She died in August, 1922.
