"Think Right"

Think smiles, and smiles will be;
Think doubt, and hope will flee;
Think love, and love will grow;
Think hate, and hate you'll know.
Thing good, and good is here;
Think vice, its jaws appear;
Think joy, and joy ne'er ends;
Think gloom, and dark descends.
Think faith, and faith's at hand;
Thing ill—it stalks the land.
Think peace—sublime and sweet,
And you that peace will meet.
Think fear, with brooding mind,
And failure's close behind.
Think this: "I'm going to win,"
Think not on what has been;
Think victory; think "I can,"
Then you're a winning man.

"My grandpa notes the world's worn cogs,
And says we're going to the dogs,
His grand dad in his house of logs,
Swore things were going to the dogs,
The caveman in his queer skin togs,
Said things were going to the dogs.
But this is what I wish to state—
The dogs will have an awful wait."

Dear Miss Flo: If one wishes to wear long kid gloves when being married, is it proper to remove the hand from the glove on the left arm and tuck the hand part up under the arm of the glove, or should the whole glove be removed? When should this be done—before the ceremony or during the ceremony? Is it necessary to remove both gloves? (2) Upon the return from a honeymoon does the bride make calls? C. W.

* * *

The glove should be entirely removed from the left hand before entering the church, and handed to the matron of honor with the bridal bouquet. It is not necessary to remove the right glove. The bride should never make the first call. Friends of the bride should call upon her within one month after her return, but not earlier than two weeks.

Dear Miss Flo: At a dinner party, who should be served first? Should the guests be served as arranged at the table—the lady and then the gentleman, or should all the ladies be served first? Should the hostess and the host be served first? Thank you. K. D.

* * *

The ladies in the party are served first. The hostess is served after all the other ladies have been served, and the host is served after all the other gentlemen have been served.

Dear Miss Flo: If one is a frequent guest at a friend's home, and knows the servants from seeing them so often, is it proper to greet them? (2) When no salt spoon is provided, how should the salt be taken? E. R,

* * *

It is quite proper and polite to greet the servants. One might say, "How are you, Mary?" or "How do you do, John?" (2) When no salt spoon is provided, the tip of a clean knife may be used.

Dear Miss Flo: How should a lady be introduced to a group of ladies and gentlemen? (2) When a gentlemen escorts two ladies to the theater, is it correct for him to sit between them? Which lady should he take home first—the elder or the younger? Thank you.

* * *

When introducing a lady to a group of people, one shoul say, Miss Smith, let me introduce you to——," and then the names of the individuals are given the ladies mentioned first. (2) A gentleman never sits between the two ladies he escorts to the theater. The younger lady should be taken home first.

INCOME TAXES MAY BE REDUCED

President Coolidge Has Made This Suggestion to Congress

It is more than likely that the income taxes paid by the people of the nation will be cut next year. This result can be accomplished if the suggestions of President Coolidge to Congress and the heads of the different departments of the federal government are carried out to the fullest extent. It would mean that the income tax rates now in force would be cut at least 25 percent for next year, by a bill which will be introduced at the early part of the next session of Congress.

President Coolidge has had several conferences with Representative Martin Madden, chairman of the appropriations committee in the House, in regard to the matter and Madden is confident that if Congress will back up the President the cut in income taxes for next year can be accomplished.

An interesting side-light into the matter of appropriations this year is that by heeding the President's directions, appropriations $8,000,000 below the budget's estimates, were passed at the last session of the 68th Congress; put in plain language, this means that even with the figures of the budget taken as a basis, Congress at the direction of the President, has saved $8,000,000 more of the taxpayers money than was hoped for at the beginning of the session. It is also of interest to note that during the past four years Congress has spent $350,000,000 less than was preposed.

At the next session of Congress, Madden will call up his resolution which would result in making income taxes automatic. This plan would do away with continuous income tax legislation, although in an emergency congress would have the power to repeal the act. The plan would mean that when the Treasury had a surplus of over $50,000,000 a proportionate automatic decrease would be made in everyone,s income tax.

It is known here that President Coolidge has for some time been having an extensive survey of government financial conditions made, as he is determined not only to save the tax payers money but to cut off all needless expenditures; all of which means the carrying out of his promise to the people that whenever possible federal taxes would be lowered.

WASHINGTON COUNTY HORTCULTURISTS MEET

The short-term regional horticultural meeting recently held in Hagerstown under the joint auspices of the Washington County Farm Bureau and the University of Maryland Extension Service was a decided success. It was participated in by the fruit growers of Washington and adjoining countries in this state and by those in the Cumberland Valley of Pennsylvania and by those in the Shenandoah Valley of the Virginias.

The meetings lasted for two days with peach and apple production taking front ranks in the matter of discussion. Considerable attention was given to the plan of the County Farm Bureau to keep behind a movement to raise emergency crops this year in view of the almost total loss of the peach crop in this section due to the hard freeze during last January. The speakers at the meetings included County Agent Moore and a group of specialists from the University of Maryland.

A LESSON IN THE TRAPPING OF FLOYD COLLINS

"The harrowing experience of the man trapped in a cave in Kentucky should bring home to every reader of his terrible experience, what trapping means," says L. F. L., in the New York Herald.

"Millions of animlas are caught in steel traps every year, thousand, possibly, in traps for weeks alive. Many gnaw off their feet to liberate themselves, crawling off to suffer futher until death ends their agonies. No one knows how many suffer so. Animals cannot call for assistance. They must suffer the tortures of the steel trap until death ends their misery. I have heard authorities on trapping cruelties speak on the subject and their details were harrowing and revolting.,,

That cruel invention, the steel trap is responsible for a great deal of suffering. It is usually concealed under the snow or under leaves or under water, where it is shallow, and when it snaps on the foot of its victim holds it with a merciless grip. Trappers have been caught in their own traps, so skillfully do they conceal them. It is said that those who have been so caught and escape, alive never set another trap for an animal.

We should do all possible to arouse public sentiment against the use of the steel trap and by so doing help put an end to this useless suffering and torture. The horrible details of the fur trade, the cruelties involved in supplying furs for the adornment of would be difficult to say upon which kind of fur the stains lie deepest and darkest.
