"Why Should We Let Him Strain His Eyes Like That?"

The health of your boy, his future happiness and success are dependent upon the development of his eyesight. He may be severely straining his eyes; they may not be as well equipped to stand the strain as you suppose; they may be a handicap to his progress in school.

But how can you tell? He may not complain; you may not attribute irritableness, slight headaches, a stomach disorder, backwardness in his school work to the condition of his eyesight.

Have his eyes examined! He may not need glasses but if he does, treat him squarely; give him the opportunity to prepare himself under no physical handicap for which you will feel responsible.

Negroes Improve Farming

Washington—Sixteen years ago the first negro agricultural demonstration was employed to carry on extension work among negro farmers. According to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture there are now 285 negro men and women agents under whose direction more than 14,000 negro farmers and their families are following approved practices in farming and home making.

War Department Helps Roads

Washington—Approximately $190,000,000 worth of road-building machinery, and other supplies from the surplus war material of the army, including 30,000 motor vehicles, have been alloted to the Bureau of Public Roads. This material, of which approximately $150,000,000 worth has been delivered has enabled many of the states to organize and equip maintenance divisions to patrol the entire state road system.
