HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES.

INTERESTING EXERCISES AT MUSIC HALL LAST NIGHT.

A Very Large Class—Miss Edith Ford the Salutatorian and Miss Minnie Wrightson the Valedictorian.

To those who believe with the great and good Washington, that to promote the general diffusion of knowledge is of paramount importance, the commencement of the Easton High School held in Music Hall last night was an event of unusual interest.

That this interest is widespread in Talbot county was abundantly evidenced by the large number of school patrons present from many sections. Nearly seven hundred people succeeded in gaining admittance. This was fully one hundred in excess of the number who could find comfortable space in the room, and a number could not get in at all. A large part of the assemblage had to remain standing throughout the exercises, which occupied about two hours.

The programme as published in THE GAZETTE last week was followed in regular order, Rev. Leonidas B. Baldwin opening the exercises with an impressive prayer. The school chanted Psalm XIX, after which Miss Edith Ford read the salutatory. The school then sang "Bravo," which was followed by Master Bayard Cook's essay, "Study of History," which was a remarkable evidence of the thoroughness with which he has pursued the study of history. "L'Allegro" was handsomely recited by Miss Anna White. Miss Minnie Wrightson, the lady of honor, then stepped forward and delivered the valedictory, which was as follows:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—It is with no small amount of mingled pride and pleasure that I appear before you tonight as the representative of the class of '96. I am here not unconscious of the worth of those about me, and feel glad of the honor I have to pay the members of my class this modest tribute.

In this situation there are some serious thoughts presented that many of us have never imagined before, and yet they come crowding upon us with irresistible force. No one probably is able to fully appreciate any condition until he has been brought face to face with an event which will place him upon a footing so separate and distinct from the life previously pursued.

Though the transition from school-life to real life is a minor gradation in the course of our existence, it is as serious to us, and should be, as those later ones that will follow in due succession. It is our duty, therefore, to see well to it that we put forth the best efforts in those earlier responsibilities by laying the firm foundation for a doctrine and discipline that may after all form the nucleus for a wider and higher life.

Many most useful lessons are to be deduced from our modest exercises of this evening, and force us to draw the strong comparison as the door is now about to be opened through which we are to pass and thence to achieve that destiny of which we are to be the architects and builders.

The forcible thought that comes to us is the intimate relationship between the school we are leaving and the life we are about to enter, and if my prophetic vision be allowed its full play, I think I can see already in corrolated analogies the discipline to be practiced as of old. The schoolbell may not in reality ring out its audible tone, the classes of school may not form in the accustomed lines, and the teachers may not always take the forms of men and women, but the bell of punctuality will ever be prompt, the formation lines of life, honesty and truthe will be never so strict and straight, and the teachers of age, pain, sorrow and joy will be task-masters whose rule is truly iron, and from whose steady word of command there is no mitigation or release.

In the school of life the altruistic theory of the putting aside of self is the foundation of all happiness and usefulness. What in life is to be more sought for than these two virtues? Yet I venture to say that neither is ever reached to the fullest extent and capacity of the individual. It takes an artistic mind to be happy, a scientific one to be useful. The ability to trace the beauty of a flower, to admire the exquisite tints of the rainbow or to appreciate the good points of a rugged character arises from that divine sense of man that alone can give him happiness.

If in this analytic way we would investigate Nature and Nature's laws and draw the lessons for our lives, the standard of truth and righteousness we can so educate, cultivate the germ that God has given us to attain this power. It is not alone the education of those mental powers, but of that moral side of our character, which alone can make the world grow stronger, better and wiser.

Honorable gentlemen of the Board of School Commissioners and esteemed Examiner of the Public Schools of Talbot county, the lively interest you have manifested in our profit and progress while under your wise supervision is but meagrely repaid by such words of gratitude as I am able to give. Yet for lack of these we would have you know that we are by no means insensible of the great advantages you have strewn in our pathway, and for the opportunity you have offered for our advancement. Without seeking further testimony, we come before you as living witnesses of the results of your ceaseless efforts in thus far turning our educational journey to a successful issue. The comforts and conveniences you have bestowed upon us and the handsome building you have erected and in which we take such pride, and the maintaining of our standard on a basis of merit and scholarship, are but a few of the reasons why we so prize and appreciate your commendatory words of dismissal. It is with feelings deeply sensible of such benefits bestowed that we regretfully say, "Farewell."

