DENTON, SATURDAY MORNING, July 10, 1875.

Democratic Conservative PRIMARY MEETINGS.

The Democratic Conservative voters of the county are requested to meet at the usual polling places in their respective Districts on SATURDAY, July 10th, 1875,

for the purpose of selecting five Delegates in each district to represent said district in County Convention to be held in Denton, on the said Convention, when assembled, to select three Delegates to represent Caroline county in the State Convention, which will meet in Baltimore city, on to nominate candidates for Governor, Comptroller, and Attorney General of the State of Maryland.

TUESDAY, July 13th, 1875;

WEDNESDAY, July 21st, 1875,

The New York Sun thinks the currency a trifling matter compared with the question whether the affairs of the country shall be administered by thieves or by honest men. It says:

"Let us first drive the robbers out of the temple of our republican freedom, and then we shall be prepared to consider what sort of money is most convenient and beneficial.

THERE is reason to believe that the coming corn crop will be a very heavy one, as causes seem to combine to this end. In the West large quantities of wheat land was plowed up and planted in corn, the most of it being killed by the winter's frost. In the Eastern States the hay crop was so poor that a larger acreage of corn was planted, to make up in fodder the deficiency in hay. Reports from all sections is that the crop is growing finely, and that a large yield is anticipated.

THE jury in the Beecher trial being unable to agree, were discharged on Saturday last, after being out ten days. The jury stood nine for Beecher and three for Tilton.

Public opinion now rests where it commenced, being divided in regard to the guilt or innocence of the accused.—Mr. Beecher himself is left in perplexing doubt, if he really meant what he said when he stated at an early stage of the trial that he was there to ascertain whether he was guilty or not. However, one thing we think has been made clearly evident "by the words of his own mouth," and that is, that he is guilty of something—of something wrong, but what that was, "was not proven." Whatever may have been the shortcomings of Mr. Beecher he retains it seems, the full confidence of his church and his friends. Mr. Sherman, one of his lawyers, and a member of his church, said in a recent lecture:

"No voice uttered from the press or pulpit can make us leave you, and ten thousand juries cannot make us doubt your word. We will go with you to the end, whatever that may be."

On Wednesday night the Plymouth church society testified the sincerity of their belief in his innocence by voting him a salary of $100,000, good for one year only. His present salary is $20,000. It is understood that this enormous increase is mainly intended to defray the expenses of the trial to which Mr. Beecher was subjected, so that probably there will not be so much left for him after all. His salary, it is also stated, will in the future be a moderate one.

IT is reported from every section of the South that the colored people are disgusted with the dishonesty and greed of the carpet-baggers and that they are now ready and willing to join hands with the native whites to protect themselves from the misrule and greed of these adventurers. In Lousiana, Mississippi and other States that it was thought would become completely Africanized, the same disposition is being manifested.

We learn one of the most honest satires of the day was uttered by Fred. Douglass at Hillsdale, near Washington city, on Monday last, in an address on the condition of the colored race. He said plainly and keenly: "We have been injured more than we have been helped by men who have professed to be our friends. They are lawyers without clients, ministers without churches, wandering teachers without schools." Such men had gone begging for the "poor black people" pretty much on their own hook, and for every one hundred dollars they collected, the "poor black people" got about one hundred cents. These men he said, must be stopped begging for the colored people, as they misrepresented them and caused the country to look upon them as a poor and helpless people. In like vein he referred to the great fraud of the Freedmen's Bank, and excoriated the "white friends" having the run of that ill-starred institution with an unsparing hand. He concluded by appealing to the colored people to be independent of the wandering mendicants who have followed them simply for gain, adding, "and in the future, if we want a Moses, we will find him in our own tribes."

THE prospect that Gov. Groome will be nominated as his own successor, is better now we beleive than any time since the campaign opened. Many that have not heretofore favored his nomination (because they beleived it had been decreed by the managing ones that another was to receive the high and destinguished honor,) begin now to see and admit it too that the people have now taken the matter into their own hands as they should have done and intend to nominate a peoples candidate. This they will surely do, in nominating the young and talented Eastern Shoreman James B. Groome as our standard bearer. Easy and free in manners and accessible to all, tried and true in principles, fluent and gifted as a public speaker, with admitted capacity and integrity, he will be one of the most popular champions of our cause that has led our veteran columns to victory for many, many years. To secure his nomination the Eastern Shore must stand up like valiant soldiers fighting for principle and admit of no terms or compromise, short of the first place upon the ticket, viz: Groome for Govenor.

