The family awakened one night, hearing a conversation in little Hester's room. Turning on the lights they found little Hester partly under the bed, searching for something that she was apparently unable to find.

"Why darling, what are you looking for?" her mother asked.

"I fell out of bed," replied the little girl, "and I'se lookin' for me."

Plans are now being perfected by Mr. W. I. Tawes, manual training teacher at the Laurel High School, whereby evening courses in home mechanics will shortly be inaugurated for the people of Laurel.

In order to see just how many people are interested in this course Mr. Tawes has called a meeting for Monday, November 10, at Room 100 in the school. At this meeting Mr. Tawes will discuss the work to be taken up and will then see just how many people will want to take advantage of this opportunity.

That Zora Thomas, wife and three small children are alive, and not even seriously scratched, is considered one of the most miraculous escapes ever witnessed at Laurel.

Thomas' automobile while turning a corner Saturday night, was struck by a heavy bus and knocked across the curbing and pavement, then, turning over, was practically wrecked.

The bus, owned by the West Chester, Pa., Transportation Company, and driven by Clarence Hibbert, was taking a foot-ball team from the Cheney, Pa., training school to Princess Anne, Md., where they were to play the eleven from the state academy there.

The work of placing the steel girders in position in the draw of the new concrete and steel bridge, spanning the Nanticoke river at Seaford, was begun Monday afternoon, when one of the girders, weighing several tons was placed on a lighter at the Seaford Marine Railway and floated to the bridge. The girder was placed in position without a hitch, under the supervision of Sherman Chalmers, who is superintending the work for the Al. S. Fox Bridge Company.

Easton, Md., Nov .9—Burglars early this morning entered the haberdashery conducted here by S. J. Griffin and took almost the entire stock of men's clothing, recently installed. Several other articles were taken and the loss will be about $1,000.

Griffin was in the store until midnight last night, and today, going to the place to overhaul a radio set, felt a draught on entering. Investigation showed a rear window pane had been cut, the catch released and the sash raised. Griffin then discovered his loss.

Police of nearby cities and towns have been notified of the burglary.

Cambridge, Md., Nov. 7.—Eighty-four and still actively fighting fires gives to J. Hamilton Baily, of this city, the distinction of being the oldest fire-fighter in the matter of years as well as length of service in the State of Maryland.

When, after the "big fire" that wiped out a goodly part of Cambridge in 1881, the Rescue Fire Company was organized, Mr. Baily was a charter member, and three years later became the secretary-treasurer of the fire company. He is now the foreman of the engine crew and takes charge of the steamer whenever it is called into service.

Duty does not require his attendance at fires until the reserve is called out, but, like the old fire horse, the clang of the gong starts him toward the scene.

Salisbury, Md., Nov. 7—Fanned by a stiff breeze, fire originating in one of the storage houses of the C. R. Disharoon Company here today, for a time threatened to destroy several residences as the flames jumped a street and raged in piles of lumber stored in the yards.

The storage house was a total loss and much of the surplus lumber in the yard was burned. Officials of the company were unable to estimate the loss. Only a small part of the loss is insured

Due to low water pressure in that section, but one pumping unit could be used in combatting the fire and it was not until almost six hours later that the flames were under control.

Sparks from the factory smoke stack or an engine shifting in the yards are thought to have started the fire.

The observance of Armistice Day on Tuesday, November 11th, in Milford, will be carried out this year according to a program which has been arranged by the American Legion.

The parade will form at 6:30 p. m. on Lake View avenue and march down into the business section by way of Causey avenue to the Plaza Square, then out Second street to Franklin street, down Franklin street to East Front street to Walnut street, thence north on Walnut street to Second street, North Milford, then west on Second street to West street, down West street to Front street north, then east on Front street to Walnut street and thence to the Plaza Square where it will be dismissed and proceed to the armory where patriotic addresses will be made by speakers of ability; among these will be Rabbi Dr. Lee J. Lenninger, who is the State Chaplain of the American Legion. His subject will be "Peace After War."

For the first time in many years lock-jaw claimed a Queen Anne's county victim this week, when Carroll Williams, a Rich Neck farmer, died in Emergency Hospital, from injuries received when a rusty nail penetrated his foot. The accident occured last Sunday on the Walker Farm, where Mr. Williams resided. He failed to seek medical aid until Tuesday and the wound had become so serious that Dr. N. S. Dudley, of Church Hill, immediatley ordered him removed to Easton for hospital treatment.

Death resulted on Wednesday.

He leaves a wife and large family of children.

During a scarcity of eggs a grocer out west put out this sign in front of his store: "We want eggs, and we want them bad." He got them.

SCOUT JOHNNY JONES
SECOND ADVENTURE

Late one afternoon Johnny was sent on an errand that took him through a lonely street in Colonial Palace. A strong wind was blowing and Johnny had some difficulty in walkling against the wind.

Suddenly he spied just ahead a man lying on the side walk. Johnny rushed forward and was about to turn the man over when he saw that he was lying across a light wire that had been broken by the wind.

The man was apparently dead, but

At your troop meeting show what Johnny did and how he treated the man, then look in these columns next week for Dr. Smithe's answer to the problem and see if you were right.

NEXT WEEK will appear the answer to Scout Johnny Jones second adventure and his THIRD ADVENTURE.

"Well, darling, what did you see at church to-day?" A little three year old was asked after his first visit to a real church service.

"O, muvver, I saw the funniest thing, dere was a man dat said his prayers and den he did't go to bed."