Mr. Principal and Instructors of the Easton High School, carefully and faithfully have you nourished and tended the plants intrusted to your care and joyfully do they yield to your pleasure the sweet fragrance of the essom. With courtesy and courage have guided our steps in paths of manhood lies, womanly dignity, and though practice their these virtues is necessary to their perfection, we recognize in you the architects and whose plans have been those of industry, knowledge and skill.

From the threads woven in our daily intercourse now for four years past, is the strong upcord of attachment thus subtly formed a matter of wonder or surprise, and is its severance to be effected without some tribute of love and gratitude? It is a matter of pride to us and no mean reflection upon your efforts that the class of 1896 out-numbers any before in the history of the school of our county, and since it has been our good fortune to help maintain the past record so justly earned, we heartily cherish the hope that this our Alma Mater may by your continued and efficient work be made to widen its sphere of usefulness, and so enlarge its basis that it may form a portion of that firm foundation of good government, good morals and good character.

And as each of us now takes his journey over the pathless sea of life may the lashing waves that seethe around our destinies re-echo back and forth that tender word Farewell.

Class mates and fellow students, our class, for a long time so closely bound by ties of friendship and tender regard, is assembled now for its final dissolution. As a class no more will we pursue the life so familiar to us all. The roll is called, and the work we have elected to do has passed our approval. Be it a credit or discredit others must say, and our own consciences must dictate whether we have done our best. That work is now a matter of record, and we must abide the result.

For years past we have enjoyed that youthful freedom that is bounded by a halo of happiness through which the world beyond takes on a coleur de rose. The clear light of duty has now dispelled these misty illusions and points by its countless rays to as many countless destinies. The path is clear and the chart and compass are at our hands. Each is a captain and must whether he will or no take these both in hand and guide his ship to the haven where he would be.

We are now called upon to shoulder responsibilities of life and when temptation threatens or feeblesome of spirit overcomes allow the spirit of '96 to revive your shaken zeal.

Farewell.

Ladies and gentlemen:—In bidding you all adieu, deeply do we thank you for your encouraging presence. Our sojourn among you has been made pleasant and profitable by the refinement and culture that characterizes your hospitable town. The memory of this evening would even form a pleasant memento of hopes accomplished and ambitions aroused.

May the virtues of happiness and prosperity surround you and as a parting request may you gard as your very own the honor, reputation and dignity of your temple of learning. With your help and assistance, guided and directed by the favor of Providence, its pupils instructed in liberty, truth and knowledge will

"Silently, one by one, in the infinite meadows of Heaven
Blossom as the lovely stars, the forget-me-nots of the angels."

After the valedictory was an address to the graduates by Dr. Wm. H. Hopkins. At the conclusion of the address the school sang "The Meadow Song," after which Prof. Chaplain presented the diplomas and Mr. M. B. Nichols the Nichols gold medal. The exercises closed with the singing of the "Gloria in Excelsis" by the school and the benediction by the Rev. Wm. M. Poisal.

Besides the ones named above, the following were graduated: Misses Elizabeth Brown, Elizabeth N. Fleckenstein, Margaret Montague, Nellie W. Weston, Nellie R. Wrightson, Messrs. Martin M. Ryan, Bertram E. Whitman and Alfred T. Wilson. The graduates were almost submerged by the floral offerings of their friends. Altogether the commencement of '96 was a grand success.

IT COSTS YOU ONE DOLLAR.

Bicycle Riders In Easton Must Pay For The Privilege of Owning A Wheel.

Easton is probably the first town in the State to have a tax on bicycles. At a recent meeting the Board of Town Commissioners decided to place a tax of one dollar a year on all persons owning bicycles.

This bicycle tax has created a great deal of attention of late and much space has been given it in the leading grounds of the county and Easton undoubtedly has the distinction of being the first town in Maryland to impose this tax. The ordinance reads as follows:

Be it enacted and ordained by the Commissioners of Easton that every person or persons who shall keep or have in possession in the town of Easton for use any bicycle shall on or before July 1 of each year apply to the Clerk or Commissioners of Easton for a license to use said bicycle. Said Clerk is hereby authorized to issue license to the person or persons applying for same, but before delivering thereof the said person or persons shall pay to said Clerk the sum of one dollar. Licenses may be issued for a part or parts of a year, for which proportional charges shall be made: and all licenses issued shall terminate on the first day of July in each year.

