Kaiser and Bride

It is with pride that this newspaper publishes this first picture of the former Kaiser and his new bride. Through the Publishers Autocaster Service of New York, which serves this newspaper, this picture was obtained from a tireless photographer in Holland, who after four weeks snapped this picture from the top of a tree without being caught.

GENUINE "BULL" DURHAM TOBACCO

OH BOY! FOR A LITTLE STATE LIKE MARYLAND

The finest ten ears of yellow corn grown in the world in the year 1922. In addition twenty-one other prizes which yielded pocket money to the tune of $175. That is the record of Maryland corn growers at the International Grain and Hay Show at Chicago, December 2 to 9 and isn't so bad for a little state like Maryland that doesn't believe in bragging.

Maryland exhibitors won eight of the fifty prizes offered for ten-ear exhibits of yellow corn and came home with $120 jingling in their pockets as a result. Naturally G. D. Radebaugh, of Bynum, Harford county, rattled his money more often and more loudly than anybody else for the simple reason that he had $45 as his nest egg and kept remembering that he had trimmed about 800 of those corn belt farmers by exhibiting the best ten ears of yellow corn on this planet and winning the championship in this class.

The others in this ten-year yellow corn class who felt their oats, or more properly their corn, were :Garnet Radebaugh, Bynum, $20 for eleventh place; Henry Rigdon, Forest Hill, $20, fifteenth place; Walter Tucker, Forest Hill, $10 for thirty-fourth place; A. D. Short, Elkton, $10 for thirty-fifth place; Frank Radebaugh, Bynum, $5 for thirty-seventh place; John Hobson, Newark, Del., $5 for forty-seventh place; and G. P. Radebaugh, Bynum, $5 for forty-eight place.

Of the fifty prizes offered for ten-ear exhibits of white corn, Maryland growers won nine and received a total of $75 with which to purchase Christmas cigars. S. J. Galbreath, of Street, will make the largest purchase of Christmas stogies as he led the field of Maryland exhibitors in this class by landing in twenty-third place for $15. Other prospective cigar buyers are: James Galbreath, Street, twenty-seventh prize of $10; J. A. Hartenstine, Principio Furnace, thirtieth prize of $10; E. B. Milbourn,Elkton, thirty-third prize of $10; Joseph Hornberger, Elkton, thirty-fifth prize of $10; W. R. Harvey, Corbett, thirty-seventh prize of $5; Charles Gibson, Principio; Furnace, thirty-ninth prize of $5; John Lippincott, Colora, forty-ninth prize of $5; Roy Thomas, Darlington, fiftieth prize of $5.

In the single-ear class which offered but twenty-three awards, the Maryland growers decided to give the other states a chance and took but five prizes of $5 each. The winners placed as follows: Wilson Heaps, Pylesville, seventh; Edwin Caudill, Forest Hill, seventeenth; G. P. Radebaugh, Bynum, nineteenth; James Galbreath, Street, twenty-first; Mrs. G. B. Rigdon, Forest Hill, twenty-second.

Maryland growers competed in Region 4 with such famous corn producing states as Kansas, Missouri and the southern section of Ohio, Illinois and Indiana, besides Kentucky, West Virginia and Delaware.

Far be it from us to make any of these other states feel badly.

Also far be it from us to give the impression that we are not feeling dinged good over the Maryland achievement. Anyhow the truth is the truth and the truth is that Maryland won more prizes than any other state with the exception of Indiana and in face of the fact that Missouri alone, according to the 1920 census, plants more acres in corn than are included in all of Maryland's farm land.

Our Obligation

Telephone employees in Maryland realize what service means. They know that good telephone service—from the viewpoint of the patron—consists in being able to reach promptly and without confusion any person desired and to talk satisfactorily and without interruption.

Telephone employees also know good telephone service is not merely the handling of calls, but is made up of all of the Company's many and varied activities.

Good telephone service includes, in addition, the installation of telephones, the moving of telephones to new locations, correct directory listings and proper maintenance of the telephone equipment both in the central office and on the subscriber's premises, and many other things.

Telephone employees realize that to give the public of Maryland good telephone service, the Telephone Company must not fail in any of these things.