We warmly and openly espoused the cause of Groome at and early date for our feelings and judgement both commended it as right and proper, but we now feel more than ever that it was, and is our plain duty to do so. It is supposed that the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company will make an effort a determined one too, at the next session of the Legislature to repeal the capitation tax on the Washington Branch. It is exempt from all other taxation, and if this clause is repealed it will, though worth millions of dollars be entirely free. Where Groome will stand in a contest with this corporation or any other is not doubtful and uncertain. It is known that he will stand where he has so manfully stood by the people in the exaction of the just dues of the state from this and all other corporation. Duty and interest both combine to make him our nominee.

Grasshoppers.

The Chicago Tribune tells of a swarm of grasshoppers which, moving at the rate of fifteen miles an hour, occupied sixty hours in passing over a town in Missouri, and was estimated to be from thirty to seventy-five miles wide and a half a mile deep."

It may be some consolation to know that our western farmers are not the only people troubled with this plague—the grasshoppers. In the south of France, the population aided by the military have been obliged to go fourth to give the grasshopper battle. The approach of this great enemy of mankind, is viewed in great terror and consternation by the inhabitants of the country they infest, and by a writer is thus graphically discribed.

"Suddenly across the calm blue skies, sinister shadows appear, which, in the distance has the aspect of clouds threatening a storm. Very shortly these shadows will thicken into a blackness which fills the heavens and hides the sun. A sound like the rushing of cataracts is heard, and in a few moments the soil is covered with a creeping hail which has splintered the branches of trees in its descent, frightened the cattle, and taken undisputed possession of the earth. In a few hours and over a distance of many miles, every trace of vegetation has disappeared. The wheat has been gnawed to its roots, the trees stripped the orchards laid bare. Every thing has been cut, hacked, devoured. And then, when nothing more remains to be eaten, the head grasshopper gives a sudden signal, there is a horrible rustling noise of myriad wings, and away goes this terrible troop as quickly as it came, leaving ruin, famine, despair, and sometimes pestilence, behind.

HOW PLANTS GROW.

Every seed, however minute, contains within it an embryo, the germ of a new plant. Placed in a favorable situation, this principle of life becomes active, and the process of germination begins.—Roots send out rootlets, that fix themselves firmly in the soil, and soon the ascending blade or plumule is visible. Chemical action commences, sap is elaborated by which the plant is nourished; branches, buds, leaves, flowers and fruit succeed in order. Thus year by year, is the face of old mother Earth made fair and blooming; and man for whose instruction and comfort a Gracious Father ordained this oft-repeated type of his own resurrection, beholds around him and within his reach, the means of supplying every need.

At his feet are spread carpets of emerald green; glancing upward, it is through rifts of gently waving branches of graceful foliage, that he has glimpses of the blue sky above. Before him are fields rich in promise of seed time and harvest; near by, smiling orchards and luscious fruits, suggesting rest and refreshment after the heat and labor of the day; while in the grass, the fields, the orchards, are flowers so exquisit in color, form and fragrance, that he readily adopts the poet's fancy that "they are the foot-prints of angels." In them he beholds the tender regard, of a most kind Father, not only for the needs but also for the enjoyment of His creatures. His thoughts revert to the Gracious Teacher—who on the hill-side of Judea, so long ago rebuked all human pride and vanity as he taught a lesson of Faith through the 'Lillies of the field,'—the perfect grace and fashion of which, the great and wise king, in his greatest glory of attire, could never equal.

To his grateful, humbled heart each flower becomes a book; every leaf a page, whereon he reads good, holy lessons of One "almighty to create, almighty to renew." He feels that earth is chanting her Benedicite and sings with her "O all ye green things upon the earth, bless ye the Lord; praise Him and magnify Him for ever."

NEWS GLEANINGS.

During the recent western tour the Boston Base Ball Club earned $17,000 as gate money.

It is announced that Jefferson Davis will be offered the chancellorship of the University of Georgia at the coming election.

A saloon keeper in Louisiana has just been compelled to pay 1,200 damages to a woman for selling liquor to her husband.

At the funeral of a girl in Dansville, New York, the other day, the pall-bearers were six young ladies dressed in deep mourning.

The Garrett County Herald, which opposes Hamilton, predicts that the delegation from that county to the State Convention will go unpledged.

Seth Green, the eminent pisculturist, will sail for Germany from New York, taking with him a quantity of shad spawn to introduce into the rivers of Europe.

Nevada papers say that propositions of marriage out there are written on postal cards, and the answer comes by return mail: "Come on with your preacher!"

At Middletown, Del., and immense peach refrigator is to be built, capable of holding 200,000 baskets of fruit, which the projecter guarantees to keep by a peculiar freezing process for six months.