It shall be the duty of every person or persons to whom a license shall be issued under preceding sections to paint or cause to be painted on, or otherwise attached in permanent form on every bicycle corresponding to the number of the same in said license. No person or persons shall use or permit to be used any bicycle until a license therefor has been obtained and the proper number thereof is painted thereon or otherwise attached thereto as herein provided.

Any person or persons violating the provisions of this and the preceding sections shall be fined Five Dollars for each and every offence.

If it required an annual outlay of $100.00 to insure a family against any serious consequences from an attack of bowel complaint during the year there are many who would feel it their duty to pay it; that they could not afford to risk their lives and those of their family for such an amount. Any one can get this insurance for 25 cents, that being the price of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. In almost every neighborhood some one has died from an attack of bowel complaint before medicine could be procured and a physician summoned. One or two doses of this remedy will cure any ordinary case. It never fails. Can you afford to take the risk for so small amount? For sale by Harry Roberts, Easton; A. D. Harrison, St. Michaels; J. F Sisk, Cordova.

Gospel Temperance Meeting.

The Gospel Temperance Meetings held under the auspices of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union at various times and in the different churches of the town are always interesting, but none more so than that held at the Trinity M. E. Church last Wednesday evening.

The President, Mrs. Councell, called the meeting to order and opened it in the usual way with prayer and song. Miss Sadie Nicols read the Scripture lesson which was followed by the reading of a most excellent selection upon the cost of a license by Miss Barwick. Mr. Charles Hughes then rendered one of his beautiful solos accompanied by Mrs. Garrison with the organ.

Miss Elizabeth Lloyd one of the former workers in the Union in this town, but now on a visit from her home in Pennsylvania, addressed the congregation for the space of half an hour in a most intelligent and earnest manner, telling parents the necessity of training their children arright, that the hope of the future depended upon the training of to-day. She gave many excellent and pertinent illustrations.

Prof. Wheatley sang one of his inspiring solos and Rev. Mr. Regester made some highly appropriate remarks supplementary to the lecture and songs.

The program closed with a pretty little solo from Miss Chaffinch and the audience dispersed feeling it profitable to have been there.

Expert Train Running.

For the month of May the record of train movement on the B. & O. R. R. eclipsed the record breaking record for April, when the passenger trains arrived at their destinations as per schedule ninety-five times out of a possible hundred. The B. & O. Fast Freight Trains between New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore on the east, and Cincinnati, St. Louis and Chicago on the west, are being moved with an equal degree of precision.

CROCODILES GALORE.

THE AMPHIBIANS LEAVE EASTON THIS MORNING IN GAY ATTIRE.

The Only Crocodile Club in the World Makes Its Annual Excursion to the Ocean—Members of the Party.

It is not known in all Europe that Easton is the only town in the world that owns a Crocodile Club, or that Lord Dunraven would postpone a yacht race to take an outing with them, or that Parliament would lay down the boundary lines of their pleasure trips, or that Prince Hohenlohe would adjourn the Reichstag to see them pass, but it is known in Salisbury and Ocean City and all along the route that Easton has a Crocodile Club and that this is about the season they migrate to the ocean in a special car and paint the track and telegraph poles as they pass.

They start today, and it may be inferred that the Mayor of Salisbury and city council and editors and board of trade and newsboys and girls in bloomers and "shine-em-ups" will all be at the depot to hold them up. This has never failed; the car is always held up two or three hours and side-tracked until the next train to Ocean City, and it is likely the same thing will happen to-day.

The car is worthy of special description. It is a buffet car—with ice-water in one end and porter in the middle. The only seats are lounges, hammocks, divans and rocking chairs. The table contains nothing but bouquets in the centre, and possibly a bran new gilt-edged set of whist cards. Books, periodicals and bon-bons or a rosette fan are always within reach, but they are not touched except by the porter, who, dressed in immaculate white, must hand them to the person desiring them. The other duties of the porter are to spray the crocodiles with cologne water or remove dust.

Singing is strictly prohibited, but an occasional yell is indulged in. This is the only relic of antediluvian saurianism retained, and closely resembles the modern college idiotic war whoop. It is:

"Let's have a smile,
Let's have a smile,
We are amphibious
Croc-o-dile!"

