The defendants then further to prove the issue on their part, offered evidence by — Graves that he has resided 47 or 48 years on Fells Point and has that long known the property now in dispute that William Inloes's fence was put down in 1807 or 1808, and continued he thinks 9 or 10 years that it began at about the middle of Caroline Street and went westerly he would not say as far as Spring Street; that a great deal of Wash at that time come down Caroline Street that the wash went against the the fence of Inloes aforesaid and was turned but westerly of the fence that the wash Southerly of Fleet Street spread the ground being flat that the fence was made for filling up and that was known in the neighbourhood and that it had the effect of filling up by catching the sediment as it came down; that persons looking could see the fence from Wilkes Street; that he cannot say it was standing when the City began filling up; that the fence was of inch board nailed to the log that persons owning the ground on Bond Street claimed Water rights and that therefore Inloes ran out that he knew Joshua Inloes's Wharf; that Joshua Inloes married his sister and that he was apprentice to Joshua Inloes; That the Wharf was up in 1795; and extended 15 or 20 feet westerly of Strawberry Alley. That Joshua Inloes had a fence from his Wharf; that William Inloes's fence began about the middle of Caroline Street; that he saw Inloes 6 or 7 times repair it in that number of years; that in continued 8 or 9 years that he thinks he saw it ein 1814 - but will not speak positively; That the wash which went down Caroline Street was turned Eastwardly into Ann Street about the year 1808 but that still some wash came down until a few years past that the fence caught some of the wash that before the fence was put there, there was no ground at the place; and afterwards there was both on the north and South side of the fence; that the muddy water would go through the fence that at low tides the fence was bare that when the fence was put up it was about three feet above the ground, that when Witness last saw it, it was eighteen inches above the ground at low tides that Chapman in 1826 or 1827 built the Ware House marked