Near Creston, Iowa, on Wednesday, a murderer, being pursued and surrounded by horsemen, coolly drew a razor from his pocket, and remarking, "I suppose you think you've got me now," cut his throat from ear to ear.

The democrats of Somerset county, Md., on Tuesday elected delegates to the State nominating convention pledged to Woolford for comptroller, but uninstructed as to candidates for Govenor and Attorney General.

The Rev. Phebe A. Hanaford of Jersey City (Universalist) recently exchanged pulpits with her son, the Rev. H. A. Hanaford (of St. Paul's Church), at Little Falls, N. Y. the first pastoral exchange on record between mother and son.

The democrats of Washington county, Md., on Tuesday selected delegates to the State nominating convention, and passed a resolution indorsing Hon. William T. Hamilton as the democratic candidate for Govenor of Maryland.

A heavy rain storm, accompanied by lightning and thunder, passed over Wyack, N. Y., on Tuesday afternoon. Two men, Alvin Newnan and Jacob Tucker, were instantly killed by lightning. Houses were unroofed, trees uprooted, and other damage done.

In his Recent Report, Professor Riley, State Entomologist, estimates the damages to the State of Missouri, from the ravages of the chinch-bug in 1874, in the staple crops of corn, wheat and oats, at $19,000,000.

A dove flew into a church at Hoosick, New York, and rested on the Rev. H. J. S. Lewis's head. The superstitious among the congregation believe the omen meant that the pastor will soon die and go to heaven; but the pastor does not seem overjoyed.

During the absence of Govenor Ames from Mississippi, a short time ago, the colored Lieutenant Governor, Davis, acting Governor, pardoned a friend of his out of the penitentiary. He is now charged with having received 1,200 for his mercy. Ames now postively refuses to pardon the murderer.

The Delawarean of Saturday, says an estimable citizen of Wilmington, a clerk, named Jacob Messimer, went on a picnic last week and tried to walk three miles in the sun. He was overcome by the heat and died in ten minutes. He leaves a wife and several children.

The Patrons of husbandry in Saline countiy, Missouri propose to start a bank at Marshall, with a capital of $100,000. The Missouri Farmer thinks this a good move, as the bank will lend only to farmers, and at a less rate of interest than is customary there. The Farmer thinks the high rate of interest is eating the farmers up faster than grasshoppers or chinchbug.

The Grange Merchants of Lynchburg, Va., recently sought by a secret circular to gain the exclusively custom of the Patrons of Husbandry of that region. The game was exposed, and now the granges throughout that region are meeting and resolving that they will not have any dealings with those who got up the secret circular, and thus attempted to prostitute the order to their personal behoof.

In New York, on Monday, there was a sale of thoroughbred horses from the stables of Mr. Belmont and Mr. Lorillard, and the prices obtained were very low. Silk Stockings, winner of the Kentucky stakes at Saratoga in 1872, five years old, by Kentucky, brought $110; Manfred, gelding, three years old, by Kentucky, $65; Attila, four years old, winner of the Trainers' stake, and never beaten as a three-year-old, $280. A number of three-year-olds sold at from $60 to $250.

A curious feature of the Beecher trial and its concomitants is the one which embraces the allegation that Mr. Beecher would have been acquited but for an imprudent remark by the foreman of his jury. The three Tilton jurors had been wearied into an agreement to yield to the persistency of the nine Beechers jurors, and had consented to agree to a verdict of acquittal, when the foreman aforesaid, Mr. Mr. Chester Carpenter, imprudently remarked that "his son-in-law had made a bet on the results of the jury's deliberations," whereupon the three Tiltonians relapsed to their normal obstinacy and refused to be Beecherites. All which is a lucid commentary upon the equal and exact justice sometimes meted out by intelligent jurors, as well as of the manner and form in which such jurors come to pertinent conclusions.

Creswell and his Offices.

Of the greedy swarm of adventurers who gathered about GRANT by a natural instinct after his first election, none perhaps has profited more on less capital than A. J. CRESWELL.

In 18[illegible] he was the most blatant and offensive secessionist in the State of Maryland, and went so far as to raise a company for the Confederate service. When it became manifest to the most unwilling that the rebellion was doomed to failure and its downfall was merely a question of time, CRESWELL, like a true Russian, turned his coat, became intensely loyal, and persecuted with a base malignity the young men whom he himself had persuaded to join the Confederates.

He recommended himself to the favor of extremists by this sort of unworthy service, and was made Postmaster-General. He took the iron-clad oath without a scruple, after having given aid and comfort to the enemy, and thus became liable to indictment for perjury, as he was politically disabled from holding office without relief from Congress, which he never got or even sought.