The membership of this select body is strictly limited to the charter members with such additions as they may choose to make. Those who go out to-day on the memorable trip of 1896 are, H. A. Bateman, J. E. M. Chamberlaine, Jr., Wilfred Bateman, R. R. Walker A. L. Tharp, Capt. Hedge Thompson, Charles S. Carrington, Col. Oswald Tilghman, H. H. Balch, Wm. T. H. Lee, Wm. C. Smith, Capt. Bob Leonard, George W. Wilson, Alexis G. Pascault, J. F. Turner and Geo. A. Deakyne of Denton.

A DELIGHTFUL AFTERNOON.

An Enjoyable Crabbing Party Given by Mr. W. L. Hubbard on Tuesday.

Through the efforts of Mr. Wm. L. Hubbard a delightful and enjoyable afternoon was spent upon the water by a party of ladies and gentlemen Tuesday.

By previous arrangement the beautiful little bugeye Col. R. Johnson Colton, Captain Travers, had been engaged to call for the party at Miles river bridge. The teams began to arrive at 1.50 P. M., but owing to a lull in the wind the little vessel had not yet arrived, and the crowd, eager for pleasure, indulged in attempting to teach some of the ladies the art of riding a wheel, which is always attended with fun to those looking on. It was but a short time, however, before the wind sprung up and the vessel arrived, and then the fun of transferring the participants in a small boat commenced, and it was then found necessary to leave the largest lady (who tips the beam at 200 pounds) for the last trip, with only the Captain to row her.

All were landed safely on board, and the sails being spread, they were soon speeding down the beautiful river and enjoying all the pleasures incident to a sail, added to which were the shores dotted with beautiful Talbot homes. The Captain, eager to please, dropped anchor, and crabbing was indulged in until quite a number had been caught, when a delightful breeze having come up, all were anxious to sail again. It was but a few moments until they were under way, and down the river they sped, the vessel leaning over in the wind to such an extent that it was found necessary to request the large lady to step to the other side of the boat. They returned to the bridge at 7 o'clock and drove back in the teams awaiting them.

Those comprising the party were Mr. and Mrs. Wm. L. Hubbard, daughter Grace and son Wm. L., Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hubbard; Dr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Garrison; Mr. and Mrs. Leander R. Hooper; Rev. and Mrs. Charles A. Hill and son; Mr. and Mrs. John E. Hubbard, Mrs. F. A. Willis and son Leroy.

Keen appetites and the desire to "go again" soon were the feelings of all.

Welby, Alice McDaniel, Julia Bowers, Lou McNeal, Minnie Fleckenstein, Annie H. Smith, Helen Wrightson, Elizabeth Brown, Edith Ford, Elizabeth Fleckenstein, Margaret Montague, Minnie Wrightson, Anna White, Nellie Wrightson, Drs. E. M. Hardcastle, Jr., T. A. Councell, Messrs. JUDGE GOLDSBOROUGH'S BIRTHDAY.

Hale and Active at 80—Sketch of His Career.

The Hon. Henry Hollyday Goldsborough of the Baltimore bar completed his 79th year the 22d June. At 80 he is hale and active, and spent the day in his office on Courtland street. Judge Goldsborough, as he is generally known, has never had a serious illness and has led a remarkably abstemious, although exciting and laborious, life. He was born in Easton on June 22, 1817, and is fifth in descent from Robert Goldsborough of Dorchester, England, who came to Talbot county in 1678, and founded the noted Goldsborough family of Maryland.

In 1838 Judge Goldsborough was graduated from St. John's College Annapolis, with first honors, and studied law with his father, John Goldsborough, and Theodore R. Lockerman at Easton. In March, 1841, he was admitted to the bar of Caroline county at Denton, and in the following May was admitted to the Talbot bar. Judge Goldsborough rapidly rose to a conspicuous position in his profession. He joined the Whig party and was twice its candidate for the House of Delegates in Talbot prior to 1846, but was defeated. In 1846 he ran as an Independent for the House, and in 1849 was appointed Deputy Attorney General for Talbot, a position analogous to the present State's Attorney, which office was created by the Constitution of 1850. Judge Goldsborough was defeated by a few votes in 1851 as the Whig candidate for State's Attorney. He was a Scott elector in 1852. In Know-Nothing days he acted with the Democrats. He was defeated in 1855 as a candidate for Commissioner of Public Works on the Eastern Shore. In 1856 he was a Buchanan elector.

