CONGRESS will meet on Monday next. An exciting session is anticipated.

THE Zez Perces Indian chief, Joseph, and his band of warriors, squaws and papooses have surrendered to Gen. ...es, after a desperate battle on the ...ke Creek.

WE have not yet received the full returns of the Ohio and Iowa elections, but the news up to our going to press indicates large Democratic gains. The Democratic Governor and Legislature in Ohio will be elected by probably ...000 majority. In Iowa, according to the latest accounts the Republicans have a majority.

MR. STOCKETT MATTHEWS, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, and leader of the Republicans of the State, said. in a lengthy speech delivered in Baltimore last week, that he emphatically denounced the endorsement by the Republican party of any outside organization; but he was in favor of fighting for principle and maintaing the party organization by the nomination of men belonging to it. He said the best interest of the Republican party of the country and State require that it should put out its own standard bearers, and not support those put forward by other organizations.

SOME of our erring brethren when speak of their inconsistency in proposing to vote for Democrats clothed in Republican garments, or rather, and more truly, Republicans to be Democrats, say that the Democrats, as a party, supported Horace Greely, who was a Republican. Very true, and why Mr. Greely proposed, and was urged, if elected, to liberate the slaves of the South from bayonet rule, and to that extent and in that hope he was endorsed by the Democracy. They guided the democratic leaders who declared for Greely as the means by which the ballot was to be restored to the South, and the way so paved for the election of a candidate of their own. If it had been possible to elect a candidate of their own the endorsement of Greely by the Democrats would have been an outrage. In the choice between the military tyrant Grant and the benevolent Greely, every consideration favored the latter. If this policy action is condemned, those who do so are doing just what they condemn; they are supporting Republicans and republicanized Democrats, at the instance of Republicans or of their own motion, not on principle, but to break down their own party.

[COMMUNICATED.]

HILLSBORO', October 9, 1877.

Dear Journal:—It is evident to the mind of every well thinking and intelligent Democrat of this nation that there is a well linked chain of Democracy which stretches over this great Republic, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, strengthened by the most eloquent, intelligent and accomplished statesmen known to the world; who are proud to acknowledge themselves advocates of the Democratic platform. Such men, whose characters are without spot, blameless and unbranded, are unimpeachable by their enemies, who are their inferiors. These gentlemen, in their wisdom, find no fault with the principles of Democracy, so as to tear asunder or demoralize its organization, but on the contrary, they are well aware through it is the only way devised to administer honest government, both State and National. And we, here, who profess to be intelligent citizens as well as Democrats, present it to yourselves that Democracy is corrupt, and that it is only composed of "Rings" and cliques, and that you intend to break it up. When you hear such language circulating it is only by those who would strive to convince what term the ignorant and unqualified portion of the masses of the people to return to the days which ought to be long remembered by the sufferers of those times. Pass them by and tax their minds with ignorance, for they are exerting every effort imaginable to disorganize the very party to whom all the credit is due for our redemption from under the hands of tyranical and imperious authority. Who lives to-day to know these facts but the once disfranchised Democrats!

Yes, to-day, they are the ones who slaughtered and buried Nonothingism, and mortally wounded Democracy, and despotically placed their heel upon its neck and defied it to move. But it did move, and it moved again, until it walked, and the first step it made this Republican party, calling itself democratic, shuddered, and trembled at its coming, for it well knew its day of despotism was over. Now, to-day, they come before you disguised, mantled with the attire confiscated from a better cause, and ask you for your support, for your suffrage. Will you do it? The day that you do you burst the ties that bind your cause to success. One man may break himself but he can't break the Democratic party in Caroline county. Are you to listen to what a man says his political principles are? He can say anything; but take him a few years, and follow his political career up to now; then the truth discloses itself. How are we to appreciate such men as have received all the benefits required by them of their fellow man? See them do for them that which their ought-to-be best friends refuse to do; after they have been befriended, hear such language as uncalled for fall from their lips as "My God, how can I go back upon them?" Now it developes itself, for we all can see. Yet no explanation can be made. We find them enrolled upon the list with others who would rejoice at the momentary fall and final death of the Democratic party, and let it lay upon the public highway to be devoured.

In 1867 the Democratic party had no opposition, and it was supposed the Republicans had no intention of making a ticket, but one of the most conspicuous candidates now on the Republican ticket, then representing himself as a Democrat, made out a Republican ticket of his own choice and selection, carried it to one of the old leading Republicans and told him if he would have that ticket nominated and put it before the people, he would exert all his influence for its election; work for it, vote for it, and contribute for its success. But he is a consistent Democrat, fought and done everything for the cause (?) The State's Attorney and Sheriff and one of the candidates for the House of Delegates were defeated, all upon the Democratic ticket regularly nominated. He never knew how it happened; but still he cries Democracy. Such men have been galvanized and re-galvanized until it has been plainly discovered that it is but a spurious article, and is classed with such goods as will go off cheap together, and as the Democratic party is now rid of them it will sail peacefully across its waters.

It is circulated abroad that the Democratic nominees were nominated by a ring, and everybody wants the minority to rule. If a ticket can be more fairly and honorably nominated than the present Democratic ticket, it does not belong to the English language to define the word fairness. One would not expect to get a ticket composed of eight candidates in a county to meet the wishes of every voter, and while it is your principles to feel that a majority should rule, it is the principles of every good Democrat, and when you voted for your delegation to the Nominating Convention, you there expected them to do their duty in nominating the candidates desired by those who elected them as delegates; that, it must be acknowledged was fairly done. The districts no doubt executed what each one was expected to do by those who sent them there, as each candidate now presented to the people received a majority of that convention. It is nothing more than true Democracy to give your entire support to the ticket, then you will conform to the principles of letting the majority rule. No doubt when you were first apprised of who were your candidates, you then asserted how you would vote and for whom you would not vote, this you did without proper consideration, no doubt you regret that such a resolution was made by you, and just to keep your word you will hold upon your first conviction. A bad promise is better broken than kept, and when you hold fast to such promises you suffer your prejudices to get away with your reason. There is a flood-tide of conspiracies now for every Democrat to rebut. If you were a Democrat in prosperity you will be a Democrat in adversity. A Democrat in need is a Democrat indeed.

How utterly foolish to prance around one's room all night with a most terrible tooth-ache, when a few drops of Keller's Roman Liniment would cure it in two or three minutes. All pain and discomfort vanish immediately upon its application, and everywhere this preparation is regarded as a household necessity.

Our Business Record.

OUR FRIENDS PROPHESIED OUR SUCCESS,

But it is even greater than we ever dared hope.

WHY IS THIS? ANSWER:

Our goods are as low as any can afford to offer. The people are becoming aware of this and as a consequence our business is daily increasing.

OUR STOCK:

DRESS GOODS,
CASIMERES,
QUILTS,
BLANKETS,
SHAWLS,

HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS,

DOMESTIC DRY GOODS, GROCERIES, QUEENSWARE, &C.

OUR BLACK ALPACAS & CAHSMERES

Are the best we have ever seen for the money, and we do not believe they can be excelled anywhere. Come and see them; compare them with any, and if ours do not stand the test do not buy them. We know we have special bargains in these goods, and you cannot fail to find it so if you will only see them.

HAMBURGS AND INSERTIONS.

A new and beautiful stock just received. Call and see them. The ladies say that they are beautiful and cheap.

IF YOU CANNOT COME SEND FOR SAMPLES.

You can also find a line of samples of goods at Mrs. N. A. Hutson's, who is our agent in Denton, and who will be pleased to take your order.
