

to prize her little souvenirs, the Prayer-Book. she wishes to be remembered

My Sister sends her respects; she has grown very much since you saw her, and is the greatest rebel I know, she and I, have been practicing with pistols this morning, preparatory to joining and helping Lee, when he arrives; which I hope will be soon.

You spoke of having spent many pleasant hours in Annapolis: I hope you will spend many more here, your old friends will welcome you with pleasure.

We were glad to hear that our Annapolis boys were doing well. Their relatives here, I believe are all well.

You will find no signature to this and will readily know the reason. it may fall into the hands of some Gank. as every Avenue of communication with the South is closely guarded. I remain ever your Sincere Friend