He won his first election in 1857 as a Democratic candidate for the House of Delegates. Judge Goldsborough was a prominent fector in the legislation of 1858. The following year he was elected to the State Senate as a Democrat, and in 1860 opposed secession. He was chairman of the finance committee of the Senate at that session, and was influential in preventing the secession of Maryland. At the extra session of 1862 he was chosen President of the Senate. Governor Hicks appointed him a commissioner of the London Industrial Exhibition, and Governor Bradford made him a brigadier general of militia. In 1863 Judge Goldsborough was the Union candidate for Comptroller, and was elected by a majority of 30,000. He was president of the Constitutional Convention of 1864, a delegate to the Republican Convention of that year, and an elector-at-large for Lincoln and Johnson. In November of 1864 he was elected judge of the Eleventh district, composed of Caroline and Talbot counties. He had served three years of his term of 15 when the constitution of 1876 was adopted. The Hon. Isaac D. Jones defeated the Judge for Attorney-General in 1876. He was a Grant elector in 1868, and supported Greely in 1872. In 1874 he was defeated for Congress from the First district by the late Governor Philip Francis Thomas. Judge Goldsborough was appointed an appraiser at Baltimore in 1875, and removed to this city, where he has since resided. He ran against the Hon. Isidor Rayner for Congress in the Fourth district in 1890.

Of late years Judge Goldsborough has gradually withdrawn from court practice. He is an authority on Maryland history and genealogy, and his researches on these subjects have extended over a period of more than a half century.—Balto News.

TALBOT'S WHEELWOMEN.

THEY INTEND TO FORM A CLUB OF THEIR OWN.

Some of the Fair Sex That Ride the Bike. We Have Some of the Best Lady Riders That Can Be Found.

The wheel has captured the feminine mind in Easton this summer, and many a sacrifice is made for the sake of a wheel. The number of lady bicyclists increases daily. "Come weal, come woe, was once our phrase, E'er cycling swept into success. But in these fin de siecle days, We say: come wheel, come happiness."

Among the cyclists are: Misses C. Emily Pratt, Sina Trippe, Freda Trippe, Margaret Stewart, Sallie Powell, Mamie and Sallie Lowndes, Zoe Trail, Daisy Welby, Nan Taylor, Alice McDaniel, Neva, Mattie and Hazel Parlett, Lizzie Brown, Mattie MacDonald, Josephine Warfield, Fannibel and Minnie Walker, Grace Hubbard, Katie Young Midie Plummer, Lulu Roberts, May Poisal, Mary Fish, May Shehan, Minnie and Helen Wrightson, Florence Williams, and Madames Mrs. Aldridge, Wm. G. Denny, Addison Wilson, J. A. Spence, R. Harry Patchett, J. C. Godwin, Frank Shannahan and David A. Hill.

Miss Freda Trippe is the fastest and most expert rider in town, Miss Lizzie Brown coming next.

A willowy form,
A steed of steel,
A firm control
Of the whirling wheel.
A graceful movement,
A bewitching smile—
And the girl is down
The road—a mile.

The girls are going to start a club before long that will be chronicled in the annals of the town history and be a rival of the Avon Cycle Club. Some have gotten wheels for the pleasure of them only, and others for health's sake.

The fat girl will grow lean,
The lean girl will grow fat,
The dyspeptic will grow hungry,
You can bet your life on that.
The cranks will grow more pleasant,
The pleasant more so feel,
If they take a trip each morning
On a winsome, graceful wheel.

The unfortunate that have none and are suffering for the want of one are saying with the infant:

Oh, Lord, I want a nice new wheel,
With pump-up tires and nickel-plate;
Please make my papa buy a real
Jim-dandy racer, up-to-date.
I'm sleepy now. My sins forgive,
If I should die before I wake,
Good night, dear Lord! and if I live,
Give me a wheel, for Mercy's sake.

Tell It Out.

Don't sit down and wait for trade,
'Taint the way.
Get a hustle, make a show,
Push your business—make her go,
Don't sit down and wait for trade,
'Taint the way,
'Taint the way.
If you've got something to sell,
Tell it about.
Let your neighbors see you're "fly,"
Get up "bargains," don't say die,
If you've got anything to sell,
Tell it out,
Tell it out.
Folks won't know you if you don't
Advertise.
Keep things movin' every day,
Talk about it; that's the way,
Folks won't know you if you don't
Advertise,
