Eastern Shore Happenings

Slaughter Beach, popular summer resort, located 9 miles from Milford, is enjoying one of the largest booms in its history. At the present time several new cottages are being erected, and they will be ready for occupancy in the near future. The cottagers have combined and are erecting a large water tower which is supplied with water from the artesian wells on the beach. Pipe lines are being laid to carry the water to each cottage owner who has joined in the project. For the first time in several years a real effort is being made to operate the hotel property on the beach for both the transient trade and the weekly boarders. The hotel has been reconditioned, and Edward J. Salevan has leased it for the season. It will be opened to the public on Sunday next. The fine pier on the beach adds to the enjoyment of the resort. The finest of crabs are being caught by pleasure seekers from off the pier. Slaughter Beach is apparently in midst of its biggest boom, and this season promises to be the best in its history.

The experiment of frying an egg on the asphalt pavement of the street was carried out Friday afternoon, at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue, Washington.

The egg was broken and carefully placed on the roadway at 12:42 p. m. and the process of frying was checked with a stop watch. At 12.44 the edge of the egg began to sizzle, at 12:46 the yolk began to cook and at 12:51 the egg was fried to a turn. No one volunteered to eat it.

Sudlersville continues to attract the attention of the medical fraternity throughout Maryland because of the startling number of appendicitis cases that have developed in this immediate community during the last few weeks.

The twelfth case was recorded when Mrs. Joseph Coppage was removed to Emergency Hospital. She was operated upon successfully and has improved greatly.

Men, women, boys and girls have been victims of the unusual epidemic, and physicians are at a loss to explain the situation.

Miss Etta Obier, aged 40, of Seaford, who was struck by lightening, during the storm of Tuesday evening, June 9, is in a serious condition at the home of her brother, George E. Obier, a Seaford farmer. Mr. Obier's home was struck in three places at the same time, the bolt badly damaging the roof, dining room and kitchen.

Miss Obier was standing on the porch when she was knocked unconscious by the lightening, being found ten minutes later by Mrs. Obier. Miss Obiers injuries are confined to her shoulders and back.

This is the second serious accident that has befallen Miss Obier within 9 months. Last October she was the victim of a serious automobile accident, being confined in the Salisbury hospital for quite some time.

Dr. Charles F. Smith, prominent Salisbury dentist, was elected president of the Eastern Shore Dental Society at a meeting held in the Caulk Dental Laboratories, Milford, last Friday. The new head of the organization, which is affiliated with the American Dental Association, has been an earnest worker for the body and formerly served as its secretary.

Other officers elected were as follows: First vice president, Dr. J. T. Nock, Pocomoke; secretary, Dr. J. T. Swing, Cambridge; treasurer, Dr. P. P. Payne, Cambridge; sergeant-at-arms, Dr. J. Haymaker, Denton. The executive Council is composed of Dr. H. C. Hughes, Chestertown; Dr. P. P. Payne, Cambridge; Dr. S. P. Fuller, Crisfield; Dr. W. L. Lowe, Cambridge; Dr. R. O. Higgins, Salisbury.

Centreville, Md., June 14—Queen Anne's county's annual horse and cattl exhibition and the annual picnic of the Queen Anne's County's Farm Bureau will be held on separate dates this year. Last year they were combined, but at a meeting of the directers of the bureau it was decided to hold them at different places and dates.

If satisfactory arrangements can be made, the picnic will be held at "My Lord's Cliff," near Queenstown. This is regarded as the most suitable spot. The horse and cattle show will be held in Centreville. Dates for the two attractions will be named later.

On Thursday of last week there was received a message informing of the death that morning of Mr. George Carroll, of Miller, S. D.

Mr. Carroll who was a native of Dorchester county, was a brother of Mr. J. M. Carroll, of Hurlock, and of Mr. F. C. Carroll of Washington, and had friends and relatives in Federalsburg.

As a young man, in 1874, he went west, first to the State of Iowa, where he married Miss Alice Milburn, and later settled at Miller, S. D., where he owned extensive grain farms and established a law office also.

Mr. Carroll never returned to his native home, but died surrounded by his six children—four sons and two daughters—his wife having died some years ago. He was 76 years old.

After a prolonged illness, Albert Richardson, aged about 80 years, died at his home in Baltimore, on Saturday, the 6th. His remains were interred Tuesday morning, at Church Creek, following funeral services at Trinity church, in that town.

Mr. Richardson was a native of Dorchester county, having been born at Church Creek, and in his youth was conected, in a reportorial capacity, with the Baltimore daily papers.

Some time prior to 1870 he removed to this city where he was engaged in the drug business, and later became editor and proprietor of the Salisbury Advertiser, with which journal he was connected for a few years.

He was married on January 27th, 1891, at Grace P. E. church, Baltimore, to Miss Hester Crawford Dorsey, of that city.

Mrs. Richardson is a noted genealogist and is the author of a number of books, including "Side lights on Maryland History."

Mr. and Mrs. Richardson were well known on the Eastern Shore, having formerly done much research work in a number of public record offices of this section.

Besides his widow, the deceased is survived by one son, Dorsey Richardson, who is prominently associated with the diplomatic service of this country.

He Is "IT"

John T. Scopes, professor of biology at Dayton, Tenn. high school, on trial there for violating the "monkey-law" — or, charged with teaching the theory of evolution. It is a test case watched with a great deal of interest throughout the country.

Down He Goes

Lower picture shows the veteran Tom Gibbons of St. Paul, down for the count when knocked out in the 12th round by Gene Tunney at N. Y. last week. Tunney (above) says he is now ready for Dempsey.

"Morning Warden"

Gaston B. Means, former Daugherty aid, as he registered in at Atlanta prison to serve a two year sentence for conspiracy. He is also under indictment charged with forgery in the Daugherty investigation.