His administration of the Post Office is notorious to the country. Under his fostering care the straw-bid system was introduced and grew into a monstrous source of corruption. His former law partner was made First Assistant, and after acquiring complete knowledge of the methods of manipulating contracts, resigned to become the agent of the Ring who robbed the treasury of millions by the convenience of the Postmaster-General.

These facts and others equally damning were well known, and laid before the President. But they made no impression, for the Ring was supreme at the White House. Two investigations by Congress were ordered, and both of course whitewashed CRESWELL, for the plain reason that he controlled the committees who were in the pay of the great contractors.

Finally, when he saw the tide turning, and the certainty of a House of Representatives that must investigate to find out and not to conceal, he resigned, and the President certified to his integrity, as he did for COLFAX and other Christian statesmen. But this was not enough to prove his friendship for the retiring Postmaster General.

England had paid over fifteen and a half millions to compensate for the losses occasoned by Confederate cruisers built and equipped in her ports. That money had to be distributed and a court to be created, counsel provided, and a vast job nursed. Various schemes were proposed, and there was sharp competition among the parties who struggled for this big prize. At last the act of June 23, 1874, was squeezed through Congress, and the fifth section declares:

"That the President may designate a counsellor at law, admitted to practice in the Supreme Court of the United States to appear as counsel on behalf of the United States, and represent the interest of the Government in said suit, and in all claims filed for idemnity for losses, as provided by this act, subject to the supervision and control of the Attorney-General. Such counsel shall receive for his services and expenses such reasonable allowance on each claim as may be approved by the court, to be apportioned in each claim adjudicated, and paid from said award upon the certificate of one of the Judges."

This section was drawn for a purpose, and with a view to CRESWELL'S appointment. Instead of employing counsel at a fixed salary, as is done in everybody else's case, each award is taxed at the discression of judges selected by GRANT in the interest of counsel. From that source alone there would be an immense income. But a venal man by collusion with claimants has an opportunity even exceeding the profits of straw-bid contracts for a year. The President of course appointed CRESWELL from a knowledge of his character and fitness for this service.

At the last session Mr. BAYARD succeeded in passing an amendment to the Legislative appropriation, proving that the "compensation" of this counsellor "shall not exceed eight thousand dollars per annum." But that clause does not and could not prevent private firrangement with claimants, which of course depends upon the integrity of the counsellor.

Although an act of Congress expressly forbids any officer from receiving two salaries, CRESWELL was appointed one of the three Commissioners of the Freedman's Bank, and in that capacity has been drawing $3,000 a year from a few assets not stolen by the Washington Ring and their confederates.

Soon after quitting the Cabinet, CRESWELL established a bank at Washington, and has since then purchased the building formerly occupied by JAY COOKE & Co. It is evidently a good thing to be Postmaster-General under GRANT, for a renegade secessionist may start with nothing in his pocket, and after four or five years turn up as a millionaire, defy public opinion and decency, and rejoice in being known as a third termer. Perhaps the new House of representatives will inquire how these things are done, and what is the short cut to such wealth.—N. Y. Sun.

THE NATIONAL GRANGERS propose to coalesce with the Co operative Societies of England. The latter have created a compact and powerful orginization, and count half a million of members, beside a thousand co-operative stores, fifty or sixty cotton mills, several manufactories, and two agricultural and horticultural societies, while the grangers of this country possess little else than an orginization, having as yet failed to establish important entrepots or mills. It is proposed to form a joint council, through whose agency the co-operative principle can be practically applied.

The union republican congressional executive committee, in view of the approaching Presidential campaign and the State elections which are to occur the coming autumn, have issued a provide for the immediate and thorough reorginization of the republican party, and the circulation of such documents as will be essential for the work, Twenty dollars is the amount called for from each one receiving the circular.

JACOB TOME, Joseph B. Pugh, Alexander Randall, John E. Smith, Jas. A. Gary or A. B. Hagner, are mentioned by the Republican press, as probable candidates for the gubernatorial honors by that party—that is if they conclude to make a nomination.

BLATCHLEY'S

Improved CUCUMBER WOOD PUMP is the acknowledged STANDARD of the market, by popular verdict, the best pump for the least money. Attention is invited to Blatchley's Improved Bracket, the Drop Check Valve, which can be withdrawn without disturbing the joints, and the copper chamber which never cracks, scales or rusts and will last a life time. For sale by Dealers and the trade generally. In order to be sure that you get Blatchley's Pump, be careful and see that it has my trade-mark as above. If you do not know where to buy, descriptive circulars, together with the name and address of the agent nearest you, will be promptly furnished by addressing, with stamp,
CHAS. G. BLATCHLEY, Manufacturer.
