Ivory: To restore ivory that has turned yellow to its natural color, rub with turpentine.

Coat hangers: If coat hangers are covered with velvet instead of silk, the garments will not slip off.

Bath tub: Rub the tub with a cloth dampened with kerosene oil. [illegible] not hurt the enamel and will re[illegible] all stains with less work.

Japanese Trays: Try this for cleaning Japanese trays. Make a mixture of vinegar and powdeered whiting. Apply it with a soft flannel, wipe off with a clean cloth and polish with a chamois.

Toothbruth: If a new tooth brush is soaked over night in a glass of water, the bristles will not come out and it will last twice as long.

Potato: To utilize left over boiled potatoes, and make a few "go around" cut them up, add a slice of bread cut into dice and fry the potatoes together. It makes a delicious dish.

Soup: When making soup always put the meat in cold water. Corned beef and ham should be put in boiling water. Add a tablespoon of vinegar to make the meat tender.

Hot Water Bottle: After emptying a hot water bottle it should be slightly inflated with air before the stopper is replaced. Then powder with talcum and put away in a cardboard box where it will not be damaged by contact with light and air.

Linen: Linen that is not to be used for quite a while should never be starched, as it may crack. The linen should be rinsed quite free of starch, dried and folded away in blue paper. The blue paper will keep it from turning yellow.

Cabbage: When boiling cabbage put in a piece of stale bread. This kills the unpleasant odor.

Stains: To remove cocoa stains from tablecloths and napkins try washing them first with cold water and then pour boiling water through until the stain has disappeared. This will also remove coffee and tea stains.

OF THE COOLIDGE BUSINESS MEN'S LEAGUE OF MARYLAND

The complex political situation facing us at this time requires the best thought and broadest patriotism of every man and woman in the Country

Heretofore the business men have taken too little interest in political affairs. About once in a generation they are aroused from their smug complacency by some exceptional menace to the institutions founded by the Fathers.

This was the situation in 1896 when the integrity of our monetary standards was threatened and when government ownership and other vagaries were advocated. All know the result of the campaign of that year, which was largely due to the interest taken by business men.

We are again confronted with a similar situation. One of the candidates for the Presidency, Senator LaFollette, the candidate of the Socialist Party, not only advocates government ownership but attacks our courts, which are the safeguards of American Citizenship. His effort is to line up radicals throughout the land against Constitutional government as established by the founders. This is not a campaign between the two great parties, but one to determine whether the fundamental principles of human liberty and the inalienable rights of men shall endure.

That his election is impossible does not remove the menace of radicalism. It is possible, if not probable, that his candidacy will cause the failure of any candidate to receive a majority of the electoral vote. In this event, the present House of Representatives will have the power to select the President. With the House practically evenly divided between the two great parties, the radical group can, and probably will insist upon the selection of LaFollette and thus cause a deadlock.

If this situation is created, the Vice President selected by the Senate will become President. In view of the fact that the radical element hold the balance of power in the Senate it is not improbable that Bryan may be selected as the Vice-President. We would then have as President the brother of William Jennings Bryan, holding equally as radical and visionary political views, with much less ability than has he.

Therefore, the issue before the American people in the coming election is—shall Coolidge be elected or shall the election be made by the House; or the Vice-President elected by the Senate become the President?

In this emergency the conservative qualities, the ability, the calm judgment and high intelligence of President Coolidge should appeal to the business man and to the great conservative mass of men and women of Baltimore and Maryland without regard to party.

It is hoped that this organization may be able to arouse the people of Maryland to the seriousness of the situation and of the many industrial, economic and financial problems with which we must deal in the next few years, and that it will be a factor in placing at the head of the Government a man of the caliber, poise and conservatism of Calvin Coolidge.

The Telephone Rate Hearings

THE course of the present hearings before the Public Service Commission may have given the public the erroneous impression that this Company is not properly co-operating with the Commission and People's Counsel in providing the information about our operations necessary to the Commission's consideration of the new rates. Nothing in this Company's actions before the Commission justifies such an impression.

¶ The operations of this Company are confined to a State-wide service in Maryland, but our patrons' requirements for communication to and from other parts of the country necessitate our connecting with the lines of other telephone companies. This requires contractual relations for the interchange of telephone traffic with the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, which operates the Long Lines system of the country, as well as with other telephone companies in adjoining States with which business is directly interchanged.

¶ Our Company also has other long-established contractual relations with the American Telephone & Telegraph Company. These are known to everyone and in all their phases have been considered a number of times by the Maryland Commission in previous cases.

¶ Appreciating that these relationships are properly matters of interest in the present case, we have furnished the Commission all information requested of us in connection with them and have offered to furnish any additional information which the Commission desires to have before it in considering their reasonableness and propriety as affecting our telephone operations in Maryland.

¶ There is no relationship with any other telephone company with which we deal about which all pertinent information cannot be had from our books and records and which will not be reflected through our witnesses. We ask the public to be patient until we have the opportunity to present our case and in the meantime not to believe that we are in any way opposing the Commission's right to have all the facts before it in considering this important matter.
